THE WORLD'S BIGGEST technology show, International CES, might have taken place in the surreal venue of Las Vegas, but its focus was firmly on real-world, affordable home-entertainment kit. You can read all about it on p28, and unlike in previous years, you won't have to wait months for all that hot hardware to head your way.

Take Arcam's Solo – this stunning one-box hi-fi system was only launched at the show last month, but we've already got a world exclusive review of it (on p6), and it'll be in the shops any day now. It's a similar story for Mission's M-Cube speaker system (p22) and the ThemeScene H57 projector (p12), not to mention the collection of new-generation rear-projection DLP TVs we unveil, starting on p50.

Another CES plus point was the amount of new hi-fi products, proving that the quest for ever-better music reproduction is alive and kicking. We've got great examples of that crusade in this issue's amplifiers test (p72), plus a Temptation (p80) that's impressed us enough to be considered for our reference system.

If your prefer your music more mobile, we've got a storming portables showdown this month, with Apple's iPod taking on Sony's first MP3-compatible player.

For more insights into what's new – including an exclusive high-definition demo, plus all the free hi-fi and home cinema advice you need – come and see us at the Bristol Show later this month. Just like Vegas, but without the slot machines, showgirls or Elvis impersonators. See you there!

Musical Solo has to be heard

Arcam Solo £1000

STEREO CD RECEIVER

FOR

Excellent all-round sound, combined with all the convenience of a one-box product good build and finish

AGAINST

Lacks separates' upgrade potential

VERDICT

Arcam has struck gold with the Solo: if you want fuss-free hi-fi, you must put this on your shortlist

YOUR CHOICE HAS always been simple: those who value convenience buy a one-box solution like this CD/DAB tuner/amplifier combination, and those who want good sound quality don't.

However, the Solo blurs these boundaries. It's the first integrated product to get close to pleasing all of the people all of the time. Well, that's not quite true: Linn got close first with its successful Classik – something that Arcam clearly had in its sights when designing the Solo. The advantage of not being first onto the market means that you know exactly what's required to come out top, and for us that's exactly what the Solo does.

The Solo is a great-sounding piece of equipment – the first true alternative to the separates hi-fi at this price. Note the word 'alternative': we're not saying that the Solo is the best-sounding product at this price, because we suspect that a combination from, say, Cambridge or NAD might just edge it out.

But it would be a mighty close contest, and that's our point. Arcam has tried hard to make the Solo a product that covers all bases with minimal sacrifice, and it has been a big-time success all round.

Arcam's Solo combines style and convenience with true hi-fi performance

CD performance is great, just as impressive as the engineering ingredients suggest (see the panel below for more details). Try Bach's Cello Suite No. 1 in G Major and the Solo picks out a good deal of detail, arranging it into a cohesive and musical whole. It doesn't become flustered when things start to get busy, producing as spacious a soundstage as we've heard from a unit of this type.

Move on to something with more drive, say, Outkast's The Love Below set, and the Solo responds with a generous dose of drive and sure-footed timing. This Arcam might not be a rhythm champ in the fashion of Cambridge's Azur 640 separates, or be the last word in attack, but it does well enough in each area to avoid serious criticism.

The tonal balance is on the warm side of neutral, too, though once again it doesn't stray far enough to cause offence. Arcam has struck a skilful balance that's easy to listen to without ever edging towards blandness. The result is that the Solo is capable enough to reveal the intricacies of a CD's production, but polite enough never to sound rude no matter how sub-standard the recordings. Sit back, listen and enjoy – that's what the Solo is about.

The story is similarly positive with radio. The Solo is equipped with both DAB and FM bands. Both sound good, and the respective tuner sections are sensitive enough to pick up a good selection of stations. Noise levels are low and overall resolution pleasing. As with any tuner a quality aerial is a must for the best results.

So we know that the Solo sounds good. What's it like to use? The remote handset works well; its buttons sensibly placed and sized. As befits a product at this price, the Solo's fit and finish are both also first-rate.

The feature count is high, and includes four line level inputs, a single tape loop, plus both preamp and multiroom outputs. There's a digital out for the CD player and DAB, together with a useful range of analogue and digital inputs. If you're using the Arcam as a bedroom system, you'll also appreciate the array of alarm options.

We do have a couple of minor complaints, though. The control software works well on the whole, but isn't quite perfect. If you're listening to the radio and want to play a CD you have to select the correct input first – otherwise, none of the CD controls will function. On other products pressing the CD drawer eject button is enough to change inputs. Also, the front panel buttons don't feel positive to use.

It wouldn't take much for Arcam to sort out these problems, and we hope it does, because in most respects the Solo is a smashing, unassuming product. At last, style, good sound and convenience are no longer mutually exclusive.

WHAT'S HIDDEN INSIDE THE WONDER BOX?

Arcam hasn't skimped on the internals of this CD/amp/tuner. The CD transport, digital-to-analogue conversion circuitry and audio output stage is essentially the same as the Award-winning CD73T, so it's no surprise that the unit sounds good.

The tuner section uses the DAB/FM circuitry from a forthcoming standalone Arcam tuner, so puts performance first, too. Only the amplifier section is wholly unique to the Solo: principally because of the lack of space. It outputs 50 watts per channel. Impressive figures, though less stringent conditions than normally used for separates have been applied to get them. Even so, the Solo is likely to be happy with almost any speakers it's partnered with.

37IN PLASMA TV

FOR
Price; good detail and contrast levels

AGAINST
It's not very futureproof, with no HDMI input and an 852 x 480 resolution that's not High-Definition ready

VERDICT
It doesn't have the ability to be a class-leader, but you get very solid performance and value nonetheless

PANASONIC'S NEW PW7 screens offer several options: speakers are available for £399; a TV tuner board and box add £450; S-Video, Scart and component video inputs increase the price by £150. But where's the digital video input on this 37in TV, you ask?

Considering that this RGB Scart TV uses picture-transfer technology that's two generations old, it's not a bad effort

Apparently, plans to include an HDMI terminal were shelved at the last minute. Now, given that Panasonic has just launched an HDMI-equipped DVD player – the DVD-S97, reviewed on p19 – it's odd its latest flatscreens come without compatible socketry.

Our review sample was an RGB Scart-only model, but nevertheless provided perfectly acceptable images. Using a set-top-box, there's good detail and minimal traces of fuzz or noise. There's slight pixelation of edges, especially around fast-moving objects, but that's to be expected when you're using an RGB Scart video input.

Switch to DVD playback, and it's a case of more of the same. Images might lack the pin-sharp definition and clarity expected from a progressive scan or HDMI signal, but they're still likeable enough for Scart, revealing a fair insight into the action.

Contrast also deserves a mention: blacks are deep, rich and deliver good differentiation and detail in the rain-soaked opening scene of Hellboy.

As tested, this Panasonic can't be faulted for effort. A component video terminal board would have allowed us to push the screen's performance, and the lack of HDMI is strange, but the TH-37PW7 is still a solid purchase.

Exposure 2010S £600

CD PLAYER

FOR
Characteristic 'Exposure' rhythm and pace; punchy lower frequencies; exciting dynamics

AGAINST
Some might prefer a warmer sound

VERDICT
Exposure's latest incarnation of its entry-level CD player is exhilarating, and fully deserves top marks

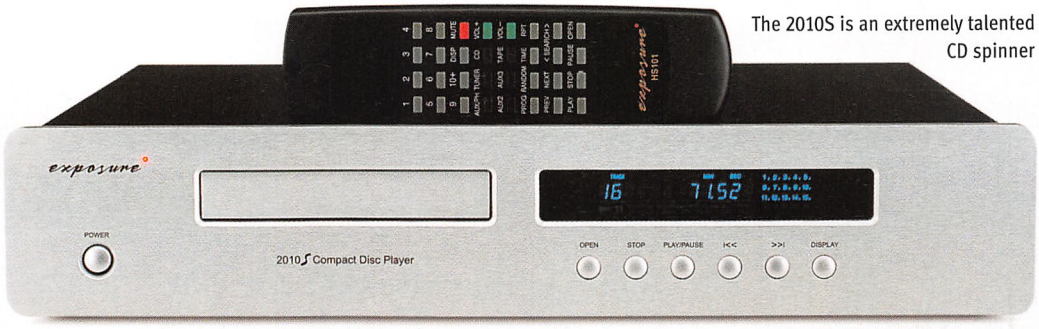
RECENT EXPOSURE KIT has offered thrilling dynamics and pace, but a combination of over enthusiastic treble and basic casework has meant four, not five stars. However, the 'S' edition of the company's entry-level CD player signifies a change in tune, for Exposure, and our verdict.



The 2010S is an extremely talented CD spinner

All the positive sonic traits remain in place, but to those now you can now add a sweet top-end. The build has also improved, and in this price category only the exceptionally well-built Inca Designs Katana significantly surpasses the 2010S.

Spin a few classical recordings, on the Mercury Living Presence label, and you fully appreciate the 2010S's excellent dynamics: Bach's Suites for Solo Cello thrills from the first bow, and attention levels remain high throughout. Switch to the Los Remeros' guitar quartet and the player picks out masses of info, presenting complex Vivaldi pieces in a well separated and roomy manner.

This machine is no music snob, either, and revels in all genres. It energetically punches out Black Sabbath's eponymously titled 1970 album with confidence and attitude, but pleasingly, there's no nasty treble sting. Its top timing means foot-tapping is obligatory, and it keeps the beat during even hugely demanding rhythmic moments from Miles Davis's Bitches Brew. Tonal balance leans towards the, er, lean, so avoid partnering this player with bright-sounding cables or electronics.

The 2010S is a class act, and make sure you read next month's Group Test, when it's up against rivals from Cyrus, Inca and Roksan. Then we'll see if it's a class champ, too.

Behemoth is a surround giant

Denon AVC-A1XV £4000

MULTICHANNEL AMPLIFIER

FOR

Extraordinary sound quality; amazing flexibility and features; staggering standards of build; easy to use

AGAINST

Get your kit rack reinforced now...

Verdict

A veritable leviathan of an amplifier, and an incredibly sophisticated design to boot – truly world-class

Underneath this shy, retiring exterior beats the throbbing mechanical heart of a monster. Yup, the AVC-A1XV is a bit of a beast alright

EDDIE IZZARD ONCE observed that we throw the word 'awesome' around too lightly these days. For example, a great cheeseburger isn't really that awesome: if it was, people would be queuing around the block to get into the local Burger King.

But for the new AVC-A1XV, we're more than happy to deploy 'awesome', and a host of other superlatives besides. The AVC-A1XV is the biggest, heaviest, most powerful one-box multichannel amp ever made. Denon has dubbed its monstrous new creation 'The Behemoth', and we can't think of a more appropriate sobriquet.

Certainly, the Denon looks every inch the multichannel heavyweight. It tips the scales at a mighty 44kg, and stands 28cm high and 50cm deep. It won't fit in most equipment racks: we deployed it in its own Mana stand.

That size isn't just for show. Delve into this amplifier's capabilities, and you begin to understand why it has to be so large. The AVC-A1XV boasts a series of firsts: for example, it has no less than 10 channels of power, each rated at a monstrous 170w. It's also the first amplifier to include HDMI and DVI-D video switching (with full multichannel audio capability for HDMI), the first to include provision for up to six rear speakers (see panel, left) and four zones of multiroom audio, and the first to incorporate room correction software, provided in this case by Audyssey Laboratories.

There's a lot more to cover here, so we'll have to be brief. Any incoming analogue video signal can be deinterlaced and scaled by the Denon's integral Faroudja DCDi video processor. FireWire and Denon Link digital connections provide the optimum-quality connections for DVD sound (as an alternative to HDMI), and high-quality audio DACs and digital sound processing chipsets abound.

We could go on, but we'll run out of space, so let's talk sound. It's easy to sum up: incredible, fantastic, wonderful, utterly compelling... and, of course, awesome. Used with our seven-speaker reference array, the Denon generates astonishing sounds with crushing assuredness. Notions like 'stress' or 'strain' don't exist: instead, the AVC-A1XV generates effortless, fluid and positively huge dynamics. It's remarkably composed, too, especially if you use the amp's room-correction facility: the sound is always seamless, always refined, yet when the need arises, truly savage in its intensity. Even music, so often the bugbear of products in this class, is highly impressive.

Denon's AVC-A1XV 'Behemoth' breaks new ground in this class, that's for sure. We can't wait to put it up against its rivals: see our next issue for that seismic showdown.

TEN CHANNELS, 1700w = AWESOME SOUND

The AVC-A1XV includes 10 channels of amplification, each rated at 170w, the aim being to provide remarkable installation flexibility. Some examples? You could run a conventional seven-speaker system, and use the spare channels to power a stereo system in a second room. Alternatively, you can run two separate 5.1 surround systems in two separate rooms. Not tempting? Why not bi-amplify every speaker in a 5.1 system instead? Or you could try a system with an amazing nine speakers, including no less than six rears. Either listen to all of them, or use different types of rear dedicated to music and movies and 'switch' between them.

ThemeScene's big-screen bargain

ThemeScene H57 £1900

FOR
Excellent picture performance; quiet; well-equipped; affordable

AGAINST
Very little; progressive scan processor is good but not quite perfect

VERDICT

AS YOU MIGHT know, one company has dominated in our recent projector reviews: the US giant ScreenPlay received no less than three of our Awards in 2004.

But ThemeScene clearly means to make a fight of it, and has priced its new line-up of DLP (Digital Light Processing) projectors every bit as aggressively as its American rival. The new H57 is even cheaper than its direct rival, the ScreenPlay 5700, yet has a broadly similar spec: it offers a true 16:9 widescreen chipset, a PAL-friendly resolution of 1024 x 576, and internal progressive scan processing, courtesy of Texas Instruments, rather than the more ubiquitous Faroudja.

The H57 also provides all the input sockets you could want, including an RGB Scart input (via an adapter) and an HDMI-compatible DVI-D socket. And, while we take every manufacturer's performance figures with a pinch of salt, the ThemeScene's low noise (23dB), long lamp life (4000 hours) and high claimed contrast ratio (3500:1) look truly formidable on paper.

But the best bit? Turn the H57 on, spend a few moments levelling it out and setting it up – comparatively easy by class standards – and you'll be blown away by the picture. Colour richness is terrific, low-light detail exemplary, and the blend of rich black depth and fresh, punchy white shades does justice to even murky, moody movies such as Alien Versus Predator. The best results come from using the DVI-D socket, and not only because this method uses a digital video transfer: it also means you bypass the H57's internal progressive scan processing, which is good, but isn't quite a match for that which you get from the best DVD players.

Well equipped and capable of terrific picture performance, the affordable H57 is a real home cinema bargain

FOR
Solid build quality; satellites' quirky looks; fantastic spread of sound

AGAINST
Lacks dynamic ability; uncomfortable being pushed; dialogue is unnatural

VERDICT
Excellent on paper, but the Spherex multichannel system just can't quite match our high expectations

WITH EVERY Xbox game having a 5.1 surround sound track to rival the movie DVDs the console also plays, this speaker kit is a logical move.

Initial impressions appear to be extremely promising. The sub does all the signal processing and handles Dolby Digital, Pro-Logic II and DTS discs. A panel on the cabinet hosts all the relevant connections, including two optical and one coaxial digital inputs. There's even a USB input, for two-channel playback from a PC.

The subwoofer and satellites are solidly built, the latter using an 'omnipolar' design (similar to Mirage's Omnisat system) to aid sound dispersion and creates a deep, wide and tall soundstage.

The technology works: during the battle of the beasts in Alien Versus Predator, the speakers spread the effects far and wide. You find yourself looking round the room just in case something's hiding in the corner.

The Spherex system uncovers a fair amount of detail, but it does lack the insight of class-leading systems.

Five unusual speakers give a great spread of surround atmospherics

The subwoofer fires out a fairly weighty and muscular sound, which impresses during the Hellboy portal scene.

However, for the money, the sats do lack the dynamic subtlety and versatility of the top systems at this price. Voices can sound hard, closed in, and lacking in emotion and realism. Also, when pushed by lively action, the system can be difficult to listen to.

The Spherex may still suit your needs: it should be ideal for keen gamers. However, it lacks the all-round ability we'd expect for £400.

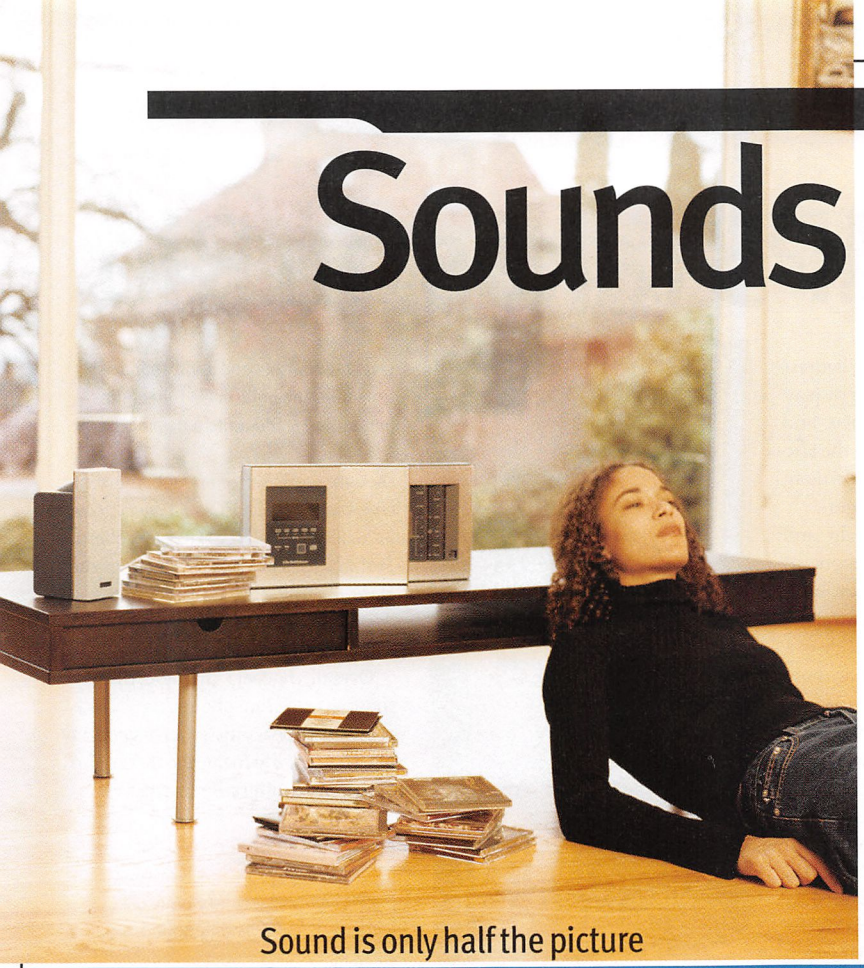
GUIDE TO DOLBY TECHNOLOGIES

Sounds good

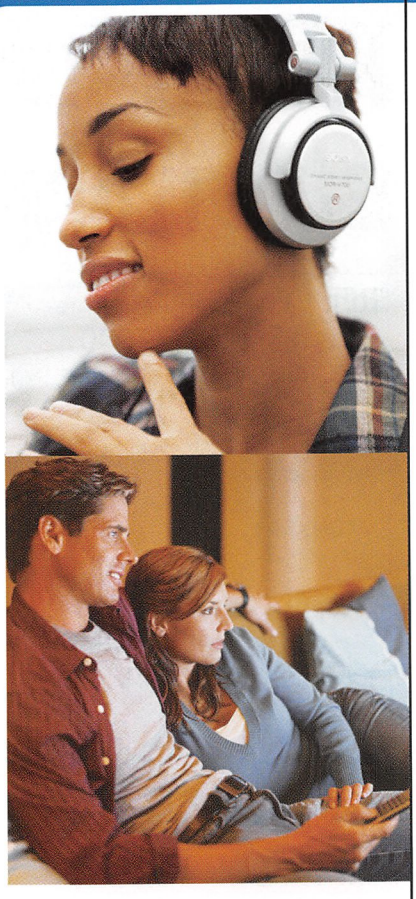
Most of us have heard of Dolby, we've seen the double-D symbol on our hi-fi, pressed the button on the car stereo for noise reduction, and watched Dolby® Digital trailers in the cinema. You read the product reviews listing all the various Dolby technologies and know they're a good thing to have. But what do they all do? When should you use them? What can they give you?



Sound is only half the picture

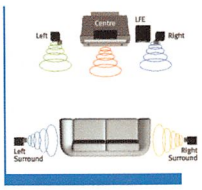
Without sound, we'd be lost. We'd have no idea when the doorbell was ringing, what Pat was saying on EastEnders, or how fantastic the pod racers sound in Star Wars: Episode One when you listen to them zooming past in surround. This is why it makes sense to get the most, aurally, out of all your content by using the most appropriate Dolby technology.

If you want to watch films, TV, even listen to music in surround sound, Dolby has technologies which allow you to do this from five, six, or seven speakers. Whether it's a DVD with Dolby Digital 5.1 or a stereo source, you can enjoy both in surround sound. There are also virtual technologies which deliver a realistic surround experience from two speakers or through headphones.



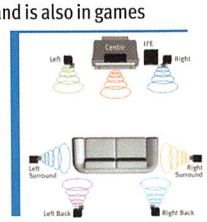
DOLBY DIGITAL

Dolby Digital unlocks the world of cinema surround sound in the home. A sophisticated technology, it can deliver mono, stereo, or up to 5.1 completely distinct and independent (discrete) channels of sound. It's the standard for audio reproduction on DVD worldwide. The film director and sound team create a sound mix with 5.1 discrete channels of audio (see right), and this is replicated as the director intended through DVD or some television broadcasts.



DOLBY PRO LOGIC II

Pro Logic® II transforms any stereo source into highly realistic and convincing surround sound. The technology recognises and unlocks directional clues in the source, delivering a five-channel output from radio and TV, digital music such as MP3 and AAC, CDs and video cassettes, revealing the hidden magic in your existing entertainment collection. It is found in almost all home theatre AV receivers and is also in games consoles and some car audio systems.



DOLBY PRO LOGIC IIx

Dolby Pro Logic IIx technology is a further extension of Pro Logic II, enabling the listener to experience natural and seamless 6.1 or 7.1 channel surround sound, whatever the source of the original soundtrack. 7.1 (see right) gives an extra two back channels for a more immersive experience.

DOLBY DIGITAL VIRTUAL SPEAKER

Dolby Virtual Speaker creates the illusion of having five speakers, where in reality only two are present. Sophisticated sound algorithms "place" sounds in the areas where speakers would be, and use room modelling techniques to delay the delivery of sound, tricking your brain into thinking that sound is coming from five ideally-positioned speakers. Dolby Virtual Speaker allows you to experience surround sound in situations where having five speakers is impractical.

Dolby Headphone is a technology included in selected hardware devices which, when any pair of headphones is plugged in, creates a realistic surround sound experience. Listening feels open and pleasant, avoiding listener fatigue. It's ideal for those occasions when the other occupants of your house are asleep or when watching DVDs on the move.

iRiver mini MP3 takes on Rio

iRiver H10 £199

5GB MP3 PLAYER

AGAINST
Very little; the software provided a minor gripe; PC-only

VERDICT
An excellent addition to the MP3 market, the H10's versatility sends it soaring towards the top of the pile

SMALL, LIGHTWEIGHT AND an array of colours seems to be the way forward as far 'mini' MP3 players are concerned. Following Apple and Creative's efforts, iRiver turns its hand to an ultra-portable player in the form of the 5GB H10 – the smallest, lightest jukebox available with a colour display.

Weighing in at a mere 96g, and measuring just 10 x 6 x 1.5cm, the H10 feels how a mini player should do in your hand – both light and slight.

The colour screen is bright and clear, as are the menus throughout. Navigation is using iRiver's new horizontal touch pad – which isn't a million miles from the Zen Micro's slide bar, but thankfully it's somewhat more responsive and much easier to use.

Moving from music to radio, or from JPEGs to text files is simple. Files are transferred using the free iRiver Plus software, which operates on what looks like a simple drag and drop from window to window affair, but proves to be somewhat confusing. Files only transfer when restarting the software, rather than transferring instantly as they're dragged from your computer (it'sPC-only) to the H10.

Moving JPEGs and text files doesn't require the iRiver Plus software, and so proves to be much more painless than moving music files (MP3, WMA and ASF compatible).

Likeable controls and good sound – from both the built-in FM tuner and music files – add up to a desirable unit

Once on, the array of play modes for music is impressive, and just when we thought we'd fiddled enough, there is a five-bar graphic EQ to tweak, too. Sonically, the iRiver H10 is excellent. Perhaps it lacks the bass detail of the class-leading Rio Carbon, but the depth of EQ options allows you to go some way to compensate for this.

Overall, the cool 1.5in colour display, the ability to store photos, the recordable FM tuner, plus a fairly good 12 hour battery life mean the iRiver H10 has plenty to offer over its rivals.

REL's sub is another storming performer

SUBWOOFER

FOR
Articulate and musical performer; fine build and easy to use

AGAINST
Some rivals sound more muscular

VERDICT

ALL THE REL subwoofers we've reviewed recently have sounded the same. That might seem like a criticism, but it's not meant to be. It shows that the brand has engineered each product to a consistent, and judging by the performance, high standard.

Listen to any one of them, whether it's the £550 Stampede, the £800 Strata 5, or the Storm 5 here, and you hear a common sonic signature. Extra money buys greater authority and extension, but the ingredients of agility and tunefulness flow through each equally.

Tuneful? Not a word used often in subwoofer reviews, but deserved in this one. Play surround or even two-channel music using the REL's high-level input and the Storm 5 will noticeably improve scale, authority and dynamics without spoiling your system's rhythmic ability. It takes a little effort to fine-tune performance, but the informative user manual and intuitive remote make things easy.

We suspect the vast majority of subwoofer buyers are going to put one at the end of their home cinema set-up and wait to be hammered into submission. The Storm 5 is happy to comply.

The 25cm downward-firing driver lives in a sealed cabinet, and the high-quality 200w amp gives clean, fast bass with oodles of clarity and control, even when faced with the big action scenes in Matrix: Revolutions.

True, you can buy even more low-end weight for this kind of money, but such subs sound loose and blurred next to this one. REL recommends connecting its subs through both low-level and high-level inputs, so they can bolster the output of the front speakers as well as carry out conventional LFE duties. It works, too.

The Storm 5 is a fine addition to the ranks of £1000 subwoofers, and a serious rival to class-leaders such as B&W's Award-winning PV1.

More conventional-looking than the B&W PV1, but the REL is seriously impressive

Audica CS-System 1 £650

FOR

Intriguing idea that works fairly well; composed, authoritative sound; excellent standards of finish; value

AGAINST

A slight lack of stereo width

Verdict

Innovative and thoughtful: a real eye-opener of a package, and great to listen to as well

IT'S A BRAVE company indeed that tries to break into the sub/sat speaker market. KEF and Mordaunt-Short dominate the sector, with each brand offering hugely successful, highly respected and great-value speaker systems that are loved, quite rightly, by both customers and dealers alike.

But that's precisely what Audica has chosen to attempt – and we reckon this fledgling brand is poised to make quite an impact, strong competition or no. Initially, the new company has launched a three-strong model range, of which the system before you, the CS-System 1, is the entry level.

As you can see, it's a little unusual, in that (apparently) you only get three speakers for your money, but don't worry: this isn't some wacky new '3.1' system. The CS-System 1 is targeted at TV owners, and in particular flatscreen buyers, who want better sound and vision performance, without filling their homes with speakers.

It works like this: the large 'centre' speaker, the CS-LCR, houses all three front speakers. The main left and right designs are mounted at each end of the central enclosure, but aren't (as you might imagine) angled outwards. Instead, all three sets of drive units fire towards you in the conventional manner, the argument being that what you lose in stereo width, you gain in cohesion and midrange punch.

It's certainly an unusual idea, but it makes sense for a certain type of customer – and, besides, heard as a system, the concept works remarkably well. Despite the very small drive units used in each enclosure (tiny 5cm mid/bass affairs, coupled to 14mm tweeters), the Audica manages to avoid harshness or 'edge' to its sound: instead, it delivers a relatively rich, full presentation, helped in no small part by a weighty but articulate active subwoofer, the CS-Sub8. True, there is some lack of width to the front soundfield, but in the context of the system's many other sonic virtues – and in particular, in light of its entirely decorous conduct under duress, a real achievement for speakers so compact – we can be forgiving.

Certainly, there's no disputing the quality of the finish of every speaker in the package, which is exemplary. You even get all the cabling you'll need in the box. That's why, given its price, we think this system is a real winner. KEF and Mordaunt-Short watch out!

You get compact swivelling brackets for the CS-S1 rear speakers as part of the purchase price (tall pole stands are a £125 option). Meanwhile, the CS-LCR centre has its own, specially isolated stand to decouple it from any flat surface you might plonk it on. However, you can also choose from an optional wall bracket, allowing you to mount the centre either above or below your TV as you prefer. Finally, and most attractive of all, is the 'Generic' display stand (also available as a wall bracket), which can be used to support any mainstream make of plasma or LCD TV. The price? £1000 – and amazingly, that includes the price of the speakers too!

Digital socket doesn't deliver

DVD PLAYER

FOR

Comprehensive spec; great movie sound; fine build

AGAINST

The digital picture falls short of what we would expect

Verdict

Minor aspects of the Panasonic's performance are adequate, but the main event is a let-down

IF ONLY AN exhaustive list of features, a promising technical specification, and a fashionable blue light was enough to guarantee a class-leading product. If that was the case, this review would be over by now – the Panasonic would have the full complement of stars and we'd be on to something else already. But we're only too aware that a lengthy list of attributes doesn't automatically translate to a machine that can leave its rivals trailing in its wake.

Nevertheless, we were impressed enough by this DVD player's bald statistics to be quietly optimistic for its chances. After all, Panasonic has managed to shoehorn an HDMI output (promising highly accurate picture fidelity from suitably equipped displays), progressive scan ability for both PAL and NTSC sources, and decoding for Dolby Digital, DTS and DVD-Audio discs into a player that stands just 6cm high. Hey, they've even thrown in HDCD decoding for those who (a) remember what that is, and (b) are determined that their DVD player should be as flexible as possible. On paper, this seems a thoroughly sorted device; in the metal, it looks the part. And the price is certainly right.

First impressions aren't always useful, though – just ask that bloke at Decca Records who turned down The Beatles. Once connected to a suitable screen, and with the sumptuous Hero loaded into the smooth-sliding disc tray, the DVD-S97 is perplexing.

We're in no doubt as to the many benefits of the HDMI connection to picture quality, because we've tested numerous displays and players so equipped – but had this Panasonic been our first encounter with the technology, we would probably have been more equivocal.

The DVD-S97 delivers a picture with an impressive degree of stability and depth of field, but the colour palette is noticeably muted and edge-definition is more approximate than we would have liked. There are also some minor issues where motion-tracking is concerned – that's to say it doesn't track flawlessly.

> "The colours are noticeably muted and edge-definitions are more approximate than we would have wanted"

These shortcomings are put into greater perspective with a downshift (nominally, at least) to analogue component connections. The winning depth of field and stability fall away a little, but not to a disastrous degree, while the other less impressive aspects of the picture are, equally, slightly more compromised. In other words, the difference between digital and analogue just isn't as great as it should be.

Movie sound (from Hellboy, this time) is much more successful: it's hefty and distinct, with a good eye for detail and splendidly well defined dialogue. It'll come as no great revelation to learn that stereo sound is altogether less accomplished, HDCD or no HDCD. Vague imaging and a two-dimensional presentation mean this machine is not about to oust your CD player from your affections.

It's hard to get past the impression of the ball being dropped here. Everything is in place for the Panasonic DVD-S97 to set an agenda – it's well made and good-looking and, on paper at least, does everything you want a digital disc player to do, and at an aggressive price. The less critical aspects of its performance are acceptable – DVD-Audio sound is agreeable and the analogue picture is competitive, if not class-leading. But the digital picture, surely this machine's raison d'être, is mysteriously lacking.

WHY ARE DIGITAL CONNECTIONS THE ANSWER?

Digital formatting and packaging is everywhere in your home entertainment system, and nowhere more so than in your home cinema package. And yet plasma and LCD screens, digital TV and DVD have always mostly relied on analogue interfaces – inevitably, this aspect is the weakest link in your otherwise all-digital chain, and image and sound quality have been frequently compromised.

Given a screen and a DVD player fitted with the High Definition Multimedia Interface, (HDMI) though, picture information can be retained as digital data from the disc all the way to the display, which – theoretically – should improve picture quality no end. And, of course, this method uses just a single cable between the DVD and screen, cutting down on cable clutter and cost.

Yamaha MX-D1 £3000

STEREO POWER AMPLIFIER

FOR
Fabulous build; loads of power

AGAINST
It doesn't sound very good

VERDICT
The MX-D1 is packed with clever technology, but musically it's a tremendous disappointment

Use of a switch-mode power supply and digital circuits produces the slim shape

FIVE HUNDRED WATTS per channel: looks impressive on paper, doesn't it? Particularly when you consider that Yamaha's MX-D1 power amplifier isn't packed to the rafters with heatsinks, and weighs little more than a decent mid-priced integrated.

Look inside, and all is revealed: Yamaha uses a switch-mode power supply (like the subject of this month's Temptation on p80), which is smaller and lighter than the conventional arrangement of mains transformer and bank of smoothing capacitors.

That's not all: the audio circuits are digital, though the MX-D1 doesn't count as a pure digital amp because the inputs are analogue only – there are phonos and balanced XLRs.

The build quality is terrific: this unit is superbly crafted, and feels like it'll last more than a lifetime. It's fussy about mains leads, though, so chuck away the supplied cable and use a good quality specialist alternative. Merlin's Black Widow and van den Hul's Mainsstream both improve matters.

This power amplifier will play the likes of Eminem's Encore at ear-splitting levels with ease. That well-crafted casework gets warm, but control and authority remain absolute.

The presentation is forthright, kicking out the Bush-bashing Mosh with force. Midrange is a touch lean, but remains clear, so the rapid-fire lyrics are easy to follow.

However, the MX-D1 is a flawed performer. It flattens dynamics and tramples over the subtleties that communicate emotion in a voice or instrument. You know a piece of kit is in trouble when Nina Simone's Feeling Good struggles to sparkle. Add ponderous bass and a strong electronic edge at high frequencies, and stars melt away.

Yamaha has used the sales slogan Natural Sound for many years. Sadly, this power amp can't manage that.

VERDICT
A massively impressive system that would be a definite five-star product if the minor imperfections were cured

Progressive scan-enabling component connections in a £159 box

TATUNG HAS BRAVELY ventured into the world of home cinema in a box – 'brave' because this is such a tightly fought market nowadays. But pleasingly, this is a system to savour.

Out of the box, the Tatung offering feels a little cheap and lightweight, but five minutes later – all it takes to set it up properly – the system starts to show its true colours. The picture is good even via the basic RGB Scart connection. There's some noise on the screen and a little detail is lost, but it's not enough to spoil your fun.

The full potential is realised when playing a DVD through the progressive scan component connection – yes, component with prog scan for £159. Good detail and depth of field make for an impressive picture, outshining many standalone DVD players at this price.

The kit deals with motion-tracking with effortless ease, but it's not the last word in black definition and colours are a little washed out – though this actually makes a pleasant change from the overblown colours many single-unit systems offer.

The five identical satellites and passive sub are all small in stature, but the sound isn't. Though the system can sound a little muffled, it's mostly impressive, giving a decent soundstage combined with fine sonic placement. It all integrates well, and the final effect has authority.

Overall, considering the price, this is a very enjoyable little system.

We can't wait to pitch Mission's M-Cubes up against the Mordaunt-Short Genie 5.1

THE KEF EGGS have been the template for top-quality sub/sat systems over the past couple of years. Last year's Award-winning Mordaunt-Short Genie uses a similar design. But manufacturers have been striving for a package capable of taking the sub/sat format to a new level, and now this is a real possibility thanks to the stunning Mission M-Cube system.

Subwoofer aside, Mission's distinctly diminutive system throws tradition straight out of the window. Conventional drivers have been given the heave-ho in favour of NXT flat-panels. The result is one of the best sounds we've heard from a system of this type.

Before we become caught up in a whirlwind of performance praise, first a few aesthetic observations: the cuboid speakers are as cute as they come. Available in either black or ivory, each unit is made from extruded aluminium, and the solid build is impressive. Even the way the system is packaged adds to the sense of occasion. Open the lid and you're greeted with a selection of differently coloured fabric wraps that can be used to dress the speakers to suit room decor.

Then there's the issue of size. At only 9cm cubed, the satellite speakers shouldn't encroach too far into that precious living room space. Brackets are provided as standard and dedicated stands are available – though they cost a hefty £200 per pair.

In terms of looks, the subwoofer is a mirror image of the satellites. It's a compact, closed cabinet design that uses two 12.5cm bass drivers and contains a 250 watt amplifier. It's fairly small at only 32cm in each dimension.

> "The proof is always in the pudding, and these little beauties taste particularly sweet"

Aesthetics and design aside, the proof is in the pudding, and these little beauties taste particularly sweet. The flat-panel satellites sound superb, combining effortlessly to produce an enveloping and seamless soundfield. Whether it's explosive effects panning between the front loudspeakers or swirling around the rear channels, the M-Cubes plug all the gaps. During the memorable forest battle in Hero, you feel like an intrinsic part of the leafy onslaught and spectacular swordplay. The system's even tonal balance and open delivery also ensures that there's no top-end aggression or low-end lag to blight the listening experience.

In more subtle scenes, the M-Cubes prove highly versatile, and manage to change character to deliver dialogue and sound effects in a natural, controlled manner. The more intimate and graceful moments in Hero are presented with all their atmospheric and emotional integrity intact.

The subwoofer pumps out its contribution with a fine amount of weight and authority. In Alien Versus Predator, the predators embark on a spring-clean of their temple and each alien beating is delivered with real solidity, power and slam.

With two-channel music, the M-Cubes do a fair job. This system copes with The Streets' A Grand Don't Come For Free in an involving manner.

Small, perfectly formed, and with excellent sound quality, the Mission M-Cubes are just the ticket to unobtrusive home cinema heaven.

MISSION'S FLAT-PANEL SPEAKERS IMPRESS

The M-Cube's satellites are anything but conventional speakers. They are in fact Distributed Mode Loudspeakers (DMLs), using technology developed by NXT. Instead of incorporating two or three standard drive units, they consist of a single, flat, sound panel that's actively encourage to vibrate via an 'exciter.'

Its variables such as the positioning of these exciters, plus the size, shape, bending stiffness, surface density and internal damping of the panel material all affect the sound produced. The benefits of using such a composition are claimed – and after our tests we're not inclined to argue – to include a wider, non-directional spread of sound, improved integration across the frequency range – due to the absence of separate driver units – and the ability to design a slimmer and less imposing speaker. Mission has implemented this flat-panel technology extremely well.

Dual DVD player doesn't delight

DVD PLAYER

FOR
Price; wide availability

AGAINST
Below-par image; limited features, clunky transport and poorly designed remote handset

VERDICT
Don't be tempted: this Dual DVD player might be cheap, but that doesn't make it good value

ONCE, A £50 DVD player was all but guaranteed a decent review. All it had to do was work, and the price did the rest. Not any more! There has been staggering price erosion recently, with the fallout being that incredibly good performance is now available for as little as £70 from Toshiba's SD-240E. So that's the kind of competition that the Dual DVD858, an exclusive to the Asda supermarket chain, is up against.

And it's not as if the DVD858 is a terrible machine: more that it doesn't excel in any respect. Picture performance through RGB Scart (there's no component video output) is fair for the money. Watch a film like the rather bleak sea-fest that is Open Water, and the player digs up a decent amount of detail. Contrast is good and the unit doesn't lose its composure during the storm scene. Sound is respectable, too, as there's a degree of authority and fairly strong dynamics.

However, compare the Dual to the class-leaders and its shortcomings are thrown into sharp relief. It suffers from a hefty dose of picture grain and can't deliver colour with anything like the naturalness or subtlety that other players can produce. Movement isn't handled well, either, so many of the fight and web-slinging scenes from Spider-Man 2 disappoint.

The bad news doesn't stop there: the DVD858's transport is clunky, and the remote handset is one of the least intuitive we've come across in a long time. Add it all up and the result is a player that isn't very good, even taking the low cost into consideration. Shop around and you'll find the far-superior SD-240E at a very similar price.

The competition is too strong for the Dual, which doesn't excel in any area

Onkyo TX-SR702E £700

MULTICHANNEL RECEIVER

FOR
Excellent specification; mightily impressive build quality; dynamic and forceful presentation; usable remote

AGAINST
Lacks the subtlety or insight of the best

VERDICT
Well equipped and ergonomically flawless, this is just the ticket for those who like it loud all the time

ONKYO'S TX-SR702E is a very well equipped and highly specified device. THX-Select badging is to the fore, and there are seven channels of amplification, two of which can be diverted for a 'zone 2' set-up. There's upconversion from composite and S-Video to component, and a claimed total power output of 900 watts. Add in an exhaustive suite of decoding and processing options, microphone-driven automatic speaker set-up, more inputs and outputs than any rational owner will use, and a finely logical remote control and you have a machine that is, on paper, able to hold its own in what's a nightmarishly competitive sector of the market.

The auto set-up is swift and efficient – though an additional 10 minutes spent with a sound-pressure meter allows some worthwhile fine-tuning. After a dozen hours or so of running-in, the TX-SR702E reveals a movie sound that's rich in authority, drive and clarity. It's a dynamic powerhouse, and will cheerfully transmit the grandest of action-movie set-pieces in unflustered style. In fact, it's about as subtle as a bull mastiff, giving its best when the soundtrack demands power and bombast. It's not a stranger to detail, but it does its most worthwhile work when the going gets rowdy. And in two-channel mode, while music is delivered with poise, the lack of subtlety is even more pronounced.

This Onkyo has considerable strengths, but it's not quite the master of all trades that others are.

HOT PICK MP3 PLAYER

Tiny 'Shuffle' is the smallest iPod yet

JUST WHEN YOU thought the iPod family couldn't get much bigger (or should that be smaller!), Apple has unveiled the iPod Shuffle. It's a tiny, pocket-friendly piece of kit around the same size as a pack of chewing gum.

The 512MB iPod Shuffle costs £69 and can hold around 120 songs, while the £99 1GB version can take 240 tunes. It uses skip-proof flash memory rather than the hard-drive storage of its larger iPod and iPod Mini siblings.

Should you be using iTunes software on a Mac or PC, the iPod Shuffle simply connects straight to a USB port and can automatically fill itself, selecting tunes at random from either your whole music library or specific playlists. Tracks can be played in order or shuffled as you choose.

Battery life should be good for around 12 hours of playback, while a long list of accessories includes a sport case, armband holder and external battery pack.

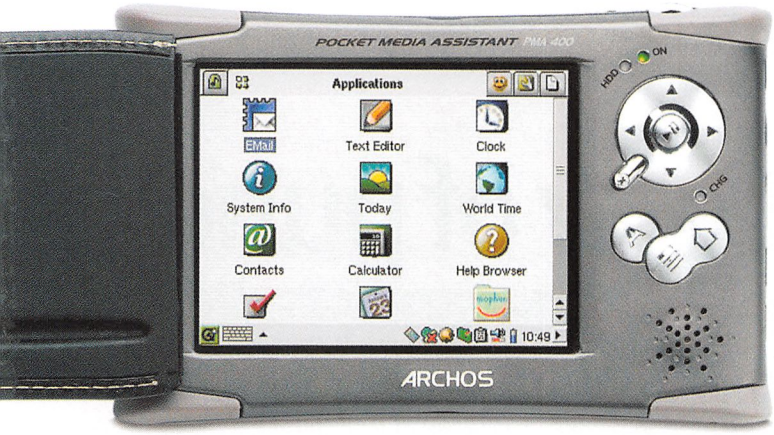
We'll be testing the iPod Shuffle in the next issue, out 10th February.

Acoustic Solutions' jukebox delivers 40GB of tunes to your hi-fi

The £200 SP150 is Acoustic Solutions' new jukebox. The system has a 40GB internal hard disk that the company claims can store up to 8000 songs depending on compression rate. The SP150 also plays standard CD discs.

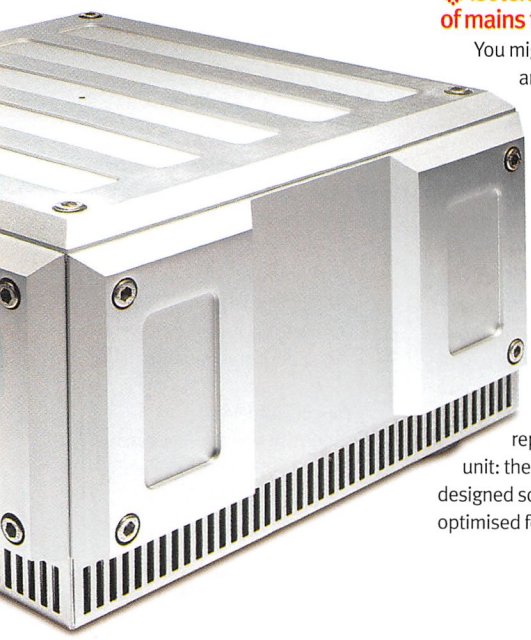
Tivoli's acclaimed PAL radio benefits from a chrome makeover

The Tivoli PAL radio is already available in 10 colours, but now you can add a chrome finish to that list. This £140 'bling' variation (a tenner more than the standard look) offers identical functionality, including FM and MW bands, together with 20 hours of use via the rechargeable battery.



The latest portable music and video solution from Archos

Archos' new Pocket Media Assistant, the PMA400 (£550) is a brand-new portable video recorder/player. It's a feature-packed piece of kit, which can record video directly from a TV, VCR or satellite receiver via its AV input, TV cradle or the optional AV travel kit. The 30GB hard disk stores up to 120 hours of TV or 60 full-length movies in MPEG-4 SP format.The PMA400 also plays MP3, WMA WAV music files and can store around 6500 songs.



Isotek expands its range of mains filtration hardware

You might think that mains filters are more hype than hi-fi, but they can make a major difference to sound quality. This new Titan mains filter (£1425) from Isotek has been designed with larger power amplifiers in mind. It has two high-grade mains outputs and the capacity to hook up an additional six units via the optional Multi-Link accessory.

Isotek has also unveiled a replacement for its Substation unit: the £1400 Nova has been designed so all available sockets are optimised for source components.

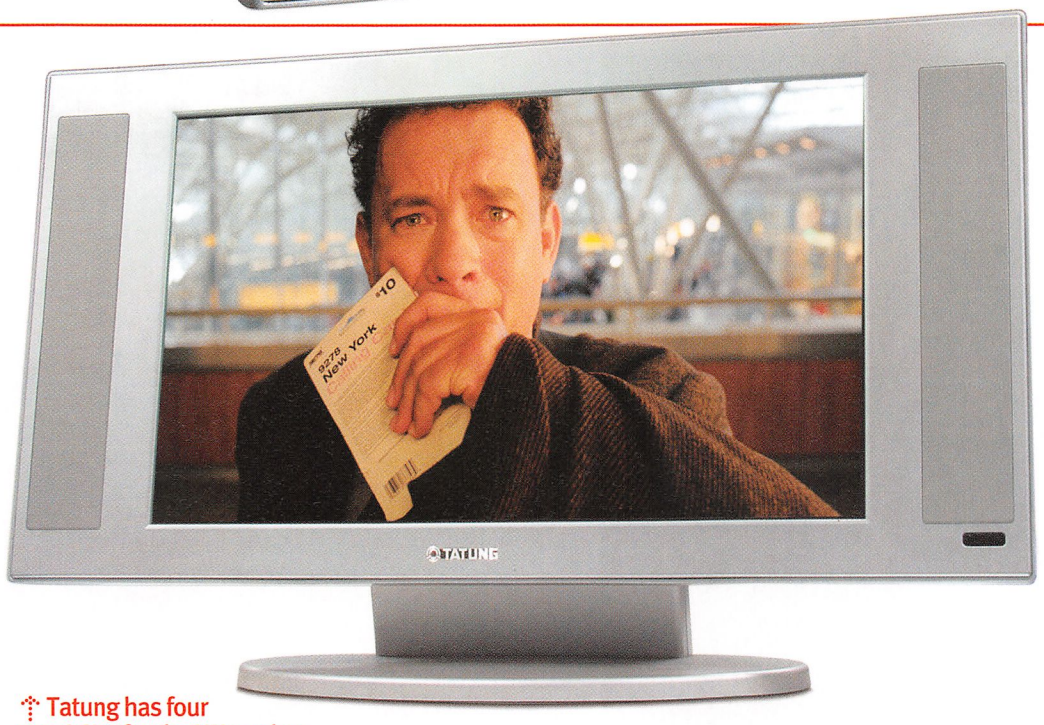
Toshiba covers its MP3 bases with its three Gigabeat players

Destined to hit UK shores this summer is Toshiba's Gigabeat digital audio player. It's available in 5GB, 20GB or 40GB capacities, which will handle around 1200, 5000 and 10,000 tracks respectively. The units come complete with recharging stand (excluding the 5GB model) and in a variety of colours. There are even plans afoot for a number of limited edition designs.

You can choose from no fewer than 28 different EQ presets, depending on your musical taste, while tracks can be added painlessly via the USB 2.0 connection. Toshiba claims battery life of up to 11 hours.

DEAL OF THE MONTH!

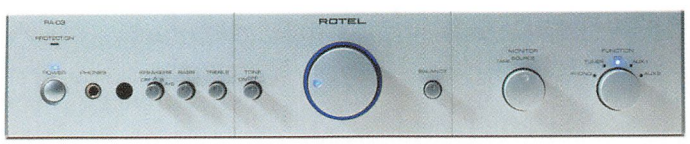
From 1st February InFocus has slashed the price of its Award-winning projector, the ScreenPlay 4805. Already a favourite of ours at its former price of £1300, the ScreenPlay's stunning picture quality is now available for a list price of £1000, and with a bit of hard bargaining you might do even better than that. It's a steal!



Tatung has four new LCDs for the UK market

Taiwanese electronics manufacturer Tatung has launched four new LCD TVs for public consumption. The new 23in, 27in, 30in (picture above) and 32in models are priced from £745 to £1408.

All the units feature a PC input for use as a computer monitor, as well as two Scart sockets, plus composite and S-Video inputs. Thanks to their 'super-fast' response time, Tatung claims it has overcome the problems of 'ghosting', which can affect LCD TVs.



Rotel adds a mid-priced integrated amp to its stable

Rotel's range of hi-fi components just gained a new addition: the £500 RA-03 claims to build on the qualities of one of our old favourites, the RA-02. The new model offers 70 watts per channel and a moving-magnet phono stage. The RA-03 is available in either silver or black, and comes with a remote control. Expect a thorough First Test soon in WHAT HI-FI? SOUND AND VISION.

KEF launches new multichannel home cinema speaker package

KEF has embarked on its latest home cinema excursion in the shape of the KHT6000 ACE. The system consists of a HTC6001 centre-channel (£250) and HTS6001 satellites (£250 each), together with optional dedicated stands (£100 each). The silver finish is designed to complement the latest-generation of interior–design friendly flatscreen TVs. The system incorporates Acoustic Compliance Enhancement technology (ACE), claimed to reduce cabinet resonance for improved realism.

THE YEAR'S HOT HARDWARE, REVEALED AT CES

iPod integration is hottest hi-fi trend

APPLE MIGHT NOT have been at CES, but its iPod's influence was everywhere – most notably in a range of products designed to integrate the MP3 player (and computer-based collections) into existing hi-fi systems.

Focal's iCub (left) looks and acts like the company's new Cub2 subwoofer, but also includes everything you need to play back digital music files – either from a connected iPod or from its integrated 60GB of storage. It will be available later this month, priced €500.

Fellow speaker specialist Monitor Audio will launch a range of products under its new trademarked iFi brand later in 2005 – look for a sneak preview at the Bristol Show this month.

Both Cambridge Audio and Arcam launched CD player/hard-drive recorders that can wirelessly hook up to your PC or Mac's online offerings. Cambridge's Azur 640H, including 160GB of music storage, will cost £500 and is due in April. Arcam's £2500 FMJ-MS250 has a 250GB drive – enough for 400 CDs stored in uncompressed format, or thousands of MP3 files.

On the portable side, Altec Lansing's new iM4 speaker system (below) claims to offer much more bass than earlier versions, for around £130.

Projector prices to fall while choice and quality increases

Projectors aim to go mainstream in 2005, with models launched to suit every pocket – almost literally in the case of Mitsubishi's DLP Pocket Projector, which measures just 12 x 5 x 10cm and weighs 400g. To add to its portability, it can run on battery power for a film-friendly 2.5 hours. Expect it later this year; US cost is $600.

Another new form factor was the projector-plus-DVD player combo, led by Optoma's DV-10 (see left), a £1000 DLP design optimised for easy use in small rooms. It'll be here later this year, along with HP's similar ep9010 Instant Cinema, which will cost around £1500.

Prepare for entry-level DLP designs – with 480p resolution – to hit price points well below the £1000 mark in 2005, while higher-resolution 576p models are also creeping below £2000.

Meanwhile, native high-definition, 720p projectors are becoming available under $10,000. Notable CES debuts included Sharp's imminent $4500 XV-Z2000 and BenQ's PE7700, which will become the cheapest HD projector around when it launches in March for $3299.

Keep your eyes open for brighter, sharper screens

Among some truly enormous flat TVs – Samsung showed a 102in plasma – were some new screens more likely to make it to the more modest UK market.

For example, Samsung was also one of several firms to add LED backlighting to its range of LCD flatscreens. LED backlighting promises better colour performance and contrast levels, as well as reduced power consumption.

Meanwhile, both JVC and Panasonic added HDMI direct-digital connectivity among a host of other upgrades to their LCD and plasma line-ups. Also promising higher-resolution sets was LG, whose other releases include LCD TVs with a built-in DVD player and plasmas incorporating hard-disk recorders.

2005 International CES

THE WORLD'S BIGGEST TECHNOLOGY SHOWCASE

The International Consumer Electronics Show (CES) takes over Las Vegas every January. This year's event was the biggest yet: more than 140,000 visitors from 115 countries saw the launch of thousands of new home entertainment products from over 2500 exhibitors . Here are some of the highlights...

Linn's launch competes with the view from the Bellagio

Serious speakers with a stylish twist

Linn's latest launch is the Komponent range, a mix-and-match 'lifestyle' line-up with floorstanding, compact and surround-channel speakers plus a subwoofer. All models use Linn's 2-K driver array, developed from the high-end technology used in its flagship designs. No pricing or availability news yet.

Monster's THX Select range has a choice of six models

A more heavyweight newcomer is Monster's six-speaker THX Select Certified range . It includes tower, compact and dipole designs that can be configured in 24 different surround sound packages, priced from $2500. It's due in the UK later this year.

Focal, meanwhile, launched the Profile 900 range, which will replace its existing Electra line-up over the next six months. Based on technology from Focal's flagship Utopia speakers, the Profile 900s include a range of surround package options, priced from just €200 for the centre and rear speakers.

Finally, Jamo confirmed a February release and pricing from £399 for its A7 slimline surround speakers, with a similar schedule for its from-£99 E6 range.

High-end hi-fi is alive and well

The world of hi-fi set up home in the Alexis Resort for CES. Arcam unveiled its fantastic new Solo (pp6-7), while Epos demonstrated its dinky £399 ELS 303 floorstanders. Creek Audio paraded its new look CD53 mk2 CD player and 5350SE mk2 integrated amplifier. The kit will cost £1200 and £1100 respectively.

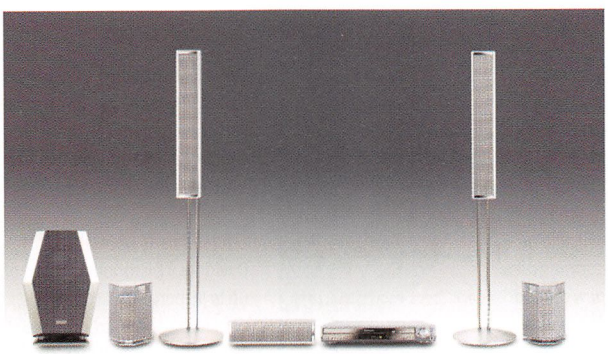
Acoustic Energy presented an on-wall speaker for the Aelite series and Sonneteer debuted its Bard range of wireless uncompressed multiroom music solutions. Italian maestro Unison Research exhibited its latest gorgeous valve amps, while Revolver teamed up with Nightingale to demonstrate its AVF super-slim floorstanders.

Back in the main hall, Krell revealed its stunning new Evolution series (pictured) – but with the pre/power amp combination costing $75,000 we can only hope for a collapse in the value of the dollar...

Wireless home cinema and more from Panasonic

Panasonic has packed a host of technologies into its latest home cinema in a box system. The SC-HT830V (below) includes a five-disc DVD/CD changer, plus a VCR, active subwoofer, adjustable floorstanding front speakers and wireless-ready rears. It's launched in the US in April, priced $500, with the wireless upgrade kit costing a further $200 – look for a UK release in the summer.

Panasonic will also add larger hard-drives and greater disc compatibility to its DVD recorders (above), while BenQ's new DE350 DVD recorder will be available with up to a 400GB hard drive, plus possible wi-fi support for piping programmes around your home.



MORE SHOW HIGHLIGHTS

YAMAHA WINS BEST OF SHOW

Yamaha's YSP-1 Digital Sound Projector claims to offer effective surround sound from a single, slimline unit designed to sit under your TV or projector screen. The YSP-1 houses no less than 42 digital ampl, 40 full-range drivers and two woofers. It'll be available later this month, priced £800.

SENNHEISER'S 2005 'PHONES

Updates to Sennheiser's headphone range include two extra noise-cancelling options. The £80 PXC-150 and £130 PXC-300 will sit either side of the PXC-250 folding design – a five-star winner at £90.

MONSTER'S FURNITURE FIX

Is it a Tardis? No, its a combined kit-rack and disc storage solution from Monster's new M-Design range of hi-fi and home

NXT GOES FLAT OUT FOR SOUND

NXT's flat-panel speaker technology was shown in yet more new incarnations, including a 50in rear-projection TV where the entire screen functioned as the centre speaker in a surround set-up. Expect real-life implementations during 2005.

SONY'S GIANT JUKEBOX

No news yet on whether Sony's amazing DVP-CX995V audio/video jukebox – which holds up to 400 DVD or SACD discs – will make it to the UK. We hope so!

NO.345 ONE-MAKE HOME CINEMA

Seeking out that system synergy

Does buying a matching DVD player and receiver give you a boost in performance as well as style?

What's new?

Of these pairings, only the Onkyo and Sony couples are entirely new to us. On top of that, the Sony receiver uses a newish idea – digital amplification allows a much tidier profile than that of competitors. Otherwise, Harman-Kardon's glitzy DVD31 is the other untested product here. The Pioneer combination is the only one that's been reviewed before – all the other products have been tested individually, so the question of system synergy is the important new variable.

What do you get for your money?

All these DVD players will function as CD players, too – some will also play DVD-Audio or SACD multichannel music discs, or both. You're also buying a receiver – that's to say, an amplifier that incorporates a radio – that will, with the exception of the Sony device, serve as amplification for as many audio and video components as you might realistically require.

Will it fit with your system?

These pairings are systems: all they require is a suitable surround sound speaker package. (For all solutions great and small, see the Buyer's Guide, from p99.) If you've a bunch of extra equipment you need to amplify, the Sony combination might not be ideal, but all the others should cope admirably. If you want to use a record player, you'll need an off-board phono stage.

What are we looking for?

In this instance, we're not only looking at individual items' performance (DVD players' format compatibility, picture and sound quality, receivers' decoding ability, sound quality and flexibility), but at the intangible cooperation and understanding between pairings. Two products rated highly on an individual basis might not gel as successfully as two slightly less well regarded items.

Our ratings explained

Though the individual components receive ratings, the headline rating is for the performance of the pairing. Five-star combos have the best picture and sound quality, build, format-compatibility and flexibility. Four-star set-ups don't quite scale the same heights, but are superior in areas that make them worth auditioning. Three stars indicates something a little more workaday, though in a test like this (with so many variables), they shouldn't be dismissed out of hand. Dismissing two- and one-star combinations is safer – they'll lack much or all of what we deem essential performance.

For verdicts on other DVD players and multichannel receivers, turn to our Buyer's Guide starting on p99 ···>

THE CONTENDERS

CAMBRIDGE AUDIO Azur 540D/540R £200/£250
Cambridge's Azur kit is some of our favourite budget hi-fi gear – so are the AV products as good?

DENON DVD-1910/AVR-1905 £230/£300
Recent home cinema equipment from Denon has impressed us loads, but is there the synergy?

HARMAN-KARDON DVD31/AVR130 £400/£350

ONKYO DV-SP502E/ TX-SR602E £300/£450
Not the cheapest pairing in the test, so the Onkyo kit must achieve superior performance to compete

PIONEER DV-575A/VSX-D814 £150/£300

SONY DVP-NS955/ STR-DB900 £230/£400

YAMAHA DVD-S550/RX-V650 £130/£460
Though they're not the closest match visually, we have high hopes for product synergy here

QED

This Cambridge Audio pairing hits way above the weight of the individual two components

With a DVI-equipped DVD and a Product of the Year receiver we expected sparks to fly

AZUR 540D DVD PLAYER	★★★★☆	£200
AZUR 540R RECEIVER	★★★★☆	£250

FOR

Brawny, realistic 6.1 sound; colourful, detailed picture; easy to set up and use

AGAINST

Picture contrast and stability could be better; sounds too forceful at the limit

VERDICT

Despite lacking a few features, this combo is among the best in value for money terms – demands an audition

HERE, WE HAVE two worthwhile products that have received solid four-star reviews in the recent past. So, it must be a four-star pairing then? Well, not necessarily.

Our October 2004 review of Cambridge Audio's well sorted 540R receiver explained the virtues of its ebullient sonic signature, and in this company, that's all the more pronounced. But where we had previously whinged about relative lack of features (no video signal upconversion, mainly), the 540R looks unarguable value when stacked up against these rivals. This is a properly made 6.1 receiver that packs 80 watts RMS across each channel, includes Dolby Digital EX and DTS ES and comes bundled with by far the most elegant remote handset here.

The argument for the 540D DVD player is even more persuasive. Since last April's First Test, Cambridge has shaved a very useful £50 off the price, making the 540D much better value. Good-looking, decently specified and effective, the Cambridge is now a compulsory audition. But helpful as it is, it takes more than a price-cut to drag two four-star products up to the five-star level – it takes synergy, and that's what these Cambridge Audio devices have in spades.

Working in tandem, they turn in a performance that belies their total price. With the glorious Hero loaded in the DVD tray, pictures are smooth, detailed and lustrous. It's a devilishly testing movie, and the 540D can't supply the rock-solid stability of Pioneer's DV-575A, and isn't immune to some minor picture noise in the most difficult scenes, but it's nonetheless a capable performance – depth of field is especially impressive.

Sonically, the Hero soundtrack is delivered in taut and punchy style – effects-steering can be a touch jagged, but the detail, insight and sheer drive on offer render such minor complaints all but redundant. The soundstage is deep, wide and tall, and definition is first-rate.

When you consider the DVD-A performance, which is sprightly, attacking and well separated, it's obvious these two products work extremely well together – they share a common interest in the more brisk aspects of film and music.

The fact that this Cambridge pairing is yours for just £450 means it's difficult to marshal a coherent argument against it. It's not a rule you should apply to your household budget, but in this instance, two fours make five.

Denon system £530

DVD-1910 DVD PLAYER	★★★★☆	£230
AVR-1905 RECEIVER	★★★★★	£300

FOR

Receiver is simply the best around at the money; DVI-D pictures are top-class

AGAINST

Analogue pictures are average; DVD player isn't the quietest in operation

VERDICT

The receiver can't quite reflect enough of its glory on to the DVD player: as a combo, it falls just short

OUR 2004 AWARDS issue was, of course, an essential and riveting read – but we'd be the first to concede that there was a certain predictability about Denon's phenomenal showing in the Multichannel Amps and Receivers category. Our Product of the Year, was this AVR-1905 – here, partnered here with the only DVI-equipped DVD player in the test. This must make the Denon combo the pre-test favourite.

The Denon AVR-1905 is still the same engaging and extraordinarily capable home cinema receiver we rhapsodised about in the Awards issue. It's well made, generously specified (composite-to-S-Video video upconversion is a bonus), and sounds plenty more expensive than it is. Effects-steering is prompt and assured, with none of the just-in-time breathlessness some rivals introduce.

Low-frequency stuff is taut and well-timed – in fact, timing is top-class across the frequency range, and the Denon keeps a close watch on the fine details even as it paints a big, broad sonic picture. If space allowed, we would extol its virtues further; suffice to say, it didn't fluke that Product of the Year Award.

When attached to a screen with the appropriate input, the DVD-1910 produces an excellent picture via its DVI output – that's exactly as it should be. Depth of field, detail retrieval and colour fidelity are especially impressive, while motion-tracking is rock-solid and stable.

Skin-tones are accomplished, too textures being beautifully three-dimensional. The overall picture is graceful, neutral and natural. If you own a suitably equipped display, you know where to spend your money.

If, however, you're one of the vast majority of people who doesn't have a screen with a digital picture input, you'll need to consider the analogue picture quality – and here the DVD-1910 falls off the pace.

Using the component outputs, compared to the less expensive Pioneer DV-575A, the DVD-1910 has an underwhelming picture: it introduces noticeable grain and glitter to complex scenes, while edges fray and colours flare. Dark scenes are especially compromised. That £230 price look high, especially as the lack of six-channel outputs means there's no multichannel music capability.

Pound for pound, this receiver is a superstar, but the DVD player only cuts it as a digital device. So as a pairing, they are slightly flawed.

Cambridge Audio

The glittering array of cool-blue backlighting isn't enough to disguise the excessive price

Competent in many areas, we feel this isn't a pairing that's going to set the world on fire

DVD31 DVD PLAYER	★★☆☆☆	£400
AVR130 RECEIVER	★★★☆☆	£350

FOR

Plenty of drive; fine all-round picture performance; idiosyncratic lookers

AGAINST

Seem recklessly overpriced in the quality-per-quid stakes

VERDICT

Despite the receiver's paucity of spec, both boxes perform well – but the joint-highest price? No!

IT SEEMS THAT Harman-Kardon is attempting to corner the market in cool-blue lighting. The most expensive pairing in this test is lit up like the Conservative Party's Christmas tree.

It's an ostentatious display, and made us apprehensive that the H-K combination would be all style and no substance. The relative poverty of the AVR130's specification (despite being one of the priciest here, there's no 6.1 surround sound) only adds to the initial feeling of disquiet.

Fire the AVR130 up, though, and there's plenty of substance to call on. It's blessed with a chunky, forthright sound, zealously transmitting the dynamic highlights of films such as Hellboy, and revelling in the tub-thumping sound, driving things forward remorselessly. Dialogue can become a little overcrowded and undemonstrative but, in terms of effects steering and placement, the AVR130 is right on the money.

The quieter and subtler moments of Hero, though, are rather flattened, with the H-K seemingly waiting for the next opportunity to show off its fundamentally punchy character.

The skinny DVD31 contributes a picture of smooth neutrality via component video outputs, and retrieves commendable amounts of fine detail. Depth of field, too, is a match for the best DVD players here, and the H-K also keeps admirable grip of fast-moving images. It wasn't the keenest to load and play DVD-Audio discs, at least some of the time, but that's a very minor gripe compared to all the things this DVD player does right.

Performance is emphatically not the issue where the DVD31's miserable star-rating is concerned. Instead, the biggest hurdle Harman-Kardon will have to overcome is the eyebrow-raising price it wishes to sell the device for. No matter that it's a well made, handsome and accomplished machine – Pioneer's DV-575A is every bit as proficient and well screwed together, yet costs much less than half the price.

The problem here isn't the slight lack of agility where the sound is concerned, or the bling of the fascia – it's that the performance just doesn't go anywhere near justifying the price. The H-K pairing look distinctive on the shelf, are passably well specified and, on paper, shape up to be very competitive. In practice, they struggle to offer credible value compared to the Cambridge Audio combo and are made to look very ordinary by team Yamaha.

DV-SP502E DVD PLAYER	★★★☆☆	£300
TX-SR602E RECEIVER	★★★☆☆	£450

FOR

Unburstable build quality; fine picture detail and stability; smooth sound

AGAINST

Undemonstrative and unloveable, the Onkyo combo is a diverting also-ran

VERDICT

The receiver can't quite reflect enough of its glory on to the DVD player: as a pairing, it falls just short

FOLLOWING THE LEAD of the most recent Onkyo products, the TX-SR602E and DV-SP502E are indulgently constructed and feature a kind of Mr Incredible chin as a design 'feature'. They look distinctive and expensive (but then, in this context, they are expensive) and will stand out on the showroom floor. But all this counts for nothing, of course, if the performance doesn't cut it.

The TX-SR602E receiver is a bulky and imposing machine, but it's a doddle to set up. Like a few of these receivers, it's happy to calibrate itself to your room via a microphone-based procedure which, in terms of its effectiveness, falls somewhere between the Pioneer's slight proximity and the Yamaha's painstaking accuracy.

It's a fast and painless – two words, coincidentally, that could easily apply to the sound the receiver produces. It's doubtful the producers of Hellboy intended it to sound smooth, polite and undemonstrative, but that's exactly how the Onkyo transcribes it. There's enough detail retrieved, and precise effects-steering, but the receiver lacks dynamic reach and attack. Even the big set-piece brouhaha with the 100-year-old Nazis and Rasputin (you must see this film) is rendered insipidly, with low-frequency bombast hinted at, rather than explicitly relayed.

It's a not dissimilar story where the DVD player is concerned. The picture is stable, detailed and poised, with gratifyingly little picture noise when using the component video outputs, and the depth of field is a match for the best here – bear in mind, though, that the best here (the Pioneer) costs half the price of this Onkyo.

The colour palette lacks a little vibrancy and vitality, to an extent that can't be put down to understatement. The red and orange tones of Hero, so excruciating via the Sony DVD player, are muted and over-washed here. The DV-SP502E decodes multichannel music, both DVD-A and SACD, and while that's a useful feature, the receiver works its reverse magic and robs recordings of their dynamic reach and range. In addition, high frequencies are a little bright, which the toe-tapping timing can't compensate for. There's also an intrusive noise from the DVD player when it changes chapters.

Those of a nervous disposition will be thankful for the receiver's over-stated refinement, but everyone else will realise there's better sound, and equally good picture performance, to be had elsewhere, and for less money.

Pioneer's universal disc player is a steal at £150, yet the receiver can't match its talent

Hard, uncompromising receiver sound and overblown DVD colours don't really impress

DV-575A DVD PLAYER	★★★★★	£150
VSX-D814 RECEIVER	★★★★☆	£300

FOR

Universal DVD player works a treat; ease of receiver set-up; upfront sound

AGAINST

The receiver can sound tiresomely forward; steering can be approximate

VERDICT

All the DVD player's good work is undone by an over-confident, under-achieving receiver

IN COMMON WITH several firms, Pioneer has had much more success with its DVD players than with its receivers. This pairing is a case in point: the VSX-D814 receiver is a capable, though hardly class-leading, device. The DV-575A, on the other hand, proudly continues Pioneer's record of turning out excellent DVD players at startlingly low prices.

The VSX-D814 comes across as a confused design. The crowded fascia and hopelessly overburdened remote control point to a set-up procedure from hell, but the inclusion of a plug-in microphone that automatically adjusts speaker size, delay, distance and level makes short, if not absolutely accurate, work of the set-up.

And the split personality extends to the sound: while lacking nothing in authority, scale or drive, the Pioneer is short on finesse and shorter still on precision. Effects are flung from speaker to speaker with admirable speed but a lamentable lack of refinement, imbuing even less demonstrative scenes in Hero with a sense of barely contained vigour. In some cases this strident presentation is exactly what's called for. When it's not, the VSX-D814 reminds us of nothing more than the proverbial bull in a china shop.

The DV-575A DVD player, by way of contrast, is a focused and single-minded machine. It has a winning way with any of the numerous disc formats it can play, but it's as a DVD-Video player that it's at its most impressive. The pictures it produces via component connections are alive with detail, even in complicated or murky scenes, and contrast is the best here. To this already promising list we can add impressive skin-tones, cast-iron motion-tracking, and a subtle, broad and lustrous colour palette. With smooth, stable edge-definition, too, the 575A comprehensively belies its modest price.

The DVD player even manages to tame some of the receiver's baser instincts when playing multichannel music: DVD-As are relayed with poise, realism, and a good dose of well-timed musicality.

It's perhaps inevitable that the VSX-D814 is happier with noisier, more blunt material and can rather bludgeon more delicate stuff; these Pioneer boxes don't have the coherence and unity of purpose as the similarly-priced Cambridge items.

However, if the receiver could match the ability of the DVD player, we'd be looking at a Supertest winner.

DVP-NS955 DVD PLAYER	★★★★☆	£230
STR-DB900 RECEIVER	★★★☆☆	£400

FOR

Detailed picture and sound; unusual and usably small receiver; well made

AGAINST

Sound can be painfully hard; colours overblown; complex speaker set-up

VERDICT

The fierce digital sound didn't surprise us too much, but the humdrum overall performance did

Out of the box and in the metal, the regulation Sony trademarks of hefty construction and high perceived value are present and correct. The price is towards the top end of the group, though – so the performance will have to match.

The STR-DB900 receiver is a tidy and robust alternative to the hulking great boxes on test here, thanks in the main to the digital aspect of its amp. However, the fact that it has only two auxiliary stereo inputs means that if you want to use it as the centre of your hi-fi system, that system had best not comprise more than two additional sources (apart from DVD and the built-in receiver).

Most surprisingly, and most unlike Sony, is the truly Byzantine test-tone and speaker-level set-up rigmarole; equally unusual is the nasty and uncooperative remote control. No matter – we finally got the better of the set-up procedure to be presented with a sound that's classically digital in its fierce, forward and forceful delivery. There's no lack of detail or insight, but the sound relayed is ragged, jagged and altogether harder than we'd like – no amount of soothing running-in can calm this amp's stridency.

The picture from the DVP-NS955 DVD player is just as forthright – the palette is a wide-ranging one, but the fine line between vibrant and lurid is crossed early and decisively: the many red and orange tones in Hero are almost painful in their intensity.

Black shading is more successful, and detail in less overblown scenes is excellent. This movie has provoked all these DVD players to one degree or another, and the Sony is no exception: there's some shimmer and noise in the most grandstanding scenes, but it's among the most stable and composed machines here. Motion-tracking, too, is solid and smooth, while the traditional Sony strength of over-engineered build quality is well represented.

There isn't any provision for DVD-Audio, but the unit has a six-channel output for multichannel SACD sound, and at the risk of damning with faint praise, it's no more abrasive than the movie sound.

Overall, this is a disappointing and surprisingly un-Sonylike combo. There are far better pairings on sale.

For sound, vision and value, there's nothing in this Supertest that matches the Yamahas

Yamaha system £590

DVD-S550 DVD PLAYER	★★★★★	£130
RX-V650 RECEIVER	★★★★☆	£460

FOR
Authoritative, detailed sound; smooth, natural pictures; build; easy set-up

AGAINST
Lack of multichannel music ability; don't really look particularly similar

VERDICT
A very strong performance from a pair of confident devices that gel sonically like no others here

WHILE MANY OF the pairings here look like two halves of the same whole, the Yamaha DVD player and receiver share only a passing resemblance – if it wasn't for the manufacturer's badge in the top left-hand corner, you wouldn't know for sure that they had anything in common at all. The fact that they work from the same remote is a convenience factor not to be ignored, but let's not forget that performance is our major concern.

Of the receivers that have mic-driven auto set-ups, the RX-V650 is by far the most accomplished: once the machine had done its thing, we found there were only infinitesimal adjustments to be made manually. With Hellboy, it has a dynamic, detailed sound with real authority.

It might lack the ultimate finesse of Denon's AVR-1905, but the sound is presented in an agile, balanced and weighty manner, and dialogue delivered with crystal-clear clarity. It's a big soundstage that the RX-V650 conjures, well defined and rigidly separated, while the low frequency stuff that's so essential to the home cinema experience is kept on a taut, elastic leash. As it's the most expensive receiver in this test, we were expecting a competitive performance and comprehensive specification, and the Yamaha doesn't disappoint.

Despite last year's enthusiastic appraisal of the DVD-S550, we were still pleasantly surprised by this inexpensive (cheapest in the test, in fact) machine's gutsy performance. It's giving away specification left, right and centre – there's no DVD-A or SACD ability – but where it really counts, in picture quality, the Yamaha holds its head up.

It gives you a detailed image, with natural colour balance and unflappable motion-tracking. It also handles colour and contrast gradation confidently. While there's the inevitable picture noise in some testing scenes (Hero, again), the DVD-S550 introduces less grit than most devices here. In fact, our biggest gripe with the DVD player concerns the scant number of controls on the fascia – like everyone else, we use the remote control 99.9% of the time, but there's nothing like a lack of control from the front panel to make you want to operate a player that way.

These Yamahas get on famously. As individual components they were always in the running when Awards time came around; as a pairing, they knock socks off the competition.

WHAT IF I DON'T CARE IF MY DVD PLAYER AND RECEIVER ARE THE SAME BRAND?

We pick our favourite two products and match them up

Quite apart from the aesthetic cohesion of a one-make system (and we never underestimate how important that is to a good many punters), the convenience of a common remote control is enough to sell plenty of people on the one-make idea. But if your artistic sensibilities aren't outraged by the idea of the mix'n'match approach, what are the best machines in this sizeable group?

Well, the Denon AVR-1905 didn't take its Product of the Year gong by accident – pound-for-pound, it offers performance that can't be bettered. The lengthy features list, classy brushed-metal finish and logical remote control all add to an air of class that only the Yamaha RX-V650, at a cost of another 50 percent, comes close to matching.

The best DVD player here, too, is nothing like the most expensive. Pioneer continues its extraordinary show of form with the outstanding DV-575A – for just £150 you get a truly universal disc player that doesn't put a foot wrong. Picture, sound, build and flexibility are all first-rate and it's laughably easy to use.

These two won't look as attractive on the shelf as a one-make system and the remote count has doubled, too. But if you're not tied to a one-make solution, this £450 pair is the way to go.

Pioneer's DV-575A and the Denon AVR-1905 are a formidable pairing

WOULD SIR LIKE SPEAKERS WITH THAT?

A full-size speaker package for top-quality sounds...

Whatever you choose as regards the visual coherence of your system, you could do a lot worse than Wharfedale's fine-value Diamond 9 HCP package. It's no looker, but for £500 it presents a brilliantly unified sound. The sub integrates seamlessly with the five satellites, and the centre channel is just big enough to allow dialogue space to breathe. It's capable of big dynamic shifts and can present a convincingly three-dimensional sound. And it's discreet, well made and a piece of cake for even the weediest amplifier to drive. You'll get a sound that belies the price.

Not the most compact or good-looking package, but the Wharfedales still stun

And the alternative choice for style gurus out there...

You might not want bulky wooden speakers dotted around your ultra-modern (or otherwise) home, in which case treat yourself to some covetable, shiny, slinky speakers. Should that be the case, our compact speaker packages Product of the Year is Mordaunt-Short's £800 Genie. The five speakers are beautifully made, eminently discreet, and produce an even-handed, deft and accurate sound. The equally shiny, but slightly less compact, subwoofer is similarly accomplished, contributing a winning combination of impact and speed.

If you want compact, sleek and modern, then Mordaunt-Short's Genies are magic

They might not be the most perfect aesthetic match in the test, but there's no doubting their supreme class

IF SOMETHING'S WORTH saying, it's worth saying over and over again: it doesn't automatically follow that specific individual items, no matter how well regarded, will reflect their glory onto less capable machines. Of the seven systems here, the Denon pairing featured a reigning Product of the Year and yet lost out to a Cambridge Audio combination that, individually, couldn't muster a five-star review. The same Denon assembly, in fact, couldn't overhaul a Yamaha set-up that faired no better when reviewed separately.

How does this come about? It's all tied in with the way the DVD player and receiver complement each other. Of course, there are exceptions: the Harman/Kardon duo, for example, are on perfectly good terms with each other, but that doesn't alter the fact that the DVD player is ambitiously priced and the receiver under-equipped.

To a lesser extent, this is true of the Onkyo pair, too – the receiver's not short of facilities (though it is short of personality) and the DVD player's competent enough, but a second glance at the price tag tells you everything you need to know about its chances in this company.

> "This Yamaha receiver has enough inputs and outputs to be capable of acting as the engine for a whole home cinema entertainment system"

The Sony combination is a more realistic proposition, even ignoring the receiver's trade-off between auxiliary inputs and physical size. There's an obvious unity of purpose here, and it's an admirably confident presentation, but there are too many flaws to the performance – especially where the receiver is concerned.

Of the real contenders, it's the Pioneer that is next to be dismissed. The DVD player is extraordinarily accomplished, given the price, but it's a pity the accompanying receiver can't match its surefooted presentation.

The Denon pairing is the Pioneer's mirror image – the receiver is, as our Awards issue pointed out, approaching supernatural value for money, but the DVD player is, unhappily, only average where analogue pictures are concerned. Bear in mind, though, that if you have a DVI-D or HDMI-ready display, the Denon should be your system of choice.

The two five-star systems demonstrate the greatest synergy. The Cambridge duo shows an almost telepathic harmony of purpose, generating a vivid and exciting sound to accompany a smooth and radiant picture. It's a well made, easy to use and handsome set-up, but the major reason it picks up the five stars is that each item complements the other so well. In value for money terms, this system finishes second in a photo-finish.

The winner by a short head, then, is Yamaha's RX-V650 and DVD-S550 combo. Even ignoring the lack of DVD-A/SACD multichannel compatibility, the strength of the Yamahas' all-round game is enough to claim top spot. The receiver is no more capable than Denon's AVR-1905, and the DVD player can't overhaul Pioneer's DV-575A where picture quality is concerned, but these two machines work superbly in unison, and they offer a home cinema presentation of rare accord. In addition, the receiver is capable of acting as the engine for an entire home entertainment set-up.

PERFECT PARTNERS

WE BUILD A TOP SYSTEM AROUND OUR WINNER

WE'VE LABOURED the point, so it's to be hoped that, by now, you're comfortable with our contention that system synergy will make or break the chances of what might, in isolation, be considered class-leading equipment. In other words, all bets are off until your chosen products are heard working in concert.

To partner our winning Yamaha system we've chosen Epos' superb ELS3 5.1 speaker package, which swept the opposition aside in a Group Test in January this year, proving comprehensively to be the perfect price-comparable partner for our winning Yamaha set-up.

> "The Epos system gives the Yamaha receiver full rein to show off its expansive sound"

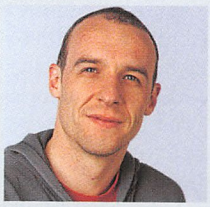
Despite their rather homely appearance, the ELS3 5.1s allow the Yamaha receiver full rein to demonstrate its expansive and detailed soundstage. The deeply impressive subwoofer allows the ample low-frequency presence to be essayed with all the clout, grip and drive you could ever desire.

The splendid centre channel speaker ensures that dialogue is crisp, coherent and well defined. The Yamaha receiver and Epos package sound made for each other.

That leaves the DVD player to be paired off. There's any number of screens and TVs that have the necessary socketry to make the most of the DVD-S550's progressive scan potential, even a few CRTs. But we want to make a selection that not only represents great value for money, but looks the part in the context of a nice new home cinema system. Toshiba's accomplished 32WL48 LCD TV fits the bill nicely – it undercuts its rivals significantly, and as January's First Test confirmed, it combines sturdy build quality and fine picture fidelity to winning effect. It also boasts an extensive range of inputs, making connectivity a simple matter of choosing a suitable interconnect.

On that subject, there's no more effective analogue link between DVD player and screen that QED's Qunex P-CV1 component cable – well, there is, but they're more than twice the QED's £45 price. And to connect the DVD player to the receiver, look no further than Ixos' splendid XHD-608-100. Yes, it's £50, but the refined muscularity it brings to sound means it's worth every penny. Connect the receiver to the speakers with Chord Company's Carnival Silver speaker – high-quality for just £6 per metre.

WHAT OUR TESTERS SAID...



"Though the Yamaha and Cambridge systems are the most cohesive pair on show here, anyone with a DVI-D or HDMI-equipped screen should beat a path to their Denon dealer – except perhaps owners of the Toshiba 32WL48."

Simon Lucas
Staff writer

"There's practical as well as aesthetic benefit to buying components from the same manufacturer – one less remote to clutter up your living room. The receiver remotes of all these also control the DVD player – some handle a TV, too."

Clare Newsome
Editor

"It's amazing how quickly prices have eroded in this part of the market. A year ago the likes of the Harman-Kardon and Onkyo would have been competitive. The performance and pricing of their rivals means that's no longer true."

Yamaha DVD-S550/RX-V650

£590 ★★★★★ March 2005

What more is there to be said about this pairing? On their own, they're a cracking couple of products; together they have enough synergy to leave goods that look far better on paper in their substantial wake. Offering the convenience of one remote, similar styling, and a single point of purchase, this is our favourite one-make system.

SPEAKER SYSTEM

Epos ELS3 5.1

£956 ★★★★★ January 2005

They might look like traditional, rather staid loudspeakers on the outside, but as soon as you hook them up to some appropriate electronics, you realise this is a superbly implemented design. Incredibly tight timing and drive grab your attention immediately, while excellent integration ensures the move experience never falters.

"Toshiba's 32in LCD fits the bill nicely: sturdy build, fine picture, for a great price"

32IN LCD TV
Toshiba 32WL48
£2000 ★★★★★ January 2005

Despite the fact that we reckon the HDMI performance of this television could be better, this isn't a concern using the Yamaha DVD player, because you'll be feeding this stylish set via component inputs. And can it do the business? Oh yes it can: superb picture, decent sound, and – most importantly – it's terrific value.

REAR-PROJECTION DLP TVs £2000-£3500

A massive 50in screen for half the price of a plasma

These super-size TVs have picture-quality that's not far short of a conventional CRT, and better than a plasma

What's new?

These affordable, larger-than-life, rear-projection DLP television are. DLP technology is already commonly used in home-cinema projectors and is now making an appearance in televisions. We've got four such models lined up, all determined to impress us with their screen size, image quality and attractive prices: Samsung, Thomson, Themescene and Toshiba are all in the ring.

What do you get for your money?

How does a 50in screen appeal? Three of these sets have such a monster screen, while the Toshiba is a smidgen smaller, with a 46in diagonal. Besides integrated speakers, stand and remote control, all these sets are High-Definition ready – each model has a screen resolution of 1280 x 768 pixels. All have an HDMI or a DVI input – for use with a compatible DVD player, to transfer data in an uncompressed digital form – as well as component inputs and Scarts, giving the potential for a real visual treat. The drawback is that they're not flat like a plasma, but the depth of the largest here is only 40cm, so they're nothing like as bulky as an equivalent CRT television might be.

Will it fit into your system?

If you're looking to replace your tired old telly with something more substantial, then there's plenty to admire in these four sets. They're also a fine alternative to investing in a standalone projector and screen, since they incorporate much of the same technology in a slightly more compact and practical package. The fact that they're all capable of accepting a High-Definition picture is a bonus, and if your DVD player features a DVI or HDMI output, then you should take advantage of these sets' connections. Beware, though, that these are very big screens, so make sure your room can accommodate them comfortably.

What are we looking for?

Sets that achieve a quality picture at an attractive price. Off-air TV and DVD images must have detail and contrast, a natural colour balance, and we want the minimum of visual nasties such as motion-smearing or digital artefacts. Build, styling, sound and features are also factors, but secondary to picture quality.

Our star ratings explained

Five-star sets offer superb value for money and peerless video/audio quality. Four-star models deliver good performance in most areas, but lack the outright ability of the class-leaders. Three stars indicate an average performer that doesn't especially impress in any area, and two mean it's a relatively poor proposition. Don't bother giving a one-star product a second glance.

THE CONTENDERS

SAMSUNG SP50L7HX — £3500

The striking stand makes and hefty price tag make for an interesting prospect, but how good is the image quality going to be?

THEMESCENE RD50 — £2000

Compared to the Samsung, this 50in set looks to be incredibly cheap, but will it have good enough picture quality?

THOMSON 50DLY — £2500

This TV is the latest addition to Thomson's Scenium range, and is a stylish 50in television that promises much

TOSHIBA 46WM48 — £2000

The last of our rear-projection DLP televisions is another bargain set, but this time you 'only' get a 46in screen size

Samsung SP50L7HX £3500

FOR
Truly outstanding pictures with DVD playback; eerily realistic depth of field; attractive styling

AGAINST
Stand lacks storage space

VERDICT
If you've got a living room large enough to accommodate it, then this high-quality 50in TV is fantastic value

HAVE A MOP and bucket on hand when you're unpacking this stunner from Samsung, because you could be slipping around in your own drool! The 50in SP50L7HX is a beauty: a slick, gloss-black picture frame extending outwards to incorporate the set's two 30-watt speakers.

And then there's the stand: it's a beautifully curvy design, but – boring pragmatists among you – note that it does take up quite a lot of space and there aren't any shelves, so you might need to fork out for a rack, too.

All the sockets are round the back of the stand's curvaceous column. Complementing the three Scart sockets is a set of component video inputs and – more importantly – an HDMI connection. This last interface accepts all-digital video and audio from compatible DVD players.

The visual result is breathtaking. Viewing via the component video inputs produces enjoyable enough images, but using the HDMI input really blows your mind. Picture quality is sensational. Spin Star Wars: Episode II and you're presented with a sublime picture of cinema-like proportions. It feels as though you've been airlifted from the safety of your own sofa and dumped in the middle of the Clone Wars. Images boast a fantastic sense of detail combined with an immersive depth of field. Fast movement is handled with precision and poise as the Republic's ships shoot across your screen at an unrelenting rate of knots.

> "Viewing via component inputs is enjoyable enough, but HDMI performance stuns"

Try Shrek 2-style animation and you're given a massively impressive colour range, combining vivid hues with more subtle shades.

The TV tuner does a good job of holding a signal with minimal traces of noise. Hook up a digital TV tuner, and matters improve even further.

On the sound front, we preferred to listen with all pseudo-surround functions turned off, giving more weight to proceedings. Dialogue comes across with clarity, but the Samsung does sound on the thin side when compared to the best performers of the bunch.

The Samsung produces the best picture in the group and can justify its high price. What's more, this screen size would cost twice as much if you opted for a 50in plasma.

The stand is an impressive piece of engineering that, as well as looking smart, incorporates the socketry

ThemeScene RD50 £2000

FOR
Impressive DVD pictures; good detail and contrast; sounds great; price

AGAINST
Off-air TV pictures noisy and grainy

VERDICT

BACK IN THE day, when TVs were limited to just Scart sockets, it was big news if a set had two such inputs. How things have changed!

An explosion of new technologies and interfaces has lead to the need for a variety of connectivity options, all of which the Themescene RD50 caters for. There are no less than 11 different sockets, including a component video input for progressive scan images and a DVI input for uncompressed digital signals.

And for around the price of a top-of-the-range 36in CRT television, you get 50 inches of screen size and a DVD picture that punches well above the price. Images are vibrant, full of life and brimming with colour and contrast. A quick spin of Shrek2 reveals a full colour palette, while the set is also capable of picking out subtle shades in the more natural surroundings of The Terminal.

Using the DVI input enhances the image to reveal more insight in Hellboy. The on-screen action scenes become sharper and more cohesive, especially when it comes to the spectacular fights and flurries of explosive set pieces. The viewing angle of the RD50 is also worthy of mention, with the picture remaining viewable when moving off-axis both vertically and horizontally.

> "Off-axis images from the RD50 are very good, with the picture remaining good from wherever you look"

Off-air TV pictures are up to a decent enough standard, but do appear soft and hindered by traces of grain, especially in areas of poor reception. They can be slightly improved upon by hooking up a digital set-top box – this gives slightly more definition and clarity to images.

The set delivers sound in a solid and composed manner. Dialogue is full-bodied, natural and the speakers can cope with more boisterous levels.

Considering the low price, the ThemScene represents a great buy. It doesn't quite exude the desirability of some of the other models, but it still represents a shrewd purchase.

Compared with other RPTVs and plasmas, this is a great-value supersize television

Thomson 50DLY £2500

FOR
Appealing looks; fine colour balance; good connectivity; competent sound

AGAINST
Abundance of noise and grain with off-air and DVD pictures; lack of pinsharp definition; edges of images prone to pixelation and ringing

VERDICT
The Thomson isn't a particularly poor set, but it has too many flaws to recommend it above the others here

THE 50DLY645 IS the latest addition to Thomson's Scenium range. It's an attractive piece of kit, with the 50in screen protruding from an elegant light-grey frame. Around the rear of the unit, the connections include Scart, component and DVI inputs.

The remote control is easy enough to operate, while the on-screen menus offer all the usual image-adjustment settings, including sharpness, contrast and colour.

Feed the set an off-air signal and the performance is disappointing, with an near-Alpine blizzard of noise and grain on-screen. This prevents the Thomson from delivering clear and crisp images. Pixelation results in a loss of edge-definition and images are also affected by 'ringing' – the set struggling to define on-screen icons that illustrate channels such as BBC News 24.

DVD performance is marginally better. The provision of a DVI input allows the transfer of uncompressed video data. However, bringing one of our reference DVD players into the equation, the DVI-capable Denon

> "Sonically, this Thomson set is very competent: crank up the volume and the speakers really deliver"

DVD-3910, the Thomson couldn't produce an above-average level of quality. Images are watchable, but you can get better for the money.

The Thomson does inject films with a good dose of colour, and differentiates between more subtle hues, too. However, grain and noise again prove a hindrance, distracting you from the detail and special effects of the visually stunning Hero.

Sonically speaking, the 50DLY645 is highly competent. Crank up the volume and the speakers deliver a composed and controlled rendition of the Hero soundtrack.

Unfortunately, this set's attractive looks aren't mirrored in its performance. It's let down by its below-par performance in this company.

The least convincing here, the Thomson TV has strengths, but its rivals are better all-round products

Toshiba 46WM48 £2000

FOR
A fine performer across the board; good with TV and DVD pictures; price

AGAINST
Images lack the lip-smacking beauty of the best; contrast could be better

VERDICT
There's no harm in giving the Toshiba an audition – it's a good jack-of-all-trades DLP television

AND SO WE reach the final DLP TV in this Group Test, and yet another set that uses the Texas Instruments HD2+ chipset as its core component. But Toshiba's own ingredients have also been incorporated into the 46WM48, in the guise of the company's Real Digital picture-processing technology. This is claimed to aid analogue and digital signals, producing clearer, more accurate and higher quality images.

Furthermore, the Toshiba is fitted with an HDMI interface, to ensure the best picture and sound quality. And the images are certainly some of the best we've seen on a set this size. The 46WM48 is a fine all-rounder: with terrestrial broadcasts, it delivers an enjoyable picture. Images have fine detail and an even colour balance. There are traces of noise and grain, but these aren't too distracting.

Use the HDMI input to connect a compatible DVD player and you won't be disappointed. Detail levels are higher, and the set produces images that look realistic and natural. The noise and grain seen before is notably lessened, with the action scenes in Hellboy remaining clear. Thankfully, the colours don't look overcooked or overblown.

> "Use the HDMI input and you won't be disappointed by the improvement in the picture and sound"

However, the Toshiba does lacks the initial 'wow' factor of the top sets in this grouping. Your jaw only drops a few centimetres, as opposed to thumping down to the floor with the very best performers. It just lacks that extra detail, contrast and three-dimensionality needed to draw you into the heart of the action.

In the sound department, the Toshiba is a pretty competent performer. There's a decent sense of weight given to the comic-book derived action of Hellboy. Switching off the various fancy sound modes and opting for basic Nicam stereo keeps everything under control, though some movie moments can sound hard and aggressive when the volume level is pushed higher.

The Toshiba is a good all-round TV, but doesn't excel in terms of outright quality. At the price, it's worth investigating if you're on the look-out for a 46in television, but some bigger screens deliver bigger screen thrills.

Though it lacks the sparkle of the best on test here, the Tosh is a mighty fine TV

The camcorder with plenty of other talents

The Samsung Miniket is a high performance camcorder. It's also a digital camera, MP3 player, webcam, voice recorder and data store. All rolled into an ultra-compact design you could hide behind a credit card. But it's not just good looks, it has a movie-optimised CCD giving enhanced video quality and a choice of built-in 512MB or 1GB memory, plus a memory card slot. In fact, Miniket gives you so many options to record and play you can take with you everywhere. Now you'll never miss a trick. www.samsung.co.uk

REAR-PROJECTION DLP TVs

Samsung SP50L7HX

★★★★★ £3500

Though it's by far the most expensive TV here, picture quality is out of this world

SO WHAT CAN we take from this big-screen bonanza? If the top performers in this test are anything to go by, then it's time to get excited. These huge screens are all reasonably priced and some boast top-drawer performance that's a real threat to the current crop of plasma television beauties.

Despite being the most expensive in the test, we were astounded by the Samsung SP-50L7HX. Its DVD performance blew the majority of the rival sets out of the water. And we can't remember seeing a picture from a 50in plasma set capable of holding a torch to this stellar screen. Its ability to create a realistic and three-dimensional DVD image is second to none in this category. The fact that it looks stunning just adds fuel to its fire.

ThemeScene's RD50 also weighs in with a full set of five stars and comes a close second. At £2000 it's temptingly priced – it might not have the super-slick styling of the Samsung, but the substance is there for all to see. Its images appear detailed, cohesive and colourful, while it's also the best-sounding television out of this Group Test. It's an excellent value-for-money purchase.

Toshiba's 46in model, the 46WM48P, is highly capable, and the smaller screen size provides an alternative to its more domineering 50in counterparts. (Have you ever sat in front of a 50in screen? They're huge!). The Tosh is a competent all-rounder providing good off-air television and DVD images – however, there's a lack of on-screen sparkle and depth. Images don't have the visual impact that's more apparent with the class-leading sets.

Last of all, we have the Thomson set. This, too, is a good-looking piece of kit, but unfortunately it doesn't quite have the picture quality to match its looks or the quality of its rivals here. Noise and grain detract from the overall picture quality, which doesn't provide the same amount of enjoyment as the Samsung, ThemeScene or the Toshiba. It's decent enough, but for the same money there's better available.

Make no mistake, if you hanker after the big-screen experience, then we urge you to audition the top TV in this test. Super-aggressive pricing makes these rear-projection DLP TVs hugely tempting: they might hammer another nail in the coffin of similar-sized plasmas.

DVD: The next generation

Two new disc formats are launched this year, both after DVD's crown as the home entertainment king

BELIEVE IT OR not, DVD has been around for nearly a decade. We demonstrated an early prototype player in 1996, and carried out our very first 'proper' review of a UK-spec model in the June 1997 issue.

Over that period, the format has matured nicely. Most players and discs now offer exemplary picture and sound quality for your money. That performance, coupled to an extensive disc inventory and plummeting player prices, has cemented the format's place in our hearts: around 65 percent of the UK's 18 million households now owns a DVD player.

If DVD is so great, why change?

Simple: while this picture looks very rosy for the consumer, it's a genuine concern for the home entertainment industry. DVD players have got too cheap, too rapidly: even 'mainstream' brands sell products costing less than £80, and it's hard to make much money on that sort of business, even if you're selling products in considerable numbers. So, priority number one for the industry is to come up with a way of convincing us happy DVD owners to 'trade up' to something newer. The easiest way to do that is to develop something that offers you an even better-quality disc for your money – and that's precisely what the industry has set out to do.

So is DVD dead soon?

No way! CD is still around, after all. The aim is to offer better-than-DVD picture and sound quality as a supplement to – rather than a replacement for – the existing format. However, that might change long term.

Okay, so it's like DVD 2.0?

Kinda... sadly, we're going to be treated to yet another re-run of the VHS versus Betamax battle. Two new, competing formats, Blu-Ray and HD-DVD, are being launched in the USA shortly (though there's no word of when they'll make the move over here as yet). Both formats will be offered as both 'play only' and recordable discs, and the dedicated players for each type of disc will also be able to replay your existing DVD collection. That's the good news. The bad news is that a Blu-Ray disc won't play in an HD-DVD deck, or vice versa. Ah, the joys of format wars!

Toshiba's HD-DVD prototype (left) is likely to spawn both a player and a recorder (as yet unnamed), but due out towards the end of 2005. Meanwhile, Sony's BDZ-S77 Blu-Ray recorder (above-right) is already available in Japan. Both models can also be used to replay standard DVDs and CDs.

“Picture quality on every LCD, plasma and projector is expected to improve by around 25%”

How are the new discs better?

In the crudest terms, the answer is fairly simple: they're bigger. Not in the physical sense, but in terms of capacity. Higher quality video, particularly High Definition video of the type being broadcast in the USA and Japan, takes up more space than conventional video: indeed, it won't actually fit on a standard DVD disc, which puts the existing format at a quality disadvantage in certain markets. Though you'd never believe it in the UK, broadcast TV now looks better than DVD in certain parts of the world! More data capacity can also be used to support enhanced sound (perhaps with less compression), more of those extras, more interactive features, or more plain digital data.

More? How much more?

Tons more! HD-DVD will offer a maximum capacity of 30GB (gigabytes), while Blu-Ray can offer a massive 50GB, with the possibility of more on the way in the future.

That huge amount of space offers extraordinary possibilities. You can store around nine hours of High Definition video on a 50GB disc, or 23 hours of standard 'ordinary' video. That's enough space to fit the whole Lord of the Rings trilogy on one disc in High Definition 720p quality. That means the picture quality on every LCD, plasma and projector should improve by around 25 percent.

Surely Blu-Ray will win?

As it offers greater capacity, it's tempting to say 'yes, obviously', but life's seldom that clear-cut. The hardware companies had drawn up their battle lines early, and at first glance, the odds seem impossibly stacked against HD-DVD. The format is backed by NEC, Sanyo and Toshiba; while Blu-Ray draws on the might of Hitachi, LG, Mitsubishi, Panasonic, Philips, Pioneer, Samsung, Sharp, Sony and Thomson.

However, the deciding factor is usually not the quality of the technology (after all Betamax was better than VHS), but what content (movies, basically) are on sale on each format. Here, the struggle looks to be far more even. HD-DVD is supported by New Line, Paramount, Universal, Warner and HBO; while Blu-Ray can muster 20th Century Fox, Disney, and Sony Pictures Entertainment, with its attendant companies Columbia Tristar and MGM. Translate this into disc sales, and it looks as if the movie industry is split roughly 50:50 between the two discs.

There's also another powerful force influencing the debate: the computer industry. Blu-Ray is backed by Hewlett-Packard and Dell, while Microsoft recently announced that the next version of Windows will support HD-DVD.

What about region coding?

Issues like that are to be settled in the first quarter of this year. One school of thought suggests that since region coding has been such a failure for normal DVD, it might be abandoned for the new discs. On the other hand, some reckon Hollywood will use this opportunity to get it right. The Motion Picture Association of America is keen that HD-DVD or Blu-Ray players should only provide High Definition video from digital outputs, such as HDMI – and it's notably easier to introduce strong copy-protection using this connection.

Right! So what happens next?

Blu-Ray recorders are already on sale in Japan, and HD-DVD decks are due out later this year. It looks like both discs are here to stay, so brace yourself for an awkward buying decision – unless someone launches a 'universal' disc player pretty soon. One thing's for sure: your eyes are in for a treat.

DVD vs THE NEWCOMERS

Externally, all three discs look very similar, but look closer, and the new formats vastly improved performance over existing DVD discs

WHAT KIND OF DISPLAY WILL SUIT BLU-RAY AND HD-DVD?

If you want to buy a screen that's 'ready' for both the new disc formats, high resolution and a digital video input socket are essentials. These are great choices:

REAR-PROJECTION TELEVISION

Look for DLP (Digital Light Processing) based designs with a minimum resolution of 1280 x 720. The Toshiba 46WM48 costs £2000 and includes an HDMI input

PLASMA TELEVISION

Pioneer's fantastic PDP-435XDE will set you back £3500. It comes with 1024 x 768 resolution, and has an HDMI input socket fitted to its media centre

LCD TELEVISION

Toshiba's excellent 32WL48 is a great choice, and includes both 1366 x 768 resolution and an HDMI input. It's great value at £1700

PROJECTOR

Panasonic's £1700 PT-AE700 is a cracker, with 1280 x 720 resolution, an HDMI input, and a great picture

MP3 PLAYERS £219 - £252

Put MP3 and more in your pocket–for less

Can the iPod keep its crown when faced with Sony's first MP3 offering plus bargain multimedia rivals?

What's new?

Three products appear for the first time in WHAT HI-FI? SOUND AND VISION: the Archos Gmini 400, Sony's NW-HD3, and the Thomson Lyra PDP2845. The iPod 20GB is the one to beat, being our current MP3 player of choice. Sony's new player is the big news, with the inventors of the Walkman and the MiniDisc finally launching a seriously stylish-looking competitor to the iPod. The NW-HD3 promises an impressive 30 hours of uninterrupted playback – three times the iPod's battery life. The Archos is the jack of all trades, offering a dazzling array of features, including playback of video clips.

What do you get for your money?

Everything you need is in the box – namely, the player, headphones, a USB cable, an AC adapter, and any software that's needed to organise your files. These players are some of the best-sounding available, and with every step away from £200 you take – in the 'wrong' direction – expect something more for your money. The Archos music player also has a colour screen for photo and video clip playback.

What can you do with these portables?

These portables allow you to take a large number of digital music files with you on the move. The minimum storage capacity on show here is 20GB, which means somewhere in the region of 6000 tracks, but the Thomson will hold double that. So, obviously how large a hard disk you need is a major consideration. Only the Archos offers video playback, so how you plan to use your player is another major factor on which you'll base your buying decision.

What were we looking for?

First and foremost you should demand an exceptional quality of sound. And yes, it should look rather smart, too, be a nice pocketable size, and weigh something that won't break your pocket, but sonic performance has to be the main concern. Other important factors are battery life, storage capacity and ease of use – of both the interface and any associated software.

Our ratings explained

A five-star product is the best available for the price. Stars are dropped for shortcomings in performance, features or spec. It's important to remember that four stars is still a good product, it's just lacking something, somewhere, that keeps the five stars at bay. Three, two and one-star products are less appealing.

VERDICT
Still leads the way in terms of style, sonic ability and sheer usability; for portable digital music look no further

IT WOULD SEEM that there are some constants in the world of MP3 players. Competitors continue to close the gap, but Apple still has the edge in key areas with its world-beating iPod. This is the fourth-generation model, and it remains the player to beat.

This version gave us a number of genuine improvements to the previous incarnations. First, it's even more pocket-friendly, thanks to a slimmer, lighter design – it weighs in at a mere 158g. And, proving you can learn from your smaller siblings, the 'click wheel' first seen on the iPod Mini makes the transfer to the 20GB model. It's a wise decision: the click wheel is a work of genius. A single digit is all that's required to scroll smoothly and speedily from screen to screen, putting many of its rivals' interfaces to shame.

The accompanying iTunes software does a similar job, beating all-comers on the market, and is itself a genuine reason for choosing an Apple product. Files are transferred to the iPod using AAC compression, or the sonically superior Apple Lossless format for transferring CDs, and the quality is excellent. This fourth-generation also sounds better than its predecessors, giving bassy, drum-heavy tracks such as Eminem's My 1st Single a weightier, punchier performance. There is also an improved level of detail and dynamics, better than the majority of portables are able to muster.

The new Sony player hits the iPod where it hurts on the battery front – an Achilles heel of sorts for Apple – but the iPod 20GB still offers a perfectly adequate 12 hours of playback time. The only thing on the horizon to worry the iPod, as we highlight in this test, is the emergence of photo and video playback – something that the iPod Photo looks to address. But if music on the move is all you require, this remains the player to beat.

Superb styling, excellent sound and a fantastic user interface

Archos Gmini 400 £235

FOR
Great sound and video, plus pictures, data and games; AV out; looks and feels just fine

AGAINST
Battery life; navigation tricky at first

VERDICT
Amaze your friends with this pocket-rocket – a genuine master of all trades in the portable market

AT FIRST GLANCE, the beautiful Archos Gmini 400 seems a million miles away from the Gmini XS200 we reviewed last month. Forget the drab design and styling, and the rather uninspiring interface, this little baby – and it is small – is a joy to behold.

Sleek, sexy and with a cracking colour screen, this player cries out to be explored. In fact, the wealth of features, with every screen buzzing with activity, makes initial contact rather confusing, despite the clarity of the excellent 2.2in LCD. But it is an intuitive affair, and you'll soon get your bearings. It's not just a jukebox: the Gmini 400 holds pictures, video and data, and there are games, too.

It's amply endowed with every necessary connection, with a mic and line in for recording, and an AV out allowing you to connect to a screen for viewing pictures – it'll store 4000 500KB JPEGs – or to connect to your amp for music. There's also a memory card connection for easy data transport.

It would be a waste not to use the wealth of storage options, but even if judged solely for its musical ability, the Gmini 400 still rates highly, thanks to the great sound quality we're getting used to from Archos. It's proudly loud (hurrah!), showing off a wide, dynamic sound, perhaps only lacking the speed and punch of rivals when dealing with more complex tracks. There's a 'now playing' option to create playlists on the go, and controls are clear - if at times the screens can be sluggish to load. Video quality is excellent, too, with bright colours and detailed blacks.

There's little to complain about here. The battery life isn't great at 10 hours (five for video), but this remains a feature-laden product at a great price.

Sony NW-HD3 £219

FOR
Excellent sound from a compact, stylish player with a huge battery life

AGAINST
Software could be simpler, and the screen clearer; no playlists on the go

VERDICT
Sure to find make friends with its good battery life and sound quality, but a shame there are annoyances

IF ANYONE HAS a name to rival Apple's in the world of stylish portable players, it must be the inventor of the Walkman, Sony. The NW-HD3 is a typically cool-looking bit of a kit – it's a small, light, solid-feeling device.

You control the Sony player via a four-point circular button, which has a select/play push-button in the centre. There are also 'menu', 'mode' and volume controls perched on the narrow top edge of the device.

The huge battery life is the standout feature of this product – Sony has managed to raise the barrier again with a whopping 30 hours of replay time.

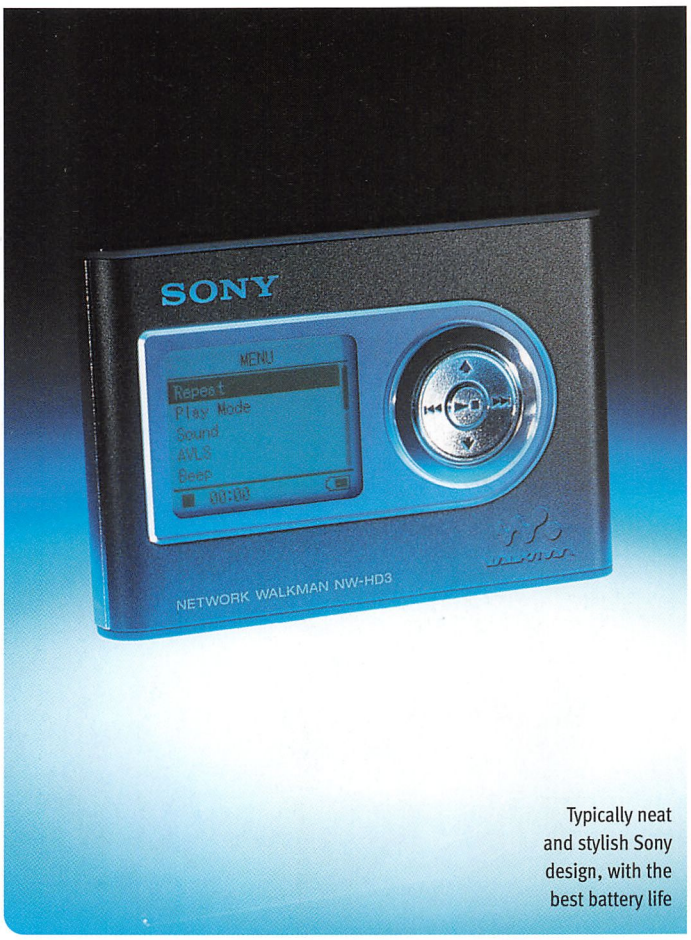
The latest edition of Sony's SonicStage software is included for managing your files (version 2.3 for the geeks) and very smart it is, too. And it should be, considering how long it takes to load with seemingly endless set-up processes to endure.

Sadly, this pattern continues while transferring tunes, a process that's slower than with its rivals – we found transferring several hundred tunes takes around 15 minutes – and it wasn't just a case of dragging and dropping.

Pleasingly, the sound quality is excellent – up with the best players we've heard. Treble is crisp, keeping a good rhythm to the track, while the bass is deep and tight, and has pace. There's a superb dynamic range to music, especially with good-quality headphones, and a simple EQ to personalise the sound to your taste. The interface is simple enough to use, though the screen could be clearer. Response time when selecting is fast.

Critiscism? It lacks an 'on the go' option, so playlists have to be created beforehand, and we found ourselves maxing out the volume time and again.

Overall, the Sony is a good partner to live with, but it can be bettered.



Typically neat and stylish Sony design, with the best battery life

Thomson Lyra PDP2845 £252

FOR
Well-priced for a 40GB unit, with useful extras; recordable digital FM radio

AGAINST
There are other products that have more to offer in several key areas

VERDICT
A decent player and good value, but the sound quality, usability and styling won't trouble the big guns

THE LATEST ADDITION to the Lyra range impresses from the off, coming as it does with a wealth of handy extras. An adapter for using your MP3 player through your car stereo, a carry case and an in-car charger all come dropping out of the box – not to mention the usual headphones, mains charger and USB cable. The PDP2845 can certainly be used on the go.

The player itself is rather bulky and deceptively heavy (163g) for its size, though the black and silver styling with a single control button on the front and others tucked on the side is smart enough, if just a tad unexciting.

Tracks can be stored in the 40GB memory by dragging and dropping from your desktop, but there's a twist. In order for the tracks to appear on your player, they need to be 'profiled'. This requires the Lyra Jukebox software to be installed, and a quick press of 'profile device contents', to ready your new tracks for selection – not quite as simple a process as some players.

There are also other frustrations with the PDP 2845: not only does the player take a few attempts to be recognised by a computer, but also navigation between menus and screens on the player itself is cumbersome. Furthermore, the recordable radio could only be tuned in steps of 0.2kHz.

Happily, this is a loud enough player, and has a decent sound. There are useful EQ options to select – we soon ditched the hollow-sounding 'flat' mode, and found the 'bass' option offers a more rounded sound. It lacks the depth of the best players, with a smooth bass work-out such as Reason from the new Nas album lacking bottom-end punch and clarity.

Overall, we enjoyed using the Lyra, but couldn't help feeling that other players left us with fonder memories.

The On The Road Price (OTR) includes the cost of delivery to the dealer's premises, number plates and VAT at 17.5%, along with Government road fund licence for 12 months, and DVLA vehicle first registration fee of £38. *£1,000 off and 3 years free servicing or 27,000 miles (whichever comes first) offer applies to purchases of the Lancer Evolution VIII, registered between 1st January and 31st March 2005. Apple iPod 20GB

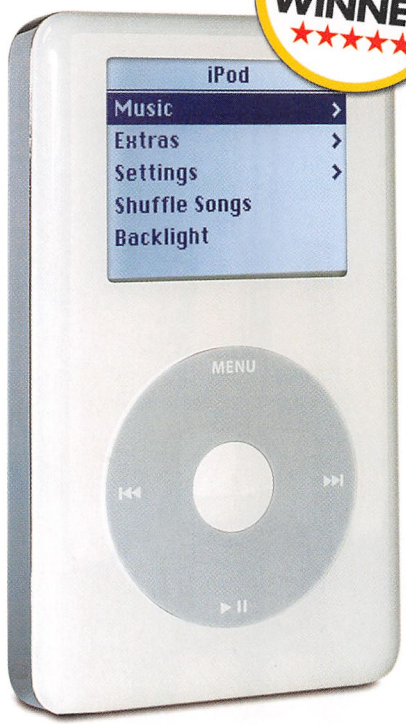
★★★★★ £219

AS THE POPULARITY of downloading music soars, so too does the choice of portable players. Additionally, they have now evolved to store and display pictures and video, as well as data files, while the quality of audio and video playback continues to improve. So, this was an ultra-competitive test, with great new players on show as the big guns pulled out all the stops. All these players are good, some are excellent – but the undeniable class of the iPod 20GB means it remains the player to beat. However, the Archos gives it plenty to think about.

The main thing that these portables all have in common, is the ability to play digital music. Quite simply, the iPod 20GB does the digital music experience from start to finish better than anything else available. The iTunes software remains the best music-organisation tool available – the process of transferring music to your player is fast and easy. The AAC format remains superior sonically to its rivals, while the Apple Lossless option for taking music from CDs is even better again.

Perhaps most importantly, the sound quality of the iPod – improved again in this latest incarnation – remains at the top of the class. We believe this must remain the most crucial aspect of these players. A smooth but weightier sound for more complex, bottom-end heavy tracks is apparent here, while the iPod also excels when dealing with more subtle tracks, offering impressive insight with vocals. Apple's 'click wheel' remains the king of controls, and the ease of use with which you can negotiate your catalogue of tunes makes a world of difference – no player here responds as quickly to instruction as the iPod.

However, if photo, video or data storage are important to you, then the latest Archos will do a great job. Make no mistake, you will be losing out in many areas – most notably sonic ability – but for less than £20 extra, the Gmini 400 offers astounding value and versatility, presented on a glorious colour screen.



It might not offer picture or video storage, but for music on the move the iPod 20GB is unbeatable

And what of the others? The new Sony player has a phenomenal battery life, quality sound and is no longer dependent on Sony's ATRAC file format, but just lacks the clarity and ease of use of many rivals. The Thomson is a decent player, but with so many options for buyers, it just doesn't quite have the flair or class to make it stand out in this already crowded market.

For now, with a couple of hundred quid at your disposal, we believe the iPod 20GB must remain the digital music player of choice.

Altec Lansing's InMotion range is incredibly well-designed, as robust as portable kit needs to be, and perfect style partners for the iPod. They also sound surprisingly good, with more bass weight than most rivals. A 24-hour battery life, too.

STEREO AMPLIFIERS £1595-£2000

Stereo amps fight for glory

If you've only ever heard budget or mid-priced kit, you won't believe your ears when you hear the best in this price range – musical heaven is truly just a step away

What's new?

Quite a lot. Myryad has a new muscle-bound integrated amplifier, which chucks out an impressive 150 watts per channel, while both Roksan and Quad have pre/power combinations that we've never tested before. Our last contender is an old favourite from Moon, called the I-3. This one-box is physically unchanged from our last review, but has dropped a staggering £200 in price. Now that's competitive pricing.

What do you get for your money?

Amps at this price level are built and finished to far higher standards than cheaper alternatives. Sound quality is significantly better, too – even when compared to over-achieving talents, such as Cyrus's £1200 8x/PSX-R combo. All the amplifiers in this Group Test have enough grunt to drive just about any price-compatible speaker you can find, so system-matching is more about getting the sonic flavour you want, rather than electrical compatibility.

Will it fit into your system?

All bar the Quad pre/power are line-level only, so if you own a turntable you'll need an outboard phono stage. Put aside a couple of hundred pounds for a good one. That apart, all the amplifiers here have enough inputs for most stereo set-ups and enough drive to play at high levels without a problem. As far as accommodating these amplifiers goes, only the Myryad is likely to cause a problem, because it's a beast of a machine that won't fit into many kit racks.

What are we looking for?

The best sound, pure and simple. We rate honesty very highly and want an amplifier that alters the original signal as little as possible. Within this, timing, dynamics and detail resolution are all important. Other priorities are build, finish and features. There's no point in spending two grand on an amplifier if it looks like it was made in someone's garden shed.

Our star ratings explained

Five stars mean that the product is a great all-rounder that'll work well in just about any system. A four-star rating signifies an amplifier that excels in some areas more than others. It's entirely possible that such a product can, in the right system, sound even better than a five-star alternative, so don't ignore these. As the stars drop lower we go from an average performer to one that disappoints. As for a one-star product, forget it!

ROKSAN Caspian M-series pre/power £1250/£750

Moon I-3 £1595

FOR
Creamy, smooth presentation; fine rhythmic performance; impressive build with excellent remote handset

AGAINST
Not the most neutral performer

VERDICT
This is a strong performer with a distinctive sound that's easy-going with strong dynamics – audition it!

WE START WITH the cheapest amplifier in this test. Moon's I-3 used to cost £200 more, but a recent price drop has sharpened its competitive edge to a finer point.

The Moon is still no five-star contender, though it almost makes the top grade, missing out by the slimmest of margins. So let's get the negatives out of the way first: if you want neutrality and class-leading insight into the recording process, this isn't the amplifier for you. There are others in this test that'll serve you better if those are your priorities. However, accept the I-3's distinctive sonic flavour and you'll like it a lot.

This is a Frank Sinatra of an amp, one that puts smoothness and refinement high on its list of priorities. Prod it with harsh recordings or an aggressive source and it'll smile, producing an organic, full-bodied, soothing sound for your delight.

> "The Moon has an unusual blend of talents that should appeal to a wide range of people"

Don't go thinking that timing or dynamics have suffered for this easy-going attitude. Put on something hard-hitting – such as Eminem or Black Eyed Peas – and the Moon responds with agility and drive. It doesn't retrain dynamic excesses, delivering a fast-moving rhythm on tracks such as Hey Mama with real verve. Stereo imaging is well focused and expansive, producing a broad spread of sound from the likes of the Gladiator movie's beautifully recorded original soundtrack.

The I-3 looks and feels like a heavyweight contender, and the remote control's a beauty

The I-3's sound is good, and its build is even better. The amplifier feels like a quality item, and the metal-cased remote puts the efforts of the opposition to shame in terms of feel. If the cheapest contender in this test comes equipped with such a classy handset we don't understand why the rest serve up cheap-feeling plastic alternatives. Cutting costs is fine in the budget sector, but at this price level things should be different.

System-matching is a breeze, too. Most sources and speaker work well, though avoid any components that emphasise the Moon's already smooth nature – otherwise you'll end up with a system that'll make even Nirvana sound tame.

This fine amp might not be the best all-rounder in this Group Test, but its an unusual blend of talents should appeal strongly to many people. Four stars or not, give it a go.

Myryad MXI2150 £1700

FOR
Clarity, dynamics and control are all top class for the money

AGAINST
Massive size means that it's harder to accommodate than most rivals

VERDICT
It's worth looking past the MXI2150's bulky casework, because it sounds absolutely lovely – best in its class

THIS MYRYAD AMPLIFIER blurs the boundaries between integrated amplifiers and pre/power combinations. It comes in one box – so that makes it an integrated, but the preamplifier and power sections are totally separate and need to be connected with an external cable.

The company supplies short leads for the job, but for the best performance it's worth swapping these for a good set of interconnects. We tried Atlas's Voyager (£110 per terminated metre length), and were rewarded by great results – with the overall sound improving across the board.

Don't get the wrong idea. The MXI2150 doesn't need such help to compete with its rivals, because it has a formidable array of strengths straight out of the box. This integrated amp is a mightily impressive powerhouse that can bludgeon just about any price-compatible speaker into submission. Such reserves of power – this amplifier is rated at 150 watts per channel – mean that there's no holding back with the dynamic extremes of the Gladiator soundtrack, no hint of stress, and definitely no loss of overall control.

Listen to this electronic breeze block and there's a very real sense of honesty about its presentation. It simply reproduces whatever it is fed: if the source or recording is below par, then that's the way it'll sound. The MXI2150 isn't polite: it doesn't embellish or spice in any way, or even make a meal of things unnecessarily. That's not to say it's without character. Its presentation is a little forward in the treble, but a bit of sensible system-matching negates this becoming a problem, so we won't make much of it.

> "Listening to this electronic breeze block, you get a real sense of honesty about its presentation"

Its size might put some off the Myryad, though a quick listen reveals its awesome sound

However, we do have a greater concern, and that's to do with the physical aspects of this amplifier. It's massive – measuring 19 x 44 x 48cm (hwd) – and so won't fit into many equipment racks. The brick-like styling (if 'styling' is the right word to use) could be a major sticking pointed for some people.

Find some way around these issues, though – we hope you can – and the Myryad will treat you to a class-leading sonic performance that gets you incredibly close to the recording. Despite the appearances, we reckon this is superb buy.

Discover the real Cinema experience with Wharfedale's new Diamond 9 series. Cutting edge in every respect, Diamond 9 outshines all rivals in terms of impact, detail and scale.

Technological advances such as the curved cabinets, the strong 'rare-earth' magnet system, and the new alloy driver chassis, ensure incredible realism and detail, but the thing that really astounds about Diamond 9 is the overall integration of the systems.

With a choice of centre channels, surround speakers and superb subwoofers - all tonally matched, you can be sure that whatever your size requirements, we can build a system to give you the best possible performance - and because all of the main speakers are fully shielded, you can use them in close proximity to any display device without the risk of permanent damage.

Don't be fooled by the price either. Because we manufacture every single part of every speaker ourselves, we have significant cost advantages over other brands, allowing us to deliver outstanding value for money.

VERDICT
Minor ergonomic concerns aside, this is a class performer that'll perform superbly in a wide range of systems

SMALL AMP = small sound? Don't you believe it. This pint-size pairing delivers a super-size dollop of sound quality that's rivalled only by the overgrown Myryad.

If you play anything large-scale – say, Stravinsky's Rite of Spring – Quad's dynamic duo will take a firm grip of the partnering speakers and produce a sound with impressive authority. Much of this is down to a rich and weighty bass performance that goes very deep without losing grip. Fast-moving basslines, such as that from Eminem's Mosh, thunder along and give a firm foundation to a clear and full-bodied midrange. Outright clarity is good – impressive enough to make the rapper's rapid-fire ranting easy to follow. There's a strong sense that the amplifier isn't messing around too much with the signal. An even tonal balance and surefooted sense of timing complete a strong sonic cocktail.

> "Both these bits of kit use one-piece castings for their construction, giving a solid, high-quality feel"

A great sonic performance, but this amplifier has other strengths, too. Both units use one-piece castings for their casework, and this gives them a solid, quality feel nothing else in this test can match. The preamp is an ultra-flexible unit that features a variety of tone adjustments, including Quad's traditional tilt function: this pivots the tonal balance around the midrange, increasing bass while reducing treble or vice versa. This pairing is also the only one in this Group Test to feature a phono stage. Impressively, the unit can not only be switched between moving magnet and moving coil gain from the remote handset, but you can adjust cartridge-loading, too.

This pre/power combination offers an exceptional honest and revealing sound quality

The preamp is a bit quirky to use, though. The inputs marked CD and Tuner only apply to Quad components connected through Quadlink, which is a computer-style flat cable that carries music and command signals between components. If you use non-Quad 99 series units you'll need to connect through the auxiliary inputs. Some of the icons shown on the 99 preamp's display aren't easily understood, either, and its buttons feel imprecise.

Despite these shortcomings, this Quad pre/power combination is still one of the best at this price. Its even-handed nature and high levels of insight make it a star. Listen to it before you buy anything else.

Roksan Caspian M-series pre/power £1250/£750

FOR
Authoritative and smooth presentation; strong dynamics and good composure; solid build

AGAINST
Lacks the highest insight and agility

VERDICT
This is a good combo, but doesn't quite reach the sky-high standards the ingredients and price suggest

THIS ONE SHOULD have been predictable. Take a class-leading preamplifier and partner it with a five-star power from the same brand and the result is... not what we expected. Don't get us wrong. This is a good combination – very good in fact – but it isn't the rip-roaring class champ it looks like on paper.

Why? Simply put, it doesn't get to the heart of a recording in the same way that the likes of the Myryad or Quad can. There isn't quite the clarity or resolution needed to top this Group Test. Chop and change the two halves of this pairing and the power amplifier turns out to be the weak link. It sounds a little thick, and lacks agility compared with the top performers in this Group Test.

You have to keep these criticisms in perspective, though. The power amplifier remains one of the best at its price, while the Roksan pairing still manages to be a formidable contender with enough talent to worry the class-leaders. Our (only slight) disappointment has more to do with knowing that the preamp is capable of sonic magic given a more talented partner.

> "Chop'n'change the two halves of this pairing and the power amplifier turns out to be the weak link"

Once properly warmed up, the Roksan combination has a refined and authoritative presentation that works well with all types of music. It has the subtlety and finesse to deal with small-scale classical, as well as the basic brutality to deliver hardcore hip-hop with the correct dose of attitude and amplitude.

A decent sound, but we can't help feeling the preamp isn't being pushed to its limits

The power amplifier might output 'just' 85 watts per channel – the lowest in this test – but you'd never guess it from the way it sounds. Eminem's Encore is pounded out with sledgehammer force, without any sacrifice to control or precision. Dynamics are strong and the amplifier never loses composure, even when pushed hard with the likes of Stravinsky's Rite of Spring. The Roksan's tonal balance is a touch rich, but this merely adds solidity and body to the amp's presentation, rather than robbing it of excitement.

Add other factors – such as build, finish and a sensible feature list – to the plus points and this duo makes a strong case for itself. However, it's the priciest contender here and falls behind the very best when it comes to insight. That's why it loses a star.

Group Test WINNER
STEREO AMPLIFIERS

Myryad MXI2150
★★★★★ £1700

We were hugely impressed when we tested the MXI2150 in our First Tests section last month, and our initial impressions have been fully justified here

EVERY AMP IN this test is a very fine product. We can't imagine anyone buying one of these and being anything less than thoroughly impressed.

Having said that, it's in our nature to establish a definite pecking order, particularly when price comes into the equation. Perhaps surprisingly, the first to be knocked out is the Roksan Caspian M-series pre/power amp combination, which does possess a good dose of the brand's traditional strengths, but fails to quite set our world alight. It doesn't manage to get out of the music's way, and so fails to match the class-leaders in the way they have the ability to get straight to the heart of a recording.

This combination from Roksan isn't way off target, though, so we suspect a little fine-tuning on the power amplifier – definitely the weaker link in the audio chain – could see the pairing challenge for top honours in the future. Until then, though, the compromised performance and highish price will count against it.

Next up is the extremely likeable Moon I-3. This is competitively priced and delivers a smooth and seductive presentation. It's got bite as well, so works well with all types of music. Factor-in the pleasing build and elegant styling, and it's easy to understand this amplifier's appeal. We recommend an audition , because there's a good chance it'll impress you. However, when judged by the highest standards we don't think it can quite scale the sonic peaks of the two class leaders. Quad's 99/909 combination comes close to pleasing all the people all the time. It's a manageable size, is a good-looking piece of kit and – most importantly – it sounds great. We have a couple of minor complaints about the ergonomics – such as the imprecise buttons and the lack of clarity to the display – but these aren't enough to dent our enthusiasm for this pre/power pairing, which sounds magnificent whatever you throw at it.

However, top honours belong to Myryad's chunky MXI2150. This is no looker and it's about as big an integrated amplifier as we've come across. Those points aside, this is a real honey of a product. It has a blend of sonic talents that lift it well above the norm and allow it to deeply worry just about any amplifier from three grand downward. If that sounds like a bargain, then you'd be right.

A dynamic new Chapter

Read all about it – this £10K amplifier combination challenges the best of the big-name brands

Chapter Preface/Two + Stereo £4300/£5500

PRE/POWER AMPLIFIER

FOR

An ultra-precise and extremely natural presentation; excellent dynamics and fine timing; top-class build quality

AGAINST

Remote control buttons are somewhat imprecise; the preamplifier's control software could be slicker

VERDICT

This is a fantastic amplifier that sets sky-high standards: the established high-end manufacturers should fret

CHAPTER? NEVER HEARD of them? That's understandable, as the company is only six years old and over much of that time has just made one product: the power amplifier on test here. Five and a half grand products from new manufacturers rarely make any impact outside a small select group of high-end junkies.

The recent arrival of the Preface preamp completes Chapter's first pre/power combination, and on the evidence of our review sample, the company is capable of great things.

The basic outline is as follows: the preamp is a remote-operated line level unit with the option of balanced and unbalanced connections. The power amp looks unchanged, but much work has been done to the internals: it now uses a Class D output stage and produces an impressive 300w per channel. Other highlights include a switch-mode power supply, instead of the more usual mains transformer/smoothing capacitor arrangement.

Build quality is excellent – this pairing is a match for any of the established high-end firms in this respect, and trumps most with a metal remote that oozes class in a way that most rivals can't match.

The preamp uses sophisticated control software that can rename inputs, as well as change the output phase and overall gain. It can even switch between unbalanced and balanced outputs. The power amp's gain can also be switched: this rare but useful feature ensures both components will work well in a wide range of systems.

However, this pairing sounds so good together that we don't see many people mixing and matching. There's a breathtakingly clean and transparent sound that's hard to better regardless of price.

If you want an instantly exciting or entertaining amplifier, look elsewhere. The Chapter simply accepts the signal from the source and makes it louder without adding or subtracting. If a recording is bold, rich or compressed, then that's what you'll get from your speakers. But given a recording of suitable quality – try Stravinsky's The Rite of Spring or Massive Attack's Angel – this combination will reward you with a crystal clear view of the music.

> "Those frequency extremes merge so completely that it's hard to discuss treble or bass as separate entities"

Every note is reproduced with class-leading precision, no matter how complex the piece of music. It's rare indeed to come across an amp that reproduces the seismic dynamic shifts of the Stravinsky piece at high levels without hardening up or rounding off the crescendos. The timing is superbly sure-footed, too.

A 300-watt power output might suggests that this amp will have all the subtlety of a steamroller, but most of the time this combination does not flaunt its power. If you listen to small-scale jazz – such as Miles Davis' Kind of Blue or the more low-key songs from Alicia Keys' debut set – then the Chapter stuns with its agility and focus. However, once the music demands muscle this pre/power delivers it with class-leading control and resolution. The tonal balance is neutral with the frequency extremes merging so completely with the midrange that it becomes hard to talk about bass and treble as separate entities. That really is a special quality.

Now, this amp won't be perfect for everyone, even you do have 10K to spend. The lack of inherent colour won't please those who expect every recording to sound great, even those that are flawed in some way. Some might find the Chapter's honesty painful, even if we admire it.

Less easy to live with are the unresponsive buttons on the remote and the lack of precision when it comes to selecting a source from the front panel control. The control knob itself feels fine, but the software could do with a little fine-tuning.

On a short demo, the pairing's lack of artifice might not be as impressive as the more vivid presentation that you're inundated with by many of its rivals. And the 'showy' blue LEDs lead you to suspect that more thought has been spent on looks than performance. However, when it comes to sound quality, little else at this price can do better. Chapter isn't a big name in high-end audio, but with products like these, it will be.

WHAT MAKES IT SPECIAL?

Both components feature touch-sensitive power switches. These look funky, but aren't particularly positive in use. They glow red on standby.

Q&A YOUR PROBLEMS SOLVED

Confused? Not sure what to buy? Our team of experts has the answers...

Which is the best tuner to buy for under three hundred quid?

PROBLEM ···› I was hoping you might be able to point me in the right direction as to what tuner I should buy that would go best with my current separates? I have a Roksan Kandy KA1 amp and Kandy KC 1 CD player with B&W CM2 speakers, and both bits of kit are on Atacama stands. I have a budget that only extends as far as £300.
J M Hayley, via email

WE SAY ···› Don't worry about only having a budget of £300. This should be more than enough to secure yourself a top tuner. And by tuner, we're assuming that you're after a hybrid model. This will combine the reception of FM, MW and DAB stations. Consequently, you'll receive all the digital-only channels on offer, such as Radio One Xtra and Capital Gold.

Our current tuner of choice has to be Sony's ST-SDB900 (November 2004, p13). It has been specially tuned for the British market and offers stunning value for money: at £225, you'll even have plenty of change from your £300 budget.

The ST-SDB900 has managed to knock our previous champ, Pure Digital's DRX-702ES, from the top of the tree, winning the tuner Product of the Year gong at our 2004 Awards. One word of warning, however – be sure you're in an area that has adequate DAB reception. It might be worth checking out the BBC website at www.bbc.co.uk/radio to find out the quality of coverage in your area.

That red badge means Sony's latest tuner has been sonically tweaked for the UK market – whatever the engineers did, it worked!

Firm up your budget before you spend

SYSTEM ···› Technics SL-P6070A CD player, NAD 302 amplifier, Mission 771e loudspeakers, Kudos 50 stands, CableTalk Talk 3, DNM Reson interconnect
PROBLEM ···› I'm considering upgrading my rather tired system, but I'm not sure which combination to choose – any advice would be gratefully received. I'm considering the Roksan Kandy MkIII, Cyrus 8vs or AVI Lab Series amplifiers, Roksan Kandy MkIII or Cyrus CD8x CD players, and Quad 11L speakers. My room is 3m x 5m, I don't think the speakers should be any larger.
Mick Cross, Portsmouth

WE SAY ···› That's quite a spread of prices you're considering, Mick – combinations of the equipment you're considering could cost you from £1570 to £2800, so you might want to firm up your budget a little.

As you know, we're fans of each and every piece of equipment you've mentioned – the way they perform alongside each other will be the clincher here. We'd suggest that the two Cyrus boxes offer most in terms of quality per pound, though the Roksan combination is probably the best match – in relative spend terms – for the Quad speakers.

If you are thinking of pushing the boat out and spending on the Cyrus or AVI equipment, they really demand a speaker even more capable than the Quads – consider the Dynaudio Audience 52 standmounters, which aren't much bigger than the 11Ls. And if you're determined to have a real splurge, the addition of a Cyrus PSX-R power supply to each of the Cyrus components will move the performance on to a level where even more expensive speakers would be justified. It's a slippery slope, so the first thing you need to do is decided exactly how much money you're prepared to throw at this scheme.

Dynaudio's Audience 52 standmounts are a step up from the impressive Quads

The best choice for some plasma magic

PROBLEM ···› Where I live my only reliable source of AV information is through What Hi-Fi Sound and Vision magazine. After plenty of research I was 48 hours away from buying the Pioneer PDP-435FDE plasma screen... until I read the three-star review in your October 2004 issue. Now I'm not so sure. Is the earlier reviewed five-star PDP-434HDE, which is still available over here, a better buy? I want a screen with a digital video input, so are there any other alternatives?
John Taylor, Bangkok

WE SAY ···› Despite several other internal enhancements over the outgoing PDP-434HDE – including Direct Colour Filter technology, which replaces the older model's glass outer filter screen with a lighter plastic film – we didn't think the PDP-435FDE's picture was as good as the model it replaced. The biggest problem was a grainy picture.

However, only last month, we tested another version of Pioneer's 43in plasma – the PDP-435XDE – alongside our flatscreen plasma Award-winner, the TH-42PE30B from Panasonic and models from Sony and Toshiba.

It was a close race, but the new Pioneer pipped the Panasonic TV in this four-way Group Test. The Panasonic is a great television, no doubt about that, but we reckon its pictures are hindered by its lack of an HDMI all-digital input.

The Pioneer PDP-435XDE is our current favourite 43in plasma

We were a little surprised by this result, because Pioneer claims that the latest winning plasma uses the same panel as the model we only gave three stars to. On paper, the new set differs only in the make-up of the receiver box, which houses the connections and the tuners. Whatever, we stand by our tests, but the key point is that the new Pioneer PDP-435XDE is the one to go for.

This fine 43in set is a fantastic buy: full-range connectivity includes HDMI and component inputs; 1024 x 768 screen resolution means it's High-Definition television compatible; while pictures via a DVD play with a digital output are the best we've ever seen from a plasma of this size. It sounds like you are planning to use a suitably equipped DVD player, so this is the plasma set for you.

I need a DVD player that plays music well, plus a plasma TV set

PROBLEM ···› I'm after a plasma TV with at least a 42in screen, and a DVD player – both with a digital video connection such as HDMI or DVI. DVD performance is the priority (not off-air TV) and I'll also play music through the DVD player. I have £10K to spend.
David Firth, via email

WE SAY ···› You're right to go for a plasma with a digital input, and (as we describe above) the Pioneer PDP-435XDE is our current fave. However, with your budget you can afford the PDP-505XDE 50-incher, which has an HDMI input and an impressive 1280 x 768 resolution. We haven't yet reviewed this monster screen, but it should exhibit similar picture quality to its five-star rated 43in brother, which is to say very good indeed.

There aren't many DVD players that are as adept at playing music as they are movies, but Arcam's DV79 is one of a rare breed. It also has an HDMI output that's able to extract the best from the Pioneer plasma.

The PDP-505XDE comes in at £6000, while the Arcam DV79 DVD player costs £1000, leaving you plenty of change from your budget to splash out on your sound system if you feel the urge in the near future.

Arcam's DV79 is a multi-talented unit, which plays CDs very musically for a DVD player, and has an HDMI all-digital output, too

THIS MONTH'S HOT TOPIC EXPLAINED

How do I get the absolute best from my record player?

There are a few basic rules to follow to get the best from a turntable. First, place it as far from the speakers as possible. Record players make a sound because their cartridge tracks the minute indentations in the vinyl's groove. Any disturbance to the deck – such as room vibrations caused by the sound coming out of the speakers or footfalls – spoils the results. Also, ensure the deck is level on the equipment support. If it isn't, the cartridge won't track the groove evenly.

What else do I have to do?

The next step is to make sure the arm and cartridge are set up properly. Most decks come supplied with an arm, so all you have to do is make sure it's fitted securely to the plinth. Once the cartridge is mounted, check the arm is parallel to the plinth surface with the cartridge sitting on a record. Some cartridges sound better with the arm slightly non-parallel, but most perform best with it straight. Get this wrong and the tonal balance and clarity suffers.

Stay on the right track

The last step is to set up the cartridge properly. Tracking weight and bias are important. Tracking weight is the adjustment that sets the amount of downward force on the cartridge. Start by setting this to the cartridge manufacturer's recommendations, but feel free to experiment as you can sometimes get better results. Too high and the bass dominates, making it sound ponderous. Too low and it's edgy and insubstantial.

Bias is a sideways force applied by the arm to balance the inward pull of the record groove. Sort this and the stylus will sit squarely in the groove and the channel balance will be spot-on. Finally, make sure that the cartridge is positioned properly in the tonearm headshell. Most deck manufacturers supply an alignment gauge. Take the time to get this right as it has a major influence on how much distortion your deck produces. You might have to reset the tracking weight after doing this, because altering the cartridge position changes the tracking force.

Two readers on the subject of cables...

SYSTEM ···› Cambridge Audio Azur 640C CD player, Cambridge Audio Azur 640T tuner, Cambridge Audio Azur 640A integrated amplifier, Monitor Audio Bronze B2 speakers
PROBLEM ···› I'm thinking about buying some specialist mains cables for my system, but I don't know where to start or how much to spend. Will such cables really make a significant difference?
Peter Fletcher, via email

PROBLEM ···› I've been a reader (and more recently a subscriber) of WHAT HI-FI? SOUND AND VISION for a while now, and it sometimes makes me cringe seeing the prices of some cables that are recommended purchases. It's especially bad when you see that many of these cables/interconnects are portraying such things as oxygen-free copper as the ultimate in quality, when it's not the case.

In my opinion, £65 for a metre of cable is excessive. Surely even for a separates system costing a few thousand pounds, an interconnect costing a mere £20 would suffice?

I can certainly see the benefits in screening, and that's a definite noticeable improvement in quality of audio, but can you explain the benefits of oxygen-free copper over conventional cabling? What benefits justify these prices?
Dave Parker, Huddersfield

WE SAY ···› These two letters are fairly representative of people's attitudes to hi-fi cables: some readers, such as Peter, ask us for a recommendation, but still wonder aloud whether it's a worthwhile upgrade or not. Others, such as Dave, are sceptical enough to feel the need to write to us and vent some spleen on the matter.

Russ Andrews Classic PowerKord, costing £75, can be a worthwhile improvement

We at WHAT HI-FI? SOUND AND VISION are a naturally sceptical bunch – we don't believe press releases, manufacturers' claims or old wives' tale. What we do is compare systems that use different products to see if one sounds better than the other. And all our experience points to the fact that the same system can sound significantly better with different loudspeaker cables, interconnects or mains cables.

We're consistently amazed at the difference a decent set of interconnects or a good bundle of speaker cable makes. Whether it's due to oxygen-free copper or ancient witches spells, we don't know and don't really care – it's the results we're judging.

Can we change your opinion, Dave? We can try, but the best course of action is for you to head down to a reputable dealer and make up your own mind. Ask to demo a selection of wires and say what you hear – and be sure to let us know how you get on.

As for your mains leads, Peter, the size of the improvement depends on the quality of the mains in your house. In most cases replacing the standard supplied lead with a specialist cable makes the equipment sound more refined, full-bodied and improves dynamics. We suggest you buy just one cable first: for your system we suggest something like Merlin's Tarantula (£50) or if you can stretch to it Russ Andrews Classic PowerKord (£75). Use it on the CD player first. If you notice a significant improvement (which we think you will) then buy addition leads for the amp and tuner as funds allow. Try to stick with the same manufacturer, as this usually gives the best results.

How do I improve my home cinema with a strictly limited budget?

SYSTEM ···› Pioneer DV-535 DVD player, Yamaha DSP-A5 multichannel amplifier, Energy Take 5 speakers
PROBLEM ···› My question is simple: how can I achieve a significant improvement without spending a fortune? Your Denon Award-winners, the AVR-2805 and the DVD-2910, both sound great in your reviews and are within my price range, but would they be that much of an improvement over what I already have? And would I need to change my loudspeakers too?
Chris Thornton, via email

WE SAY ···› We think you've got this the wrong way round. In our opinion the weakest part of your current set-up is the speaker package. Energy's Take 5 was good in its day, but would be outclassed by the likes of Epos's sub-£1000 ELS3 5.1 combination or Acoustic Energy's Evo 3B package. Once you've upgraded the speakers then take a look at the amplifier. You're right in looking at Denon's AVR-2805 (£700), but don't ignore Yamaha's RXV-1500 (also £700) as it's good value and sounds lovely, too. Don't worry about changing your Pioneer DVD player just yet. It's a solid machine and so is worth keeping for a little while longer.

Epos' ELS3 5.1 multichannel speaker package is classy kit

HOME CINEMA BUILDER

OUR STEP-BY-STEP GUIDE TO GREAT HOME CINEMA

STAGE ONE

Choose electronics that best suit your needs

HOME CINEMA SYSTEMS come in three types. Your budget will play a big part in deciding what you buy, but it's also worth thinking about what you need your system to do, both now and in the future. A cheap buy might seem like great value, but it could turn out to be a false economy in years to come.

Home cinema in a box
FROM £200

For Affordable and convenient; compact; capable of good results; usually well-equipped with extras
Against Small speakers and low power, so not ideal for bigger rooms; these systems can frequently sound poor with music
Verdict These are popular and sensible starter systems that can offer a lot for your money

Virtual home cinema
FROM £300

For No rear speakers, so your system is both easy to install and neater; convenience of a single purchase
Against The amount of surround-sound performance you get is usually fairly limited; no long-term upgrade path
Verdict A great way to keep your living room looking smart, but enthusiasts should ensure they consider true surround sound, too

Separates home cinema
FROM £750

For Flexible, high-quality sound and vision; easy to improve over time as your budget and needs allow Against Higher initial cost of ownership; bigger; usually more complex to set up
Verdict Requires more effort and outlay from you, but delivers greater rewards in return. You'll get a system that'll last for years, too

STAGE TWO

Decide on the size and type of screen you want

IF YOU ALREADY have a decent television, you might not even need to replace it, which could be a useful way of trimming your budget. On the other hand, with prices falling every month, why not go for a bigger, better picture? We recommend 28in as the minimum screen size for a home cinema set-up, which means you've got four big-screen choices.

Conventional television
FROM £300

For Great value and very high quality: you get a lot of screen size for your cash when compared to plasmas
Against Depth: conventional TVs intrude into your room, and the bigger your TV, the more the intrusion
Verdict Still the best combination of quality and performance for your money, and capable of great results

LCD television
FROM £2000

For Light, slim, easy to hang on the wall, and the best of these slimline televisions are capable of good picture performance
Against Not every set is as good as it should be for image quality; not cheap, at least not for larger screens
Verdict A great way to get a slim television that you can put anywhere. Smaller screens cost much less: you can get a 14in LCD for around £350

Plasma television
FROM £2500

For Big screen size, increasingly impressive picture quality; terrific with DVD movies
Against Not cheap; more affordable models can have poor pictures
Verdict Modern plasmas can deliver sensational image quality, and offer performance, size and styling to die for

Projector
FROM £1000

For There's no bigger screen available for your cash. Even a cheap projector will throw an 8ft picture on your wall
Against You must use a projector in a dark room to get the best results
Verdict More of an enthusiast's choice, but good value, and terrific for DVD viewing

STAGE THREE

Follow our Golden Rules when you go shopping

WE PRIDE OURSELVES on offering Britain's best buying advice, but you should treat our product reviews as just that: advice, not orders. In the end, there's no substitute for listening and looking at a product in a dealership. Only there will you be able to try before you buy. Still, it's best to go shopping forearmed: that way you can make a more informed buying decision.

Time spent on research will pay huge dividends

Paper specs tell only half the story: it's sound and vision quality that counts. Time spent reading up will help you build a better system, and save cash, too.

Plan what you need before you hit the high street

Do you want your system to be able to play music well? Do you want five, six or seven speakers? Resolve these issues before you head to the shops. Sure, you can be swayed into buying more kit by a good salesperson and an impressive demo, but if you know what to ask before you walk in the shop, you'll stand a better chance of coming home happy.

Insist on a full demo of the kit

You wouldn't buy a new car without a test drive. The same is true for audio and video. One person's nirvana is another's nightmare. Demo the system in a listening room rather than on the shop floor. If you can't have a demo there and then, make an appointment for one, and come back on that date. Alternatively, you could try to arrange a home demo with your dealer.

Take along your favourite film to compare systems

Play something you know, and ensure you watch analogue and digital TV: DVD signals can often flatter a TV's abilities.

Compare prices and service

Search around, compare prices from other suppliers, and haggle: it's a buyer's market. Don't always opt for the cheapest price, as some online deals may offer little by way of after-sales customer support.

STAGE FOUR

Position your new purchases properly

IT DOESN'T MATTER how much you spend: if you don't put your kit in the right places, you could well be disappointed with the sound and vision results of your investment. It's also important that you sit in the right place to make the most of your screen: use our size finder at the bottom of the page to select the correct display size for your room.

Screens

Avoid placing your TV in front of a window: it'll strain your eyes. Equally, make sure no internal lights, such as table lamps, shine on to the screen of the TV set.

Amplifiers and receivers

Make sure you don't obscure the cooling vents on top of an amplifier. A lot of heat is emitted via these grilles, so it's essential that it's allowed to escape properly.

DVD players

Put your player on the most level surface you can find. This will help you to get the best possible picture and sound. Avoid stacking it on other kit, too: heat (from amplifiers) can harm performance.

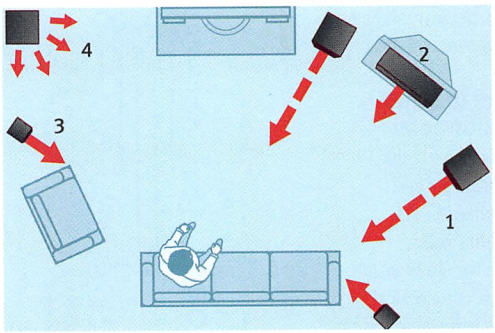
Speakers

Front speakers (1) work best if they're level with the TV. Avoid getting each speaker too close to the screen, although this is less important with slimscreen sets.

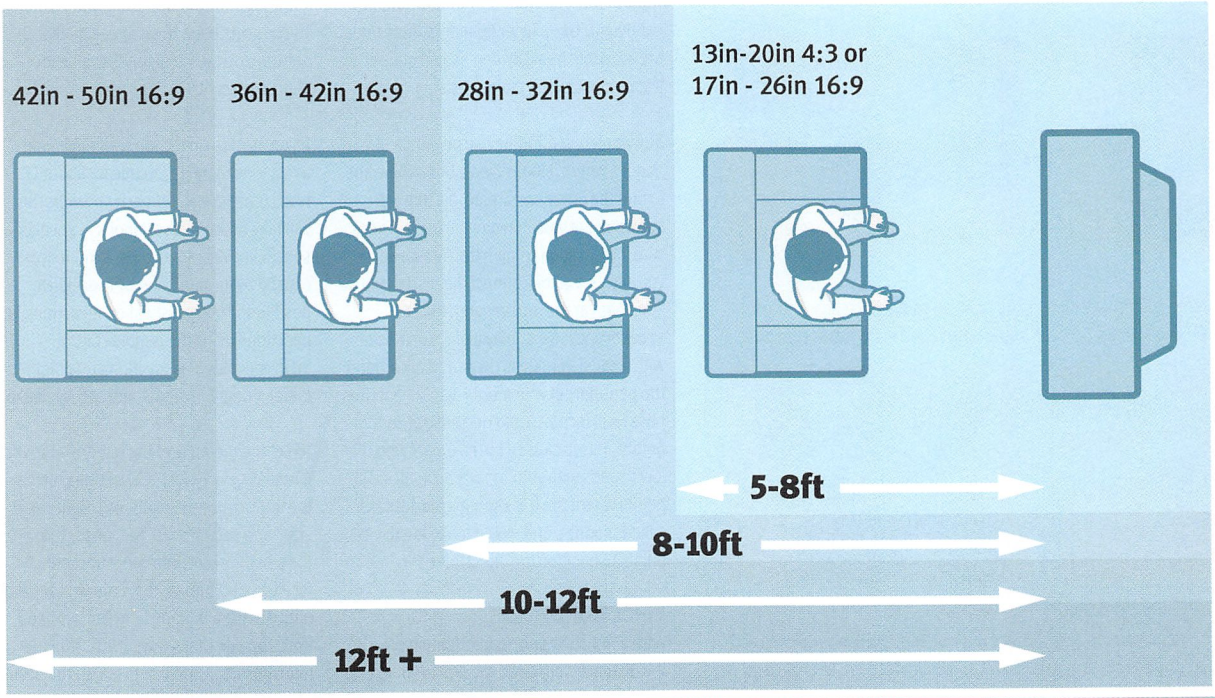
The centre speaker (2) should be placed below a TV, if you can. Use a kit rack if at all possible. It's best to try to support your speaker with Blu-tack, which will help to control cabinet resonations.

Rear speakers (3) should be mounted high on your wall – tilt them downwards and inwards if possible. Use tall stands if you don't want to fix speakers to your wall.

A subwoofer (4) can be positioned almost anywhere in your room. Put it in a corner if you want to get even more bass, or move it into the room to reduce boom, as needed.



This is only one possible way to lay out your kit, but it's fairly typical for many rooms. If you add a sixth speaker for 6.1 sound, put it in the far corner of the room, directly facing the TV set.



HOW TO FIND THE IDEAL TV SCREEN SIZE

The bigger the size of screen you use, the more cinematic your viewing. We've based our screen size finder on typical television sizes, running from 13in LCD portable to 50in plasma. So, to find your ideal screen (which is based on a suggested minimum viewing distance between your seat and your screen), follow our screen size finder, left.

STAGE FIVE

Make the right connections between all items of kit

YOU CAN USE 'freebie' wires to get your system working, but better-quality wires will produce better performance. These needn't be too expensive: we recommend a total spend of about 10 percent of your whole system's budget on cabling. Don't be tempted to skimp here: wires make a huge difference.

DVD player to screen

Most TVs use RGB Scart, so it's a simple plug'n'play connection. However, LCD, plasma and projector displays also offer component video, a three-cable connector that can also send progressive-scan pictures. If this option is available, go for it

DVD player to surround amplifier or receiver

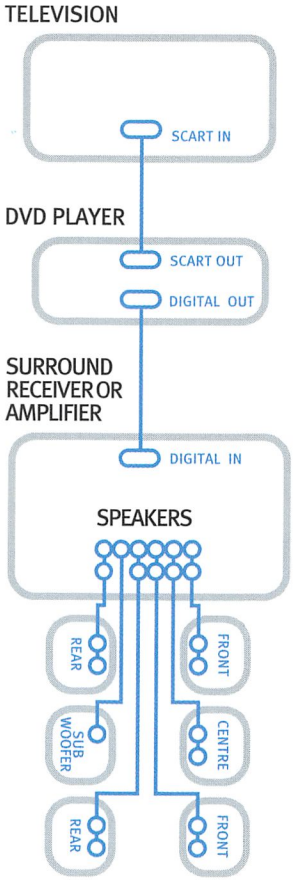
This needs a digital cable, either an optical or coaxial variety. For DVD-Audio and SACD, you'll need to use an additional set of six phono-type analogue connectors

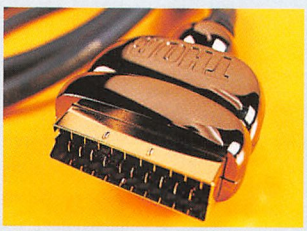
Amplifier/receiver to surround speaker package

You'll need a lot of speaker cable here. Make sure you use the same quality of cable throughout your system, because this helps create a more convincing surround effect

Amplifier/receiver to active (self-powered) subwoofer

This needs a phono interconnect cable. Often, a long cable comes in the box. Don't forget that your subwoofer will need to be plugged into the mains, as well. Keep mains cabling away from the interconnect, as it can pick up electrical hum. Screened cables guard against this





SCART

S-VIDEO
Still used on some VCRs, satellite and cable boxes, and also games consoles

COMPONENT
The premium analogue connector for DVD, though it doesn't carry sound

COAXIAL
Our preferred method for transferring digital audio signals from DVD players

STAGE SIX

Tweak your system to get the maximum from it

IF YOU REALLY want to make the most of what your system can do, try some or all of these fine-tuning tweaks. Most of them are simpler and easier to do than you might think. We understand not everyone has loads of time to spare: if that's the case, concentrate on the picture tweaks first.

Picture

If you have a widescreen TV, ensure you set the video aspect ratio of your DVD player to 16:9. This will provide a properly formatted picture that cracks the electronic 'anamorphic' code buried in most DVD discs. This both increases the size of the picture and enhances its resolution

Make sure you select the RGB video output option for your Scart connector. If your TV has only one RGB-enabled Scart input, ensure you plug the DVD player into this socket. Avoid routing your DVD player's picture signal through other components if you can. If you want to use component video instead of the RGB Scart, ensure you've turned the RGB option to 'off' in your player's set-up menus

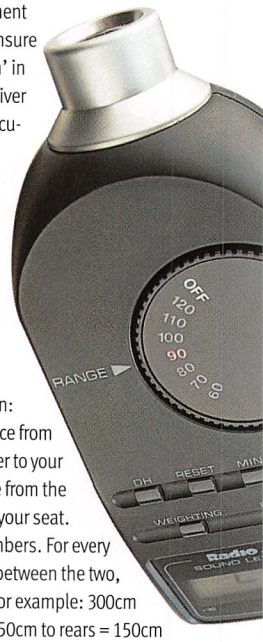
Try to get the front three speakers on a similar plane, both horizontally and vertically. Avoid a situation where the centre speaker is much lower or higher than its siblings, and try to keep all three in roughly the same line. The centre-rear speaker can be positioned some way behind your other rear speakers, since this will add to the 'depth effect' of your surround system. Each speaker works best if it's accurately 'toed in' towards your seated position, at ear height. Use a laser pointer (simple ones are available from DIY and gadget shops) if you want to get it really precise

Subwoofer positioning can be a case of 'it goes where it looks best', but if you want to find the optimum site, try placing the subwoofer at your listening position. Then wire it up to something – the AV receiver if you wish – and disconnect the rest of your speakers (at the receiver end, not the speaker end). Next, play a piece of music with a consistent bass rhythm. Walk around the periphery of your room – you'll hear the bass level increase and decrease at certain points. This is caused by the interaction of low sounds with your room's acoustics. The points where the bass sounds loudest are called 'nodes', and would make ideal points to position the subwoofer

Electronics

With a tape measure to hand, measure the distance from each speaker to your seat, and enter those figures into the 'delay' adjustment options. This will ensure the surround 'brain' in your amplifier, receiver or processor can accurately compensate for the size of your room. If the delay options are presented in milliseconds (ms) of delay rather than in distances, then you can use the following calculation: measure the distance from the front-left speaker to your seat. Then measure from the left-rear speaker to your seat. You'll have two numbers. For every 30cm of difference between the two, add 1ms of delay. For example: 300cm to front speakers, 150cm to rears = 150cm difference, so 5ms of delay is necessary



Now configure the surround receiver. First, configure the speaker sizes. Select large or small as reflects the speakers you've got (most bookshelf designs are small), and adjust the crossover point to the level that corresponds to your speakers. If you have access to six speakers in your set-up, ensure you enter in a value for your sixth, centre-rear speaker

If you want to do the job really well, use a test tone meter (available for about £30) to accurately 'weight' each speaker. This will take account of variations in speaker sensitivity, and also acoustic influences, caused by furniture and by the relative positioning of each speaker. Measuring is best done using the remote control. Sit in your listening position and point the meter straight upwards, not at the speakers

To set the meter, turn the rotary dial so that it reads 80dB. Select 'C' weighting using the button next to the display, right-hand side, and select 'slow' response. Turn on the test tone built into your surround receiver, and turn up the main volume dial until you get a reading from the left-hand front speaker that shows 75dB. Trim the tone from each speaker to match that level

HI-FI SYSTEM BUILDER

OUR STEP-BY-STEP GUIDE TO GREAT HI-FI SOUND

STAGE ONE

Decision time: separates kit or all-in-one system?

JUST LIKE HOME cinema kit, hi-fi systems come in three types. To some extent, the kit you buy will be determined by your budget – but size, style and flexibility also have parts to play. However, to us, the most important factor is sound quality, and it's 'sound per pound' that counts most in our reviews.

For The most popular form of audio system, the micro system comes in a wide range of finishes and prices. The more you spend, the better the sound quality you'll get Against These are still compact systems, so don't expect to shake the foundations; next to a separates hi-fi system, your long-term upgrade options are limited. Avoid flashing lights and other gimmicks: they tend to harm the sound

Verdict Choose wisely and you can get a great little system for very sensible money – but beware, it's not all good stuff

FROM £500

For You won't see a sexier system, short of high-end hi-fi; usually, a lot of innovative thinking

Against Style systems don't sound as good as their more prosaic micro system rivals, or full-size separates

Verdict A great way to make hi-fi fun, and can be ideal if space is short, but often you're paying a premium for style that isn't rewarded by better sound. Separates are better

Separates system
FROM £600

For Excellent sound-per-pound quality; plenty of power, even in budget systems; lots of long-term upgrade options

Against Neither as small nor as convenient as either mini or style-system rivals; you don't often get much to play with

Verdict The purist option, and we reckon the best use of your cash. If you go for a separates hi-fi system, you'll be able to build a system that'll last you for years

STAGE TWO

Choose equipment that combines together well

IF YOU'VE DECIDED separates kit is the way to go, the next thing to do is 'mug up' on the key features and sonic characteristics of each component you fancy. However, don't automatically choose five-star products: often, you can get a better-sounding system by blending four- and five-star kit together.

FROM £130

Check the player can handle CD-R/-RW discs if you want to play discs that you've made. And you'll need a digital output to record to MiniDisc or CD-R. A remote control is usually standard, and a headphone socket is handy, but make sure it has volume control. Display-off lets you kill the readout – some players sound better with it off.

Speakers
FROM £120

Huge speakers in a small room can sound poor, while small speakers might struggle to fill a big room. Check the specifications: speakers have a power-handling range (eg 20-100w) so ensure your amp's power-rating is compatible. Check sensitivity (look for a range of 87-92dB/w/m) and impedance (6-8 ohms).

Amplifiers
FROM £140

Line inputs work with CD players, tape decks and tuners, but not turntables. Phono inputs are required for connecting a turntable, but use the right kind for your cartridge. Some amps let you run a second pair of speakers to another room in the house. A 30-100w power output is usually adequate for most living rooms.

Recorders
FROM £130

A CD-R deck burns CDs you can play on most CD hardware, including portables . However, the latest technology is hard-disk (HD) recording. This can mean anything from a portable player/recorder such as the iPod to a high-end CD-R/HD such as Yamaha's CDR-HD1300E. Compressed MP3 files are small but can sound poor, while CD quality eats space but sounds great – so buy as large an HD as you can.

APOLLO HI-FI FURNITURE

STAGE THREE

Follow our Golden Rules when you go shopping

AS WITH OUR home cinema recommendations, you should treat our product reviews as just that: advice, not orders. In the end, there's no substitute for listening and looking at a product in a dealer's shop. Only there will you be able to try before you buy. Still, it's best to go shopping forearmed: that way you can make a more informed buying decision.

Find yourself a good dealer who will lavish time on you

You could just read one of our tests and then buy your hi-fi online, via mail-order or from a discount store – but we'd say don't do it. A good dealer will offer you invaluable advice and demonstrations of alternative kit that might be suitable.

Don't always jump for the cheapest deal you can find

You might find what looks like a great price, but a good demonstration and excellent after-sales service can more than justify a premium price.

Don't let price influence your ears: sometimes cheap is good

If you really can't hear the difference between a budget system and the expensive kit, then buy the budget system. It's as simple as that. There's plenty of overpriced hi-fi out there, and some incredible bargains, too.

We'll help guide you, but you should trust your own ears, too

Before you buy, you really ought to spend some time auditioning products. Let your ears decide what's best for you – what you like will often be a matter of your personal preferences. Some people like a bright, hard sound: others want warmth.

Keep an eye on the future

One of the attractions of separates hi-fi is that you can build a system that suits your needs right now – but think about what you might want to do in the future. That might mean buying an amplifier with extra inputs, or with a phono stage, or that'll support an extra set of speakers, or one that'll withstand future power upgrades.

STAGE FOUR

Buy cables and supports to maximise your investment

THE RIGHT ACCESSORIES can make or break your hi-fi. We recommend that you spend around 10 percent of your total system budget on stands, interconnects and speaker cables. This will ensure you get the very best performance from each component – and that means better sound quality. We also recommend a good equipment rack as an additional investment.

1. Phono (RCA)

The standard cables used on most hi-fi.

2. Digital coaxial

Connects a CD player's digital output.

3. Digital optical

An alternative to electrical digital cables.

4. DIN

Alternative to phono sockets, only found on specialist high-end hi-fi equipment.

5. XLR

Balanced connector for high-end hi-fi.

6. BNC

Locking connector for high-end hi-fi.

Speaker stands

These position your speakers at the correct height, and keep them firmly located, so all their energy is used to make music.

Isolation platforms

Electronic components don't like vibration. These platforms soak up interference, preventing it from being transferred to sensitive electronic components.

Equipment racks

Do the same job as isolation platforms, reducing interference and vibration.

Headphones

Ideal for solo listening, but make sure your kit has a headphone socket first.

One couple's distinctive system show it's not always easy to pick the perfect pair of speakers – but we have the solution and extras to suit

The challenge

Clive and Enza's system is halfway there, but they're crying out for some new loudspeakers (and some way to isolate them from both the floor and the attentions of their three predatory cats). In addition, they're sceptical regarding the benefits of upgrading their speaker cable. This looks like another job for the indefatigable Reader Rescue squad.

Upgrade cost

Rega was the last of the UK's specialist audio manufacturers to build a CD player, but when it did the Planet was very well received. This £498 top-loader makes an ideal partner for Rega's top integrated amplifier, the £548 Mira 3

What's the problem?

It's a common observation made about decorating, but in our experience it holds true for hi-fi as well – 'if it doesn't get done within six months, it doesn't get done at all'.

Clive and Enza's system is a fine example: they paid serious money a while ago for their two Rega boxes, and very nice they sound, too. They fully intended to replace their elderly Heybrook speakers as well, but what do you know? The system sounded OK, so they found other things to do with their money. But deep in their hearts, they knew there was more to come from the amp and CD player, and have finally decided to bite the bullet and buy those new speakers. Which is where we come in.

We suggest...

Heaven knows we never intend to enter people's homes and castigate their hi-fi decisions, but in this instance we can't help ourselves. Clive and Enza's venerable Heybrooks are parked on what look like a couple of milking stools. They have some half-baked reason for this (which involves their three unruly cats and the ninja-like assaults on the speakers when they were on shelves) but we're not having it. We're as equable as the next man, but the sound of the system, which is altogether too bloated and boomy, forces our hand. Partington's ever-reliable Super Dreadnought stands are extracted from the 'Rescue-mobile' and the results are startling. The low frequencies calm down immediately, losing their booming resonance and become far tauter and better integrated. The advantages aren't lost on Clive: "It means we can turn it up." Enza, too, is impressed by the results: "It sounds sharper, far less flappy." And it's true: it's nothing like as flappy.

We receive similar acclaim when we replace the bog-standard speaker cable they've been using with something worthwhile – in this instance, Chord Company's Carnival. The results are far greater presence and attack – Enza revels in the "fuller, more powerful" sound, while Clive enjoys the "greater detail" – and the improved "lovely bass".

Having sold the couple on the benefits of (relatively) inexpensive accessories, we get down to the matter at hand. With the Heybrooks tucked out of the way of the ever-vigilant cats, we position AVI's Neutron IV speakers atop the Partingtons – these speakers are, in fact, so compact that they sit between the spikes on the top-plates, a fact that's not lost on Clive: "Look how small they are! Do they make any sound?" Naturally, they do.

As we anticipated, the low end is more precise than the couple have been used to, and timing improves, but it's hard to disagree when Clive observes, "They're nicer at lower volumes, but too sharp when you play them loud. The treble's nice and crisp, but they're not roomy enough in the bass." Enza agrees, "They're not as warm, and much more forward than our Heybrooks." It

Our Rescue Team's fix-it list

Regular Rescuer Simon Lucas is keen to find the perfect pair of speakers for our happy couple, even if it involves three or four trips to the 'Rescue-mobile' proves what we've always said – that system synergy is vital. The Neutrons might be our best-in-class Award-winners, but with the Rega front end they sound hard and unforgiving.

So we try something different: with ProAc's Tablette 8s attached, we claw back some credibility, but there's still not the leap forward in performance that we want.

There's only one thing for it: the mere sight of Dynaudio's Audience 52SEs is enough to reassure Clive: "That's more like it!" And when they're fired up, it's soon obvious that the SEs and the Rega equipment get on like a house on fire.

We run through a selection of testing music from the couple's extensive collection – Tom Waits, Miles Davis, Plaid, Red Hot Chili Peppers – and the results are gratifying every time. The 52SEs are supremely musical in this context, offering an engaging, exciting listen without any of the fatigue that the ProAcs or, especially, the AVIs hinted at. "Nothing stands out," observes Enza. "It's a really even-handed sound." The speakers benefit from being in a little free space and we can revel in the low-end grunt and presence, the detail and the sheer verve of the presentation. Job done!

The final result?

Clive and Enza both knew they wanted new loudspeakers. They both knew that they ought to get some speaker stands. But the question of system synergy is a vexed one, especially where speakers are concerned – in this instance, we've found a perfect match and condemned an innocent couple to weeks of hard saving. For the umpteenth time, we've illustrated that there's often more to getting a great sound than picking the Award-winning or most highly rated equipment. Clive sums it up succinctly: "Speakers do my head in."

Hero

Buena Vista | Cert 12

VERDICT ★★★★★

IF YOU LOVED Ang Lee's Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon, then you'll love Hero: to describe this beautiful, almost dream-like film as just another 'martial arts' flick seems almost insultingly simplistic. Just as with its illustrious forebear, Hero is as much about look and feel as about plot and premise: director Zhang Yimou's emphasis is firmly on the artistic, with plenty of gravity defying fights (and other equally improbable feats) to dazzle and delight you.

The key difference is in this movie's budget and scale: Hero cost £18m, a drop in the ocean by Hollywood standards, but plenty in Hong Kong. As a result, the huge sets are impressive, the supporting cast plentiful, and there was still enough left in the kitty to pick up some A-list leading actors, including superstar martial artist Jet Li, and Zhang Ziyi (one of the key cast in Crouching Tiger, in case you're wondering).

Of course, you might find all this Chinese mysticism a bit hard to take, and there are certainly moments when the plot becomes a little too repetitive for its own good. But the technical merits of this DVD – and in particular, the amazingly high quality of the video transfer – mean it's an essential test disc all the same.

VISION 2.35:1 Anamorphic

Chapter 3

The attack on the calligraphy school is a great showcase of Zhang Yimou's artistic intent. As a veritable horde of soldiers (the 'Red' army) let fly with their arrows, Jet Li and Maggie Cheung (Flying Snow) move to repel the assault, armed with...well, not much, actually. Li has a sword, Cheung has her flowing robe – not the sort of firepower you'd choose to take into a battle. The resulting sequence, as the dynamic duo repel hundreds of thousands of deadly arrows, is a little barking – but beautiful just the same. It's also a great test of rear speaker surround steering.

WILL FERRELL'S LATEST is a riot, a real feast of broad-brush (and often crude) humour that works even after repeat viewings. It's not a great test DVD in sonic terms, but the picture transfer impresses, with especially vivid colours. It's a fine way to test your display's ability to cope with over-blown reds and oranges, courtesy of lashings of fake tan.

VERDICT ★★★★★

YET ANOTHER COMIC to make it to the big screen, and as ever with such adaptations, a film that'll divide opinion – but in general, Hellboy has met with more praise than criticism. High production values, dramatic sets and some pulsating action scenes add energy, while an excellent picture transfer and plenty of low-end welly ice the DVD cake.

VERDICT ★★★★★

A LITTLE SUGAR can be good for you sometimes, and few directors can portray a sweet, simple story as well as Spielberg. Tom Hanks delivers a beautifully judged and restrained performance, with only a few lapses into schmaltzy excess (notably at the end). A fine, elegant film, and a great test for surround atmosphere: your rear speakers will have plenty to do.

MAKE THE MOST OF OUR 28 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

How our Guide can help you

WHAT FOLLOWS IS the UK's most comprehensive guide to home cinema and hi-fi, and it has just got bigger and better. Follow our step-by-step guide to help you buy the best for your cash.

1. Section

All products of the same type are in the same place – for example, all the DVD players are in the first section. All sections list products alphabetically, with the larger sections being sub-divided by price – for example: DVD players 'under £400' are listed first, and those '£401 and over' follow.

2. Product name

Gives the exact name and model. Use this to search in the shops or online.

3. Price

This is a suggested retail price. It's not the price you must pay. See our shopping advice below for how to get great deals.

4. Date tested

This is the date of the issue in which the product was last tested (AW indicates the annual Awards issue). FT means the product featured in our First Tests section. GT or ST mean it faced a selection of similar products in a comprehensive Group Test or an extra-large Supertest or Megatest. (For test reprints call 08456 777813.)

5. Verdict

We give every product a star rating, out of five. Five stars mean the product is excellent, a real class-leader; a four-star verdict means the product is very good, and is highly recommended; three stars means it's an average product worthy of consideration; two stars mean you could do better elsewhere; one-star products are best avoided.

6. We said...

A short verdict on each product, with longer summaries for all our Award-winners.

7. Data

Our updated Buyer's Guide includes more essential data than ever in an easier to use format. We've included a Glossary on p218 to explain technical terms. Finally, there's a comprehensive list of contacts on p220, with every phone number you'll ever need.

How to shop smarter

Five golden rules to follow before you flex your credit card

Rule One

GET SMART Use our tests and Buyer's Guide to learn more about the products and technologies that can boost your sound and vision. It pays to be spec-savvy – you'll buy better kit for your money.

Rule Two

INSIST ON A DEMONSTRATION Make sure any kit meets your exact needs: arrange to audition it in a listening room or during a home trial – not on the shop floor, where you can't get to know it.

Rule Three

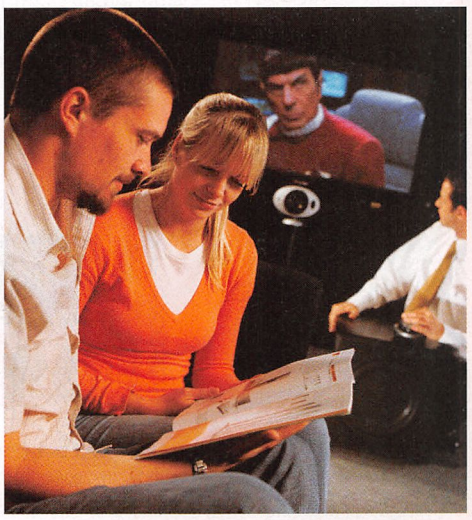
TAKE ALONG YOUR FAVOURITE DISCS Improving your system is all about getting more from the music and movies you love, and spinning well-known CDs and DVDs will help you see and hear how any components or systems measure up.

Rule Four

CHEAP DOESN'T MEAN GOOD VALUE Search around and compare prices from a range of suppliers, but always consider service and support as part of the package – an online deal might offer no customer support, for example.

Rule Five

TAKE YOUR TIME Be sure you're happy with your choices. If it takes you a while to decide, that's fine, and if in doubt, always ask.



Best buys: Home cinema

Here's the kit that's top of our favourites list in three price categories. Every month we'll update the list as new rivals enter the market and take on the current champions

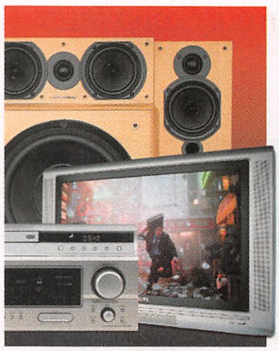
Our top three home cinema systems



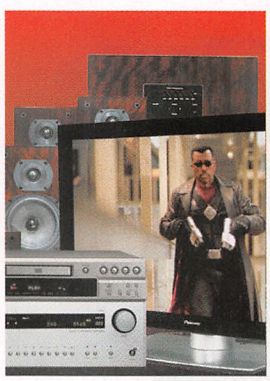
BUDGET £1890 These Award-winning budget separates give blistering images and sound

TELEVISION
Philips 32PW9509
★★★★★ £1000
Awards 2004
Using Philips' latest Pixel Plus 2 technology, this 32in CRT TV gives you fantastic contrast and depth to images, plus great colours and sound at a keen price.

DVD PLAYER
Toshiba SD-340E
★★★★★ £90
November 2004
Costing just £20 more than the Supertest-winner '240E, this player has even better picture and sound, and also adds DivX compatibility. Consider it a bargain, then.

AV RECEIVER
Denon AVR-1905
★★★★★ £300
November 2004
Today's budget receivers are sublime: bags of features and power, and a cracking ability to recreate movie effects. You'd have paid double the price for this a few years ago.

SPEAKERS
Wharfedale Diamond 9 HCP
★★★★★ £500
Awards 2004
Not a curve nor a flash of aluminium in sight on this excellent speaker package: traditional styling matched with sensational integration and plenty of drive.



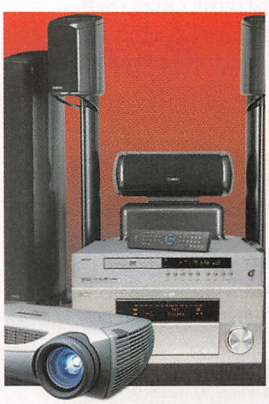
MIDRANGE £7030 This system will take home cinema to whole new level

TELEVISION
Pioneer PDP-435XDE
★★★★★ £3500
February 2005
Pioneer is right back on form with this exceptionally good 43in plasma TV. Never have large flatscreens looked so good. Be sure to pair it with an HDMI or DVI-equipped DVD player.

DVD PLAYER
Denon DVD-2910
★★★★★ £600
November 2004
The latest midrange Denon DVD player is a universal design with fine sound and excellent picture quality. Connected digitally via the HDMI socket, the picture is truly a sight for sore eyes.

AV RECEIVER
Arcam AVR250
★★★★★ £1000
Awards 2004
In a market dominated by Japanese manufacturers (Denon and others), it's great to see a Brit fighting, and winning. With movies and music this receiver is the one to beat at this price.

SPEAKERS
Quad L Series
★★★★★ £1930
Awards 2004
Take a couple of top 12Ls at the front, two gorgeous 11Ls at the back, the superb L Centre and Subwoofer, and you're away. Class build with magnificently detailed and integrated sound win the day.



HIGH-END £10,490 This Award-winning projector and electronics will put you on cloud nine!

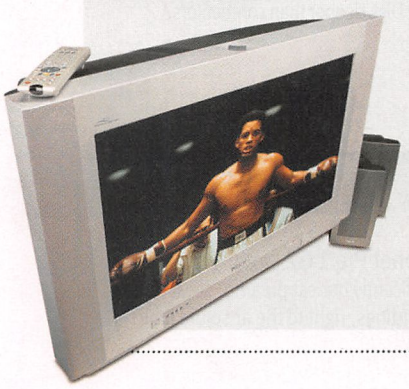
PROJECTOR
ScreenPlay 5700
★★★★★ £2200
April 2004
We gave this projector five stars when it cost £800 more, so you can imagine our pleasure at the price cut – it offers loads of connections, smooth movement, crisp lines and lovely, bold colours.

DVD PLAYER
Arcam DV79
★★★★★ £1000
August 2004
A world-class DVD player, with a cracking picture, especially via HDMI, and great build and ergonomics. In addition, this one plays CDs with aplomb. A class-leading all-in-one spinner.

AV AMPLIFIER
Yamaha DSP-Z9
★★★★★ £3300
March 2004
Nine (yes!) channel sound, automatic installation and calibration, built-in progressive scan processing so TV broadcasts look as sharp as DVDs – probably the best multichannel amplifier ever.

SPEAKERS
Mission Elegante e82
★★★★★ £3990
September 2004
The sleek, dark, curvaceous forms are straight out of Alien, and the sound is also out of this world. Not only movies, but music, too: delicate treble, full mid-range and oodles of bass.

ALTERNATIVE SOLUTIONS



Surround-sound TV
Some televisions come with built-in Dolby Digital surround sound and extra speakers, giving you a simple one-box solution. They can't match the performance of a separates set-up, but the front speakers are usually built into the set and the rears tend to be quite small, so it's a neat solution for those who don't want to accommodate lots of extra boxes. In the Buyer's Guide (starting on p107) you can find a complete list of all the models we've tested.

Games consoles
You might not know it, but both a PlayStation 2 and an XBox will play DVDs, so if you already own one you can hook it into a surround system and use it for watching movies.

Home cinema in a box
The phenomenon that is home cinema in a box continues – though these packages tend to come in two good-sized boxes nowadays, as specs and sizes have increased. However, they can't match separates for quality.

Best buys: Hi-fi

Here's the kit that's currently top of our favourites list in three price categories. Every month, we'll update the list as new rivals enter the market and take on the top contenders in our Group Tests

	BUDGET	MIDRANGE	HIGH-END
CD players Full product listings p138	 Cambridge Azur 640C £250 Amazing performance for a budget CD player: vibrant with all kinds of music.	 Cyrus CD8x £1000 The update to the astounding CD8 left us lost for words, almost... magical!	 Naim CDS3/XPS2 £7244 Two-box player that's so enjoyable it makes you want to listen to discs over and over.
Recorders Full product listings p140	 Yamaha KX-580SE £250 Best Buy cassette deck in the Awards 2002 – great for replay and recording.	 Pioneer PDR-609 £280 Very impressive CD-RW/-R recording from this Product of the Year 2002.	 Yamaha CDR-HD1300E MkII £600 Combines CD and hard-disk playback and recording – easy to use and sounds great.
Turntables Full product listings p147	 Pro-ject Debut III £130 Exceptional performance all-round from this cheap yet very effective deck.	 Clearaudio Emotion £655 ...with Aurum Classics Wood cartridge and Satisfy Arm – an awesome deck.	 Wilson Benesch Full Circle £2000 Cosmetically, it's sound as a pound, and its delivery is detailed and cohesive.
Tuners Full product listings p147	 Denon TU-260L MkII £130 An excellent-value analogue tuner, and a Best Buy in the 2003 Awards.	 Sony ST-SDB900 £250 Tuner Product of the Year: quality DAB digital and FM at a sensible price.	 Densen Beat B-800 £850 Radio really needn't be the poor relation to TV, with this sublime FM-only tuner.
Integrated amps/receivers Full product listings p151	 NAD C352CT £350 NAD enhances its reputation for quality in the budget amp arena – a cracker!	 Cyrus 8vs £800 This improved version of the Cyrus 8, the 'virtual servo' upgrade, is stupendous.	 AVI Laboratory Series £1500 This is one of the best amps below £2000. Digs deeper than competitors.
Preamps Full product listings p157	 Sugden Headmaster £659 This great-sounding preamp also doubles as a top headphone amp.	 Roksan Caspian M-series £1250 Flexible and well-equipped, with great detail resolution and speed.	 Audionet Pre 1 G2 £2000 Magnificently honest preamp: stays true to recordings, right to the absolute limit.

	BUDGET	MIDRANGE	HIGH-END
Power amplifiers Full product listings p157	Quad 909 £900 A detailed, powerful amplifier with an exceptional depth of talent.	Roksan Caspian monobloc £1100 A pair of these plus their matching pre-amp took a 2004 amplifier Award.	Audionet Amp 1 £3000 A lengthy audition shows its true class: even-handed and supremely dynamic.
Speakers Full product listings p165	Wharfedale Diamond 9.1 £180 Class-leading detail and exceptional integration – truly superb value.	Quad 11L £379 Product of the Year 2003: top sound and finish, but demands quality kit.	Spendor S5e £1095 Stunning compact floorstanders that'll parade every note of music with style.
Systems Full product listings p177	Goodmans 1104 DAB £100 CD replay and DAB radio mark out this competitively priced Award-winner.	Denon D-M31 £300 By far the best compact CD/receiver solution – a deserved Award-winner.	Linn Classik £995 Great looks, build and sonic talent from this one-box CD player/tuner combo.
MP3 players Full product listings p193	Ministry of Sound Stix £80 Good things come in small packages? This 128MB micro player is just that.	Rio Nitrus £135 Small size, ease of use and good battery life mark out this excellent 1.5GB unit.	Apple iPod 20GB £220 A truly classic design, as influential as the Sony Walkman: functional, fun and sexy.

OTHER RECOMMENDED KIT...

Sony D-NE10 £160
A well thought-out and designed personal CD player, the Sony has a classy feel and sounds impressive.

Archos AV400 £400

Pure Digital PocketDAB 1000 £129
This pocket-sized digital radio delivers superior performance and looks great thanks to its blue backlit LCD screen.

Trichord Dino £299
Best in class in the 2004 Awards, for a second year. It offers a slice of the high-end at an affordable price, with a sparklingly impressive delivery.

Speaker cables

Chord Carnival Silver £5.50/m
Helps to pick out the strands of music. Even in budget systems it's capable of uncovering an extra layer of detail.

QED XT400 £20/m (single-wire)
Best Buy in the 2003 Awards, this speaker cable offers exceptional detail resolution and an even tonal balance.

Headphones

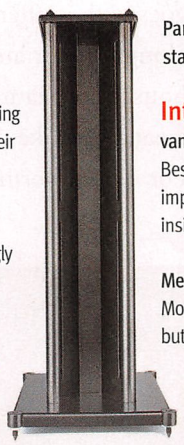
Sennheiser PX100 £30
Best headphones winners in 2004, the practical and lightweight folding design gives a really detailed sound for not a lot of money.

Sony's D-NE10 is a cracking-quality portable CD player

Beyerdynamic DTX900 £65
These headphones are ideal for extended listening at home: considering their modest price, they're extremely detailed, thoroughly involving, great value and pleasingly light and comfortable – what more can we say?

Speaker stands

Partington Super Dreadnought £169
Best speaker stands in our 2004 Awards, the Partingtons use an industrial-style design to great effect, giving your system a genuine sonic boost – and that includes tighter, better-defined bass, and a more focused midrange.

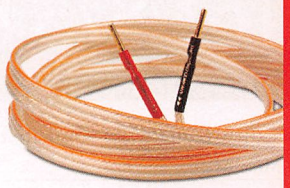


Partington's Super Dreadnought stands add great authority to sound

Interconnects

van den Hul The Name £40
Best interconnect in 2004 – highly impressive sound offering fabulous insight for not that great an outlay.

Merlin Chopin £85
More expensive than The Name, but with much improved sonics.



It's always party time if you use Chord Company's Carnival Silver speaker cable

Our top three hi-fi systems

BUDGET £680 These Award-winning budget products will make you sit up

CD PLAYER
Cambridge Azur 640C
★★★★★ £250
July 2004
Cambridge Audio has had a solid reputation for producing decent budget hi-fi for several years – but with the Azur range that reputation has gone through the roof...

AMPLIFIER
Cambridge Azur 640A
★★★★★ £250
July 2004
... and this amp/CD combo is one of the most compelling reasons to buy separates we know. Add decent speakers and accessories and this set-up will bring CDs to life.

SPEAKERS
Wharfedale Diamond 9.1
★★★★★ £180
December 2004
Rounding off this brilliant budget set-up, the Diamond 9.1s give loads of detail, good integration, and plenty of bass. They're one of the hi-fi bargains of the moment.

MIDRANGE £1429 Go one step further and you're rewarded well

CD PLAYER
Arcam C73T
★★★★★ £400
September 2004
Debuting in December 2003, this superlative CD player from Brit manufacturer Arcam still leaves the competition standing. Great dynamic force, spacious sound – and it's upgradable.

AMPLIFIER
Roksan Kandy MkIII
★★★★★ £650
Awards 2004
Plenty of features – such as a headphone socket, phono stage, and 120w/ch of power – make the Roksan easy to live with. And that's before you revel in the wonderful sonics – a joy to hear.

SPEAKERS
Quad 11L
★★★★★ £379
May 2004
Long-time favourites of ours, the 11Ls are amazing value, offering the kind of finish you'd expect to find in far costlier loudspeakers. The sound quality is truly scintillating, too.

HIGH-END £2895 Pricey, but these Award-winners will bring music to life

CD PLAYER
Cyrus CD8x
★★★★★ £1000
November 2004
If you thought the CD8 was great (we did!), then wait till you hear the latest version. The added 'x'-factor brings smoother treble, tauter bass, and makes listening to CDs incredibly addictive.

AMPLIFIER
Cyrus 8vs
★★★★★ £800
October 2004
Towering all-round ability from the 2004 version of this already extremely impressive amp. Precision, grip, stereo imaging and authority are all first-rate. Not a weakness to its game.

SPEAKERS
Spendor S5e
★★★★★ £1095
July 2004
These floorstanders are compact and bijou, delivering sound with the kind of even-handedness that the talented Cyrus pairing deserves – the S5es let the music do the talking.

ALTERNATIVE SOLUTIONS

All-in-ones keep it simple
We're passionate about our music, and for that reason nine times out of 10 recommend separates for their better quality and upgrade capability. But there are places – say the kitchen – where you want quality and simplicity. Time to look at offerings such as Denon's D-M31 mini (left) or Goodmans £100 micro, the 1104 DAB system with digital radio.

Music for the whole home
It's not going to happen overnight, but logic says that eventually all our music will be stored as digital files that can be accessed from anywhere in the home – and maybe even remotely via our portable players or work PCs. Cyrus's CyrusLink and Yamaha's MusicCast are the first generation of music servers: download your tunes to their hard disks, then play them via access modules – called "clients" – dotted all over the house. Music in the bath, anyone?

Toshiba SD-340E

This was one of the easiest Awards categories to call, because there isn't a better-performing player for the price. Better-equipped than the cheaper SD-240E, this player holds the edge with images and features, which include PAL/NTSC progressive scan. Amazing pictures for not a lot of cash – perfect!

Wharfedale Diamond SW150

The SW150 is the entry-level sub in the Diamond range, but its performance speaks volumes. Immediately apparent are the amount of weight and sense of authority that this sub lays down. Considering the price, the detail and definition to the bass are controlled and cohesive – equally adept with movies and music.

Mordaunt-Short Genie

A lot of compact speaker packages major on style – tiny aluminium satellites are the norm – but leave you cold when you actually switch them on. Our Product of the Year is another story: aluminium sats they might be, but expect a superbly balanced and integrated sound, with proper bottom end from the substantial sub.

Quad L Series (12L/11L/Lsub)

Quads 11L standmount speakers and the L Subwoofer are Award-winners in their own rights, the 11Ls several years running - while the 12L speakers have been widely praised during their lifetime. Needless to say, the L Centre complements the system superbly. Beautiful to look at, to hear and – undoubtedly – to own!

Philips 32PW9509

Bad news? Well there are no component inputs, so you can't get progressive scan images from a compatible DVD player – but hold your horses, the pictures from this TV are the best we've ever seen anyway, so what choice did we have but to give it our CRT TV Product of the Year gong? Sound and style are top-notch, too.

Pioneer PDP-435XDE

We billed one of this Pioneer's predecessors as "the best plasma ever" – and this is a title that could now be passed down to this PDP-435XDE. In order to get the best from it you'll need an HDMI or DVI-compatible DVD player, but when you match it with one of those then the results are pretty spectacular.

Sharp LC-20S1E

Voted best LCD/plasma TV up to 20in in the Awards 2004. Small but perfectly formed, Sharp's LC-20S1E is a shot in the arm for LCD technology, boasting images with unbeatable realism, superbly balanced colours and great detail at an affordable cost. Not only that, but the sound is coherent, too – a worthy winner.

QED P2110	30	05.04/FT	★★★★★	Best Scart cable in Awards 2004. Worth every penny.		●				1.0	●				●

QED P2110

QED has given its Scart range a bit of a rethink – with great success. The new cable is flatter, and has a face-on plug to ease both installation and connection respectively. Not only does it look the business, but it also does the business where it's needed: on-screen. It's cheap, convenient and a stellar performer.

Rotel 10 Series
RA-1062 Amplifier £594.95
RCD-1072 CD Player £594.95

"At the heart of the 60-watt RA-1062 is a toroidal transformer and a power supply, which Rotel claims, helps the amp maintain performance even at high volumes... Crank up the volume and, as promised, the Rotel keeps its composure and balance... If you want a £600 integrated, be sure to audition the RA-1062.

First impressions of the RCD-1072 are excellent. This is the slickest machine in this group: the casework feels solid and the finish exceptional at the price... On its own terms it remains an enjoyable and informative CD player."

Monitor Audio

SILVER S6 Speakers £499.95

"These are rather magical speakers, with a poise and grace that belies their ability to turn on the power when required. Pair them with a good CD player and suitably accomplished amp, and you won't go far wrong."

WHAT HI-FI? ★★★★★ OCTOBER 2003

GOLD Reference 20 Speakers £ SALE

"Monitor Audio has made an immensely accomplished pair of speakers in the GR 20s. In sonic and physical terms there is little to criticise; even the price is highly competitive. We have no choice but to recommend them highly."

WHAT HI-FI? ★★★★★ MARCH 2001

BRONZE B2 Speakers £179.95

"Monitor Audio's Bronze B2s sound much more expensive than their £200 price tag would suggest. In fact, they sound superb... In the competitive world of budget hi-fi, speakers don't get much better than the B2s."

Acoustic Energy Aelite Three Speakers £ SALE

"Acoustic Energy's new Aelite Threes weigh in at a hefty 18kg a piece, and their curved, real wood finished cabents both look handsome and make good acoustic sense... So how do they perform... Give them a big room and position them in free space and they'll deliver great things... If you want a big sound for sensible money, don't hesitate to audition the Aelite Threes."

DENON A/V RECEIVERS

Denon AVR-2805 £ SALE

"Last year's Award-winning AVR-2803 finally meets its match in the shape of this storming successor from Denon."

Denon AVR-3805 £799.95

"Very impressive, great with the DVD-3910."

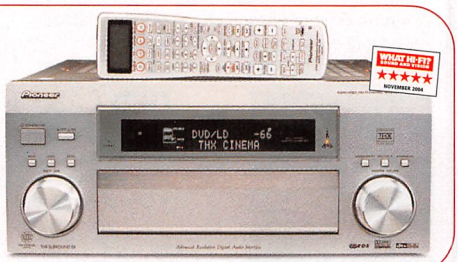
PIONEER HOME CINEMA

Pioneer VSA-AX10Ai A/V Amplifier £ SALE

"It's no exaggeration to say that the VSA-AX10Ai is the most advanced integrated home cinema amplifier in the world."

Pioneer VSX-AX5Ai A/V Receiver £999.95

"Pioneer has tweaked its 2003 Award-winning VSX-AX5i, adding additional sound-processing modes, such as Dolby Pro-Logic IIx, and improving the automatic calibration system. Minor additions they may be, but there was little wrong with the original."



DVD PLAYERS

Toshiba SD340E Region 2 £69.95
DVD Player M/Region £79.95

"The SD-340E works even better than the '240, fully justifying the extra cost."

Pioneer DV575A Region 2 £119.95
Universal DVD Player M/Region £129.95

"For outstanding all-round ability there are few players that can match Pioneer's DV-575A."

Denon DVD-2910 Region 2 £ SALE
Universal DVD Player M/Region £ SALE

"The Denon's picture quality is just sensational... Even the CD performance is up to scratch."

Yamaha
RX-V1500 A/V Receiver £ SALE

"It's strange, then, that the least expensive DVD player, Yamaha's DVD-S550, should impress us the most. Despite being less than half the price of its rivals, its performance is on par with its costly counterparts. And, for all-round ability, Yamaha's RX-V1500 is the outstanding receiver in the category.

Consequently, the Yamaha system wins this category for performance as well as value."

Arcam DiVA
DV79 DVD Player £999.95
AVR300 A/V Receiver £1299.95

"We have reviewed the DV79 DVD player and the AVR300 receiver in their own right and with both receiving a full five-star rating, there's no surprise that putting the two together produces a peach of a pairing.

The sonic experience is excellent. Whatever type of film you feed the AVR300, the sound has detail, depth and energy and in two channel mode the Arcam is the most musically adept A/V receiver we've heard... Overall, this is a stunning Arcam combination, characterised by pristine pictures and a precise sound in surround and stereo."

WHO ARE SEVENOAKS?

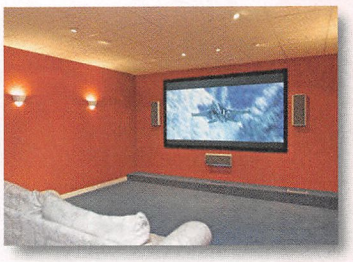
Founded in 1972, Sevenoaks Sound & Vision is one of the largest and most successful hi-fi and home cinema retailers in the country.

Each Sevenoaks Sound & Vision store stocks a wide range of quality products, covering all categories of specialist home entertainment, from Hi-Fi separates and systems to DVD players, widescreen plasma televisions and projection systems, all at highly competitive prices.

Friendly staff are available in all stores to advise, demonstrate and guide you through the home entertainment jungle.

DEMONSTRATION FACILITIES

Our comfortable demonstration rooms are among the finest in the country, many complying with full THX specifications.



CUSTOM INSTALLATION

Sevenoaks Sound & Vision's Custom Installation Service enables the integration of a home cinema or hi-fi system into your home as neatly and seamlessly as possible. All electronics can be hidden away, speakers discreetly mounted either in the wall or ceiling and the complete system operated via remote control.

Our installation experts are fully trained to the highest standards in all areas and provide a prompt, reliable and professional service. Whether you're looking for a multi-room system, a dedicated home cinema installation with a retractable screen and built-in speakers or an integrated control or lighting system, Sevenoaks Sound & Vision has a diverse range of products available to cater for all your requirements.

FREE 8 Page Custom Installation Brochure available now from your nearest store or via our website.

SEVENOAKS WEBSITE

The Sevenoaks Sound & Vision website has news and information on the Sevenoaks group and detailed pages to help you locate your nearest store.

SPECIAL OFFERS

There are hundreds of special offers and stock clearance items available from our stores nationwide - many with savings of up to 50%. To view our regularly updated product lists, visit www.sevenoakssoundandvision.co.uk and click on special offers

PRICING POLICY

Whilst we do not claim always to be the cheapest, we try to ensure our prices are highly competitive. Take into account the expert advice, unrivalled product selection, demonstration facilities and excellent pre, during and after sales service and the lower price might not look such good value.

In the event you can find the same products and excellent service at a lower price, please bring it to our store managers' attention. We will always endeavour to offer you the best deal.

Ixos XHD-608-100

It might only be a small connection between DVD player and receiver, but a good coaxial cable is still a vital cog in anyone's home cinema machinery. For the money, Ixos's XHD-608-100 is a highly talented upgrade that'll give your system a more muscular and detailed sound – a great buy, and our favourite coaxial cable.

Cyrus CD8x

The way our CD player Product of the Year brings music to life is worringly addictive – you can't wait to swap from one favourite track to the next. Bass is taut, well-defined and musical, while treble is smoother and incredibly refined, and vocals and instruments ooze emotion and life. This CD player is a dream come true.

Yamaha CDR-HD1300II

Product of choice in this category last year, the Yamaha has all the bells and whistles allowing you to rip, burn and archive CD-R/-RWs via the spacious hard disk. The enhanced MkII version now has a storage-friendly 120GB hard drive (up from 80GB), which is good for around 180 hours of uncompressed music.

Cyrus CyrusLink

"Wireless Cyrus fills the whole house with music" was our headline when we tested the CyrusLink system in March 2004. And that's what it's capable of, with aplomb: sound quality is comparable with a good CD player. Cyrus has taken a bold step towards the future of home entertainment, even if it isn't cheap.

Clearaudio Emotion package

Our Turntable Product of the Year is truly a deck that deserves respect. Tested with the very capable Satisfy tonearm and Aurum Classics Wood cartridge, it's gorgeous to look at and feel - and it sounds even better. If you can live with the manual belt change, you'll have hours of musical pleasure to look forward to.

Pro-ject Debut III/Ortofon OM5E	130	12.04/GT	★★★★★	Best turntable under £250 in Awards 2004. Incredible value.	●	●			●			●	●	●			9
Pro-ject Debut Phono SB	170	10.02	★★★★★	Terrific, at this price point there's no contenders - has a phono stage built-in.	●	●		●	●			●	●	●			2
Pro-ject Perspective	750	07.04/GT	★★★★☆	Impressive, but it doesn't quite match the performance of the very best.	●	●		●	●			●		●		●	Ac
Pro-ject RPM 4/Orto 510 Mk2	350	08.02/GT	★★★★☆	Very grown-up - conveys that lovely organic feel you get from great vinyl playback.	●	●			●			●	●	●			Bk
Pro-ject RPM 6 SB	500	12.03/FT	★★★★☆	An added speed box to the RPM 6 SB results in a fine-sounding, user-friendly deck.	●	●		●	●			●		●			Bk
Pro-ject RPM6	500	08.02/GT	★★★★☆	Great, but add a cartridge and it's expensive - music has excellent power.	●	●			●			●		●			Wt
Pro-ject RPM9X	1000	04.04/FT	★★★★☆	Very good and if you enjoy a big, bold performance, it's really exceptional.	●	●			●			●		●			2
Rega P2	247	12.04/GT	★★★★★	Impressive performer that sounds rather more expensive than actually it is.	●	●			●			●		●			Bk
Rega P3	298	08.00/GT	★★★★★	Best Buy in Awards 2001. The finesse of decks that cost twice as much.	●	●			●			●		●			8
Reson Rota 1/Reson Reta/Etile	3100	05.00/FT	★★★★★	Terrific if you buy for your ears rather than your eyes - precise and punchy.	●				●			●	●	●			Ac
Roksan Radius 5 (wood)	750	10.03/GT	★★★★☆	Solid performer that hardly puts a foot wrong. Deserves to be on the audition list.	●	●			●			●		●			3
Roksan Radius V/Nima arm	850	07.04/GT	★★★★★	An excellent deck - even more talented than the wood version we tested last year.	●	●			●			●		●		●	Ac
Roksan Xerxes X	1100	06.01	★★★★★	Great all-rounder, will please rockers and classical buffs with a fatigue-free listen.	●	●		●	●					●			2
Roksan Xerxes X (+DSU 1.5)	2000	02.04/GT	★★★★★	Stunning combination of resolution, build, dynamics and timing - still brilliant.	●	●		●	●			●	●	●			2
SME Model 20/2A	4713	09.96	★★★★☆	The precision makes it worth seeking out, but rockers may be tempted elsewhere.	●	●	●	●	●					●		●	Bk
SOTA Comet Sup/RB300/Platin	650	11.01/ST	★★★☆☆	Offers an attractive sonic performance, but finish and cosmetics are below par.	●	●			●			●	●	●		●	Bk
SOTA Millennia	4750	05.00/FT	★★★★☆	Fabulous-sounding deck that brings out the magic of any LP collection.	●	●		●	●					●		●	Bk
Sound By Design Quasar LE/CG	3990	08.97	★★★★☆	An unusual approach to turntable design, but one which works really well.	●	●			●					●		●	Go
Technics SL1210 MK5G	550	10.03/GT	★★★☆☆	Solid, dependable DJ deck, but it can't keep up in the world of sound per pound.	●	●		●	●			●	●		●		Gy
VPI HW-19 Junior	550	03.98/GT	★★★★★	A truly involving listen and peerless at this price. Includes a Rega RB300 arm.	●	●			●			●		●			Bk
Wilson Benesch The Full Circle	1995	02.04/GT	★★★★★	Best turntable over £1000 in Awards 2004. A sound that digs up plenty of detail.	●	●			●			●	●	●

NAD C352CT

We first tested this amplifier in its original C352 guise and weren't very impressed with the lack of coherence and grip to the bass. NAD reworked the amp's bottom end for the C352CT, creating this year's stereo amplifier Product of the Year. It's stunning value, with a majestic sound you have no right to for this kind of money.

"Alan Rayner of Home Cinema Choice finds that all too rare combination of style and performance in this impressive series of home theatre speakers from Celestion. The C1's do sound very good, while C4c has a monopod foot to raise and lower the angle of the centre speaker relative to those listening, the C5r rears are tiny and look like they just couldn't perform – but they do, and the subwoofer is gorgeous, and dead clever with it. PLEASE NOTE We quite frequently hear of our competitors (who are naturally frustrated at our prices) telling customers that the only reason we are so cheap is that our goods are either seconds, returns, stolen, secondhand etc... This is utter nonsense and simply sour grapes on their part - they must be desperate! If it were true it would be both illegal and hardly good customer relations, something we assure you we take very seriously.
A few of the products we sell are exclusive to us but this is only for proven product where we are able to purchase huge quantities, often direct from the factory, cutting out other retailers and the distributors' profit margin, thereby saving you typically 33%.
All stock is BRAND NEW IN SEALED CARTONS and fully guaranteed for one year unless clearly stated otherwise. We are unable to guarantee that multi-region machines will play all future disc releases. Further upgrades may be required.

TSP = Typical Selling Price
TSPs are based on information supplied by: What Hi-Fi?, Manufacturer, Hi-Fi Choice, Home Cinema Choice, T3, What Video, What DVD, Home Entertainment, Total DVD, What Hi-Fi? 'Stereo on the go' supplement & DVD Buyer. Further information available on request.

GRADED Products refer to ex-display, mail order returns or ex-service products, thoroughly tested and re-sold with a 3 month guarantee.

OSP denotes the original selling price.

LAST FEW... SO HURRY! Stocks limited/not available in all stores. Some may be ex-display or ex-repair at this price at this price (ex-display stock carries a 12 month warranty, ex-repair goods have a 3 month guarantee). Please call first if making a special journey. All stores have a clearance corner full of ex-demo/service and secondhand bargains that are guaranteed for 3 months and browsers are definitely welcome.

IF WE HAVEN'T GOT IT - WE'RE SORRY Some of these offers are end-of-line clearouts and therefore by definition finite in supply the answer is don't delay!

CORPORATE PURCHASERS
We offer a bulk purchase service for businesses (or other organisations) who are looking to buy our products. STOP PRESS! TRADE COUNTER FOR ALL - A UK FIRST

We have, in all stores a genuine, real, kosher Trade Counter for our open box* products, where we sell thousands of items a month at our cost price or less!

How can we afford to do this? Good question. Because we have to. Our stock turns over so fast and models change so quickly in our industry that we are continually finishing lines/promotions etc and must make way for new products in our tiny stores.

This means that any small quantities of these products, including the last items/ones off display, must be cleared out as soon as possible.

To do this we have decided to slash the prices of these products to our genuine cost price or less.

At these prices, Trade Counter products are fully guaranteed for 3 months - we must be mad! But hurry, these prices are obviously unrepeatable. When they're gone, they're gone..

Arcam FMJ P1	1100	09.04/GT	★★★☆☆	Two P1s fail to deliver excitement when combined with the C30 preamplifier.		●	180		●		2
Arcam FMJ P7	2600	05.03/GT	★★★★★	The P7 sounds huge and paired with the AV8 processor the combo is simply stunning.	●		7x150		●		2
Audionet Amp 1	3000	04.04/FT	★★★★★	Not cheap but combined with the Pre 1G2 preamp the sonic performance justifies the price.	●		200			●	Bl
Bryston 3B-SST	1900	09.04/GT	★★★★☆	Fine-sounding combined with the BP25 preamps, but they could do with a cosmetic update.	●		150			●	Bk
Chord Electronics SPM 1200E	5765	05.01/FT	★★★★★	The CPA 4000 preamp and this 1200E belong at the forefront of high-end amplification.	●		350		●	●	Sl
Chord Electronics SPM 600	2330	07.99/FT	★★★★★	Used with CPA 2200 preamp, the Chords are hard to beat - excel in detail retrieval.	●		130		●	●	Sl
Cyrus Mono X	1200	08.03/FT	★★★★★	The original PreX with MonoX is capable of breathtaking speed and detail resolution.		●	150		●	●	2
Cyrus SmartPower (x3)	1800	05.03/ST	★★★☆☆	Makes an affordable 5.1 channel system with the AV8 processor but it lacks oomph.	●	●	60	●	●		Bk
DNM PA3	1900	05.01/FT	★★★★★	Superlative resolution, dynamics and timing. Tested with the Reson 3C Primus preamp.	●		40			●	Bk
DNM PA3S	2900	03.99/FT	★★★★☆	Used with the DNM 3C six, merits a serious audition, but cosmetics don't impress.	●		23			●	Bk
EAR/Yoshino 861	3900	Awd.01	★★★★★	Gutsy but involving valve-amp; used with 864 preamp, it's something rather special.	●		32	●	●	●	Sl
GRAAF GM 20	3500	01.00/FT	★★★★★	Partner with 13. 5BII preamp for a truly magical valve combination. Brings music to life.	●		25	●	●	●	Bk
Krell FPB-400CX	11997	01.03/FT	★★★★★	Paired with the CD/preamp this FPB 400cx has sky-high ability to match its stellar price.	●		400			●	Bk
Linn 2250	1995	09.04/GT	★★★☆☆	Combine with the Exotik pre amp for great looks and feel - sonic abilities fall short.	●		115		●	●	2
Linn LK140	875	03.00/GT	★★★★☆	Much to like about the LK140/Wakonda combo, but it's not the most transparent around.	●		95		●		Bk
Moon W-3	3450	Awd.01	★★★★☆	Beautifully built, the P-3/W-3 combination puts long-term listenability before attack.	●		120	●	●	●	2
Myryad MXA2150	1500	07.04/FT	★★★★☆	This power amp is a real gem, the MXP2000 pre we combined it with lost it the star.	●		150				2
Myryad MXA7150/MXD6000	5900	11.04/FT	★★★★★	Sombre looking but the 7150 amp with the MXD6000 processor is a top-class performer.			7x150				SL
Naim NAP 200	1385	07.03/FT	★★★★★	Naim's pairing of this power amp with the NAC202 preamp is very tempting indeed.	●		70				Bk
Naim NAP 200 (with NAC 282)	4215	09.04/GT	★★★★☆	Delivers a music buzz that few rivals can match - paired with the NAC 282 and Hi-Cap.	●		70		●		Bk
Parasound Halo A52	1700	11.03/FT	★★★★☆	It's not cheap, but this is an excellent piece of kit with fine sound and huge appeal.	●		5x125	●	●	●	Sl
Primare A30.2	1200	01.03/FT	★★★★★	Best Buy in the Awards 2003. With the Pre30 it has a powerful, generous sound.	●		120	●	●	●	Bk
Primare A30.5 MkII	1700	05.03/ST	★★★★☆	Good all-rounder with the SP31.7 processor but it lacks the last word in sheer brute force.	●		5x120		●		Bk
Quad 909	900	11.02/FT	★★★★★	A smart compact powerhouse that's one of those rare fit-and-forget components.	●		140		●		Sl

Quad 909

Another excellent product from the legendary British hi-fi company Quad, the 909 is a solid, compact power amplifier that delivers an outstandingly neutral tonal balance and presentation. In other words, it gets out of the way and lets your music do the talking... which is just how we think it ought to be.

WHAT HI-FI? SOUND AND VISION BEST IN CLASS

Trichord Dino

Trichord saw a gap in the phono market and launched the superb Dino to fill it. Cutting costs without losing quality is tricky, but Trichord managed it with some grace. Overall, the Dino manages to unearths all kinds of detail and then perform the tricky task of assembling it all into a coherent and enjoyable whole – magic!

Gale Silver Monitor	80	07.01/GT	★★★☆☆	Good and are at their best with rock, but watch out for peaky treble.	●		88	6	90	●	27x18x17	2
Heybrook HB1 2000	180	09.02/ST	★★★★☆	Classy and can be sublime with classical music. Not for Rock and Dance fans.	●		90	6	75	●	38x21x24	2
Heybrook HB2	230	11.00/FT	★★★★☆	Fine dynamics and scale, but not quite as balanced as the competition.	●		90	6	100	●	43x24x29	2
Heybrook HB3	350	05.02/ST	★★★★☆	Will appeal to those who place refinement and definition above all.		●	90	6	100	●	90x24x29	2
Heybrook HB4	500	03.01/ST	★★★★☆	Capable speakers that excel with voices but are too polite, so lack sparkle.		●	90	6	150	●	100x24x29	2
Heybrook Point Five	130	01.01/ST	★★★★★	Superb value for money, they are a genuinely musical pair of speakers.	●		89	6	70	●	30x17x20	2
Jamo E805	179	09.03/ST	★★★☆☆	Small in stature and sound, but the price tag is comparatively large.	●		90	8	100	●	31x19x24	3
JMlab Chorus 706s	270	01.04/FT	★★★★☆	Offer an impressively sophisticated sound for a very reasonable price.	●		90	8	80		37x22x25	3
JMlab Chorus 707s	350	02.05/ST	★★★★☆	Imposing in many ways - audition if your tastes run to the forceful.	●		92	8	110		49x24x30	3
JMlab Chorus 714s	420	07.04/GT	★★★★★	Deeply impressive on every level. The 714s are clear winners in their class.		●	91	8	90		90x20x27	3
JPW 201	119	02.02/GT	★★★★☆	Fine-looking tiny speakers with a more than acceptable sound at the price.	●		90	6	60		26x15x24	2
JPW 202	159	03.02/ST	★★★★☆	Solid performers but don't have the talent to worry the class leaders.	●		91	6	80	●	38x21x30	2
JPW Millennium ML 310i	120	10.99/ST	★★★★☆	A fine budget speaker design, with a pleasant and engaging sound.	●		89	6	70	●	31x18x17	Bk
JPW Millennium ML 510i	150	06.00/ST	★★★★☆	Pleasant, listenable speakers with fine rhythmic ability, but they lack detail.	●		89	6	70	●	33x22x20	2
KEF Cresta 10	130	09.03/ST	★★★☆☆	They're cheap, but KEF can do much better than these disappointments.	●		90	8	100	●	31x19x24	3
KEF Cresta 30	200	12.03/FT	★★★☆☆	A better bet than the Cresta 10s, but the series is a disappointment.		●	90	8	100	●	83x19x24	3
KEF Q1	250	02.04/GT	★★★★★	Highly enjoyable speakers provided they're set up well and driven properly.	●		91	8	120	●	35x22x32	3
Linn Classik Unik	250	01.03/GT	★★★★★	With the Classik Music System they're easy to listen to and have fine insight.	●		88	8	n/a		36x32x34	2
Magnat Vector Needle 11	129	01.01/ST	★★★☆☆	Well-built, cute and certainly have sonic merits, but there's better out there.	●		89	6	50		22x13x15	3
Magnat Vintage 120	349	12.01/ST	★★☆☆☆	Look brilliant, but disappoint with a ham-fisted sonic performance.		●	91	4	150	●	97x20x32	2
Magnat Vintage 420	499	05.02/ST	★★☆☆☆	Well built but poorly balanced speakers - there are more attractive options.		●	92	4	280	●	100x25x31	4
Mission 780SE	350	07.03/GT	★★★★☆	Victims of rapidly improving competition - still good, no longer outstanding.	●		87	8	150	●	28x17x27	Ald
Mission m31i	140	12.04/GT	★★★★★	We fully endorse the 'i' for 'improved', these are great little speakers.	●		88	8	75	●	26x17x28	3
Mission m32	170	12.03/FT	★★★☆☆	Capable speaker, but in the face of classy competition it comes up short.	●		90	8	100	●	32x20x33	3
Mission m34i	330	02.05/ST	★★★★☆	Grand, imposing sound - if you must have a floorstander listen to these.		●	93	8	150	●	25x20x33	3
Mission m51	300	07.02/FT	★★★☆☆	Look, and sound, big and bold. They're not the most refined around.	●		87	8	100	●	32x21x35	3
Mission v60	250	02.04/GT	★★★★☆	We like these a lot, but some of the magic of older designs isn't there.	●		86	8	100	●	30x18x24	3
Mission v62	500	08.03/FT	★★★★☆	Promising start for Mission's Volare range - good value and do little wrong.		●	88	8	100	●	89x21x33	3
Monitor Audio Bronze B2	200	12.04/GT	★★★★★	Best Buy in the Awards 2003. Well built, refined, sweet and very musical.	●		90	6	100	●	35x19x25	2
Monitor Audio Bronze B4	350	02.03/GT	★★★★☆	Exciting and muscular listen, but not the most faithful reproduction on offer.		●	91	6	150	●	85x19x26	2
Monitor Audio Silver S5	450	05.04/ST	★★★★☆	Fine speakers, but don't do enough to challenge for class honours.		●	90	6	100	●	80x18x20	4
Mordaunt-Short Avant 902	150	12.04/GT	★★★☆☆	Authority and scale in abundance, but they're decidedly average in other ways.	●		89	8	100	●	29x17x27	2
Mordaunt-Short Avant 906	350	05.04/ST	★★★★☆	Thrive in large open spaces but not the last word in sonic excellence.		●	90	4-8	150	●	85x17x30	2
Mordaunt-Short MS912	200	09.02	★★★☆☆	Disappointing design which is average with h-fi but better with movies.	●		89	6	150	●	36x21x30	2
Mordaunt-Short MS914	250	07.04/GT	★★★★★	Cracking value for money - refreshingly uncomplicated, full of enthusiasm.		●	89	6	150	●	90x21x27	2
NHT SB2	300	02.05/ST	★★★★☆	Among the most enthusiastic speakers around, only drawback is the treble.	●		92	8	150	●	95x20x33	3
Opera Mini	495	08.04/GT	★★★★☆	Italian and beautiful - deliver a lively and entertaining sound.	●		86	8	50		28.16.21	2
Quad 11L	379	05.04/ST	★★★★★	Best stereo speakers £250-£500 in Awards 2004. Sky-high standard.	●		86	6	100	●	33x19x24	4
Quad 12L	500	11.03/GT	★★★★★	Stunning - massively transparent but a joy with the right kind of kit.	●		88	6	125	●	35x21x25	4
Quadral Maxi 300	145	11.02	★★☆☆☆	They're stylish and very well built, but sonically they're unremarkable.	●		87	8	150		20x13x13	3
Revolver R33	499	04.03/ST	★★★★☆	Highly competent standmounters, not ideal if you value excitement above all.	●		89	8	100	●	39x21x28	Mp
Revolver RW16	399	05.04/ST	★★★★☆	Immensely likeable - take a longer listen than normal to get hooked.	●		90	6	100	●	34x18x23	2
Richard Allan Minette 2	149	04.97	★★★★☆	Now back at their original bargain price, offering plenty of bass for the cash.	●		89	8	100	●	30x16x20	Gy
Ruark Acoustics Epilogue II	345	08.02	★★★★☆	Mightily appealing with classy build and fine midrange - warrant an audition.	●		87	8	100	●	27x19x23	Va
Scandyna Minipods	350	06.00/FT	★★★☆☆	Fun and stylish, but for the serious audiophile they lack detail and dynamics.	●		90	4	100		34x21x22	Va
Tannoy Fusion 1	100	08.04/FT	★★★★☆	Classy and largely capable - if cash is tight then these are a solid buy.	●		87	8	70		30x17x22	2
Tannoy Sensys DC1	449	07.03/FT	★★★★☆	Highly competent speakers, but would benefit from a more passion.	●		88	8	110	●	41x21x29	3
Triangle Comete Es	495	01.05/FT	★★★★☆	Exciting and involving but not what you'd call a relaxing listen.	●		91	8	80	●	17x14x13	3
Wharfedale Diamond 8.1	120	09.03/ST	★★★★☆	Best Buy in the Awards 2001. Neat solution for small listening rooms.	●		86	6	100	●	30x20x18	2
Wharfedale Diamond 8.2	150	02.04/GT	★★★★☆	Impressive but they are no longer a match in this highly competitive field.	●		86	6	100	●	36x21x26	2
Wharfedale Diamond 8.3	200	12.01	★★★★★	Terrific performers for the money. Few can match their all-round abilities.		●	86	6	100	●	80x21x26	2
Wharfedale Diamond 9.1	180	12.04/GT	★★★★★	Stereo speakers Product of the Year in Awards 2004.	●		86	6	100	●	30x19x28	4

Wharfedale Diamond 9.1

Twenty quid change from £200 and you're blessed with a fantastic pair of stereo speakers. You might say these have been 20 years in the making because that's how long Wharfedale has been updating and tweaking its Diamonds – and rough they are not! Tight bass, clear midband, and sparkling treble for not a lot of cash.

Wharfedale Diamond 9.4	300	02.05/ST	★★★☆☆	Can't hold a candle to their little brother - they're a plodding, unexciting listen.		●	86	6	120	●	85x22x30	2
Wharfedale Pacific Evo 10	320	07.03/GT	★★★★☆	Loads of bass for the money but they lack the sparkle of the best at this price.	●		87	6	150	●	38x23x34	3
Wharfedale Pacific Evo 20	450	06.03/GT	★★★★☆	With more control and detail they'd win full marks. Position away from walls.		●	87	6	150	●	85x23x34	3
BUDGET £501 to £1500
AAD E-48	595	03.03/GT	★★★☆☆	Slick-looking and well-constructed and offer decent value for money.		●	90	8	150	●	108x13x31	2
Acoustic Energy Aelite Three	750	09.04/FT	★★★★★	Big, bold and balanced speakers for sensible money.		●	89	8	175	●	92x23x30	3
Arcaydis AK3	599	07.03/FT	★★★★★	Highly enjoyable; look plain and boxy but sound sweet and full-bodied.		●	89	8	100	●	79x20x24	Va
Arcaydis AK3.2	950	06.04/FT	★★★★☆	Spritely pair of floorstanders that should certainly be worth an audition.		●	89	8	100	●	90x20x24	3
ART Skibo	800	08.03/FT	★★★★☆	Fast and fun enough to make these speakers worth a serious listen.	●		90	8	n/a		44x19x25	2
ATC SCM12	1000	12.03/GT	★★★★★	Best Buy in Awards 2003. Extremely honest, work best with muscular amps.	●		84	8	300	●	39.22.26	Ch
Audio Note AZ-Three	799	10.01	★★★★☆	Stunning when fed the right kind of music. Rockers may find they lack punch.		●	94	6	100	●	100x28x32	Va
AVI Pro-Nine-Plus	800	06.03/ST	★★★★★	Exceptional sound quality and solid build - put them on the shortlist.	●		90	8	250		34x23x24	2
B&W 704	1400	03.04/GT	★★★★★	Offers detail and clarity that is unrivalled at this price, but could time better.		●	90	8	150		96x22x32	5
B&W 705	900	12.03/GT	★★★★☆	Low end is a little short of authority but otherwise they're stunners.	●		89	8	120	●	42.22.32	5
B&W DM603 S3	600	08.02/FT	★★★★☆	Highly listenable - big bass makes them ideal as home cinema fronts.		●	90	8	150	●	91.20.29	3
Castle Conway 3	950	10.02/ST	★★★☆☆	Promise much, don't have the sonic ability to challenge the best at this price.		●	88	8	175	●	91x22x27	9
Castle Harlech S2	1100	10.01	★★★★☆	Good-looking and well-built, they really deliver on speed and resolution.		●	89	8	150	●	94x20x32	9
Castle Howard S3	1450	08.01/FT	★★★★☆	Excellent craftsmanship and solid performance. Well worth an audition.		●	88	8	175	●	99x21x32	9
Castle Pembroke	550	08.00/FT	★★★★☆	Fine-looking and well-built, but they lack that last ounce of sparkle.		●	88	8	75	●	73x19x21	9
Dali Evidence 470	1100	04.00	★★★★☆	Slightly flat sound but deliver plenty of information and look stylish.		●	90	4	200	●	97x23x31	3
Dali Royal Menuet II	781	10.00	★★★★☆	Refined and musical performers that work best in smaller rooms. Superb.	●		86	4	100	●	26x16x19	4
Diapason Emera	875	08.04/GT	★★★★★	Capable of impressive performance, but they lack dynamics and drive.	●		89	8	130		37x20x29	3
Dynaudio Audience 52	650	11.03/GT	★★★★★	Best Buy in the Awards 2003. Classy and will grace any mid-price set up.	●		86	4	150		33.20.26	4
Dynaudio Audience 52SE	950	12.03/GT	★★★★★	Excellent speakers that really do sound like a special edition upgrade.	●		86	4	150		35x20x26	4
Elac FS207.2	1000	09.04/FT	★★★☆☆	Decent performers for the money, but not the greatest.		●	89	4	250	●	94x17x27	2
Energy Connoisseur C-7	900	04.04/FT	★★★☆☆	Do the job, but for this kind of money you can buy some amazing speakers.		●	93	8	200		97x17x39	2
Epos M15.2	699	05.04/FT	★★★★☆	Accomplished all-rounders, offering solid performance at a reasonable price.		●	88	8	100	●	80x20x25	3
Ethos Acoustics LS5/12B	1495	07.00/GT	★★★★☆	Conjure up a surprising amount of bass weight but need more soul.	●		83	8	130	●	30.19.21	Va
Everything But The Box Terra II	1500	10.04/FT	★★★★☆	Unique styling which won't suit everyone, but they are extremely capable.		●	86	8	100	●	38x18x28	5
Jamo D430	629	10.03/FT	★★☆☆☆	Poor performers - just not up to the high standards of the competition.	●		88	4	140		34x21x31	3
JBL Ti2K	1400	03.00/FT	★★★★★	Terrific design that looks great - astonishing sound for under £2000.	●		88	8	200	●	42x28x42	2
JMlab Electra 906	1000	01.03/FT	★★★★☆	Technology kings, but they don't have all-round sonic ability to compete.	●		90	8	75	●	42x22x32	3
KEF Q5	600	03.03/GT	★★★★☆	Good, but more suited to a home cinema role than music reproduction.		●	91	8	150	●	84x24x32	3
KEF XQ Five	1500	05.03/FT	★★★☆☆	Aren't the sonic stars we expected - the Reference range does better.		●	90	8	150	●	101x23x30	5
KEF XQ One	750	06.03/ST	★★★★☆	Not the best, but if their style appeals we'd urge you to take a listen.	●		89	8	120	●	42x23x31	5
Linn Katan	650	09.01	★★★★☆	Involving and entertaining performers - work well with a wide range of music.	●		85	8	n/a	●	34x17x23	4
Linn Ninka	1100	10.01	★★★☆☆	Unusual shape and beautiful finish, but their performance is only average.		●	90	4	n/a	●	98x25x28	3
Meadowlark Swift	1000	06.03/ST	★★★★☆	Not the best but they have a blend of strengths that some will love.		●	89	8	n/a	●	91x18x24	3
Mission 782SE	900	06.03/ST	★★★★★	'Special edition' - possibly the most talented a grand or so will buy.		●	89	8	200	●	80x17x30	Ald
Mission m53	550	03.03/GT	★★★☆☆	Exciting with the right music but don't choose for long-term listening.		●	89	8	150	●	97x21x36	3
Monitor Audio Gold Ref. 10	800	08.01/FT	★★★★★	Few speakers 36cm tall are capable of a sound with so much conviction.	●		88	8	100	●	36x20x27	4
Monitor Audio Gold Ref. 20	1499	03.01/FT	★★★★★	Immensely accomplished - fast and dynamic sound with bags of resolution.		●	89	6	150	●	93x20x30	4
Monitor Audio Silver S6	600	11.03/GT	★★★★☆	Impressive with good timing and attack, but the bass can be heavy-handed.		●	91	6	120	●	85x19x25	4
Monitor Audio Silver S8	800	03.03/FT	★★★★☆	Smart, well built and offer a wide dynamic range; bass can overwhelm.		●	91	6	175	●	90x19x27	4
Neat Elite	1275	07.00	★★★☆☆	Not bad speakers but they have too many flaws to make an impact.		●	87	8	150	●	90x20x18	2
PMC DB1	555	09.03/FT	★★★★☆	Impressive depth of bass for their size, but treble can lack openness.	●		87	8	150	●	29x16x23	Va
PMC FB1	1410	03.04/GT	★★★★☆	Dynamic and exciting loudspeakers that just lack top-end refinement.		●	90	8	150	●	100x20x30	Va
PMC GB1	1000	09.04/FT	★★★★☆	Plenty to like, including almost bottomless bass, but treble can be excitable.		●	87	8	150	●	87x16x23	3
PMC TB2	700	Awd.01	★★★★☆	Great speakers, wonderful integration, but slightly lacking in bass dynamics.	●		90	8	150	●	40x20x30	Va
ProAc Studio 125	999	06.03/ST	★★★★☆	Best Buy in Awards 2000. A solid buy, but no longer at the cutting edge.		●	89	8	150	●	92x28x20	Va
ProAc Tablette Reference 8	699	08.04/GT	★★★★★	Great speakers that can entertain like few others at this price.	●		86	8	100	●	27x15x23	4
Quad 22L	895	12.03/FT	★★★★☆	Another impressive L series speaker - they sound best in a large room.		●	89	6	200	●	87x21x28	4
Ruark Acoustics Etude	650	04.03/ST	★★★★☆	Much to like - good timing, refined midrange and an exciting listen.	●		87	8	120	●	34x21x27	4
Ruark Acoustics Prelude II	900	10.02/ST	★★★★☆	Tempting propositions, the performance promises years of enjoyment.		●	88	8	120	●	88x21x22	Va
Scandyna Minipods/Bass-Station	900	04.02/FT	★★★☆☆	Minipods with an active sub - expensive on 'sound per pound' grounds.	●		90	4	100/A75		3 units	Va
Sonus Faber Concertino Home	599	08.04/GT	★★★★☆	Beautifully made in wood and leather and they are lovely to listen to.	●		88	6	150		32x22x29	2
Sonus Faber Concerto Home	999	07.01/FT	★★★★☆	Major on insight, worth sympathetic partnering on the basis of sound.	●		88	6	200		36x24x32	2
Spendor S3/5se	850	12.03/GT	★★★★☆	Wonderfully natural-sounding, expecially useful for smaller rooms.	●		84	8	125	●	30x17x19	2
Spendor S3e	795	08.04/GT	★★★★★	Terrifically capable though understated performers.	●		86	8	125	●	34x17x26	4
Spendor S5e	1095	07.04/FT	★★★★★	Best stereo speakers £1000-£2000 in Awards 2004.		●	87	8	200	●	79x17x26	4
Spendor S6e	1495	11.04/FT	★★★★☆	Thoroughly enjoyable, great choice for long listening sessions.		●	88	8	250	●	88x19x30	4
Spendor SR5 (wallmount)	1000	06.03/FT	★★★★★	Wallmounts - sacrifice nothing in sonic performance to traditional speakers.	●		88	8	125	●	31x31x18	4

BUDGET £501 to £1500
Tannoy Eyris 1	600	04.03/ST	★★★☆☆	Eye-catching design, but their cold character will leave you unmoved.	●		88	8	75	●	36x17x26	2
Tannoy Eyris 2	1000	02.02/FT	★★★★☆	Fine buy, combining refined sound, solid build and excellent finish.		●	89	8	125	●	91x17x26	2
Tannoy Sensys DC2	649	11.03/GT	★★★★☆	Serious floorstander option - take care with aggressive or bright-sounding kit.		●	89	8	175	●	97x21x29	3
Tannoy ST50 (SuperTweeter)	600	12.02/FT	★★★★★	Super-high-frequency speakers, designed to sit on your existing pair.			93	8	200		15x10	Bk
Vienna Acoustics Haydn	650	09.01	★★★☆☆	Belting build and great with classical but they lack the boogie factor.	●		89	6	180		34x17x25	6
Vienna Acoustics Schönberg	1500	03.04/GT	★★★☆☆	Good looking, but sonically more suited to home cinema than hi-fi.		●	91	4	200		105x27x9	Al
Wharfedale Pacific Evo 30	650	11.03/GT	★★★★★	Fantastic value - space-hungry but you'll be stunned by the dynamics.		●	89	6	200	●	88x23x40	3
BUDGET £1501 and over
Acoustic Energy AE1 MkIII	1990	07.04/FT	★★★★★	Best stereo speakers over £2000 in Awards 2004. Incredible performance.	●		87	8	200		31x19x25	3
ART Expression (+stands)	4000	10.02/FT	★★★★☆	Terrific speakers that can unravel a recording with ease. Deserve shortlisting.	●		88	8	100		42x20x30	Va
ART Skibo/Skibo bass module	1600	08.03/FT	★★★☆☆	Transforms the Skibo into a floorstander, but it's not worth the extra £800.		●	90	8	n/a	●	108x22x28	2
ATC Active 20	3251	11.03/FT	★★★★★	Top class active speakers - a stunning blend of insight, dynamics and timing.	●		84	8	300	●	30.16.21	Ch
ATC SCM35	1999	03.04/GT	★★★★★	Scintillating - following a design blip the SCM35s are back with a vengeance.		●	85	8	300	●	88x23x30	2
B&O Beolab 8000	2298	01.03/GT	★★★★☆	Tall, slender and organ-piped shaped - fine with BeoSound 9000 system.		●		-	A80		132x15x15	Al
B&O BeoLab5	10000	05.04/FT	★★★★☆	Work equally well as sculpture as they do speakers - gratify on every level.		●	-	-	2500		97x49dia	Bk
B&W 703	2000	10.04/FT	★★★★☆	Teetering on the brink of greatness but can't quite muster overall coherence.		●	90	8	200	●	101x23x36	5
B&W Signature 805	2500	02.03/FT	★★★★★	Worth every penny - one of the most impressive B&W designs we've heard.	●		88	8	120	●	42x24x34	2
Beauhorn B2	3575	03.02/FT	★★★★☆	Stunning horn speakers, the odd design has many strengths. Were £2445.	●	●	98	8	30		120x34x67	2
Beauhorn Virtuoso Reference	7800	08.00/FT	★★★★☆	In some respects they approach the status of true genius. Were £6970.		●	106	8	30		104x34x67	2
Cyrus Icon X4	2700	11.02/FT	★★★★☆	Prove that flat-panel technology can compete with conventional speakers.		●	84	6	150	●	125.34.30	Mp
DALI Helicon 300	1980	01.05/FT	★★★★☆	If you listen to acoustic, classical or vocal-based music you'll love these Dalis.	●		86	4	200	●	44x21x36	2
Dynaudio Audience 72SE	1750	01.05/FT	★★★☆☆	Quality speakers, but they lack the of refinement of others in this price range.		●	86	4	230		96.20x26	4
Dynaudio Audience 82	1700	03.04/GT	★★★☆☆	Will please the bass-heads, but for pure hi-fi perfomance look elsewhere.		●	86	4	300		106x22x36	4
Eclipse TD 512	1750	05.02/FT	★★★★★	Partnered with the A502 amp they make a great package.(Tested at £2350).	●		81	6	30		29x37x36	Bk
Eclipse TD 712z	4000	01.05/FT	★★★★☆	Remarkable, will bring uncompromised musicality into your living room.	●		83.5	6	70		98x35x38	Sl
Energy Veritas 2.3i	2400	02.04/FT	★★★☆☆	Solid build, but they aren't as dynamic as the class leaders at this price.		●	90	8	200		103x22x36	2
Ferguson Hill FH 001	9950	07.03/FT	★★★☆☆	Stunning looking acrylic horn speakers - shame about the performance.		●	100	8	30		165x92x75	Ac
Harbeth Super HL5	1999	05.03/FT	★★★★★	Lookers they're not - but when they sing, few rivals can match them.	●		85	8	150	●	64x32x30	2
JBL Ti6K	2600	09.02/FT	★★★★☆	Stylish speakers with some strong qualities but they lack cohesion.	●		90	6	300	●	110x38x53	2
KEF Reference Model 203	3000	09.02/FT	★★★★★	Excellent - superb all-round sonic performance and fine build and finish.		●	89	8	200	●	107x25x41	3
Meridian DSP33	2595	10.00/FT	★★★★☆	Actives with D/A conversion: terrific concept that works extremely well.	●		n/a	n/a	A50/85		40x15x23	Bk
PMC IB1	4815	04.01	★★★★★	Revealing and enjoyable in equal doses and will please the bass fiends.	●		89	4	500	●	74x33x47	Va
PMC OB1	2450	10.03/GT	★★★★★	Best Buy in Awards 2003. Spectacular, controlled and highly musical.		●	87	6	300	●	103x20x33	3
ProAc Future 0.5	3500	06.02/FT	★★★★★	Look a little odd, but these are stunning, front ranking speakers at this price.		●	87	8	150	●	101x44x22	5
ProAc Response D15 (yew)	1970	11.02/FT	★★★★★	Musically involving presentation and superlative build - take a long listen.		●	88	8	180	●	98x19x25	7
Quad ESL-988	3500	12.00/FT	★★★★★	World class - the single driver presents a fabulously together sound.			86	8	n/a		94x67x32	Bk
Sonus Faber Cremona Auditor	2149	02.04/FT	★★★★★	Delightful, with a graceful sound that'll pamper your ears hour after hour.	●		88	4	250		35x19x32	2
Spendor S8e	1895	03.04/GT	★★★★☆	Hugely enjoyable listening experience, but lower frequencies fail to convince.		●	89	8	300	●	92x23x32	4
Spendor SP2/3E (classic)	1750	07.00	★★★★★	Will delight with their combination of naturalness, insight and scale.	●		88	8	80	●	54x27x32	2
Wilson Benesch Arc	2400	02.02/FT	★★★★★	The very best of Wilson Benesch speaker magic in a pint-pot design.	●		88	6	200	●	31x23x37	10
Wilson Benesch Curve	4900	02.05/FT	★★★★★	Impressive - closer than any rival we've heard to being all things to all people.		●	88	6	200	●	91x23x37	8
Wilson Benesch Discovery	5500	04.01	★★★★★	Innovative design for the music lover - appeal to the ears and eyes.		●	87	6	200	●	108x23x27	Gr

Bose Wave Radio/CD	395	03.04/GT	★★☆☆☆	Expansive sound for a clock radio/CD player, but it's far too expensive.	●			●	●								1	●
Bush CDP2025/AMP2025	180	10.03/GT	★★★★☆	Separate CD player and amp - good value and it sounds great for the cash.	●												4
Creative SoundWorks CD740	300	03.04/GT	★★★☆☆	Clock radio with speakers and CD player - pacy but you can get better for the cash.	●	●		●	●								2	●
Denon D-F101	450	02.03/FT	★★★★★	Best Buy in the Awards 2003. Blurs the distinction between micro and hi-fi.	●			●				●					5	●
Denon D-M31	300	03.04/GT	★★★★★	Best hi-fi micro system over £150 in Awards 2004.	●			●	●			●					2	●

Denon D-M31

Best-in class hi-fi system again this year, the D-M31 offers remarkable quality for a small unit. Backing up the oomph is a sweet midband and crisp treble, which ensure that it's a adept with rock as it is with delicate vocals. Very impressive, and worth upgrading the optional Mission-designed speakers to something better.

WHAT HI-FI? SOUND AND VISION AWARDS 2004
BEST HI-FI MICRO SYSTEM OVER £150
Denon D-M31

Goodmans 1104DAB	100	11.04/FT	★★★★★	Best hi-fi micro system under £150 in Awards 2004 - ideal for bedroom/kitchen.	●		●										0	●
Hitachi AX-M68D	200	12.04/GT	★★☆☆☆	A case of style over substance - the sound just doesn't match the looks.	●		●	●				●					2	●
Ministry of Sound MOSMC018	180	05.04/FT	★★★★☆	Well equipped and stylish white cube system. It even includes a DAB tuner.	●		●	●	●								1	●
Ministry of Sound MOSRC 023	100	07.04/FT	★★★★☆	Stand-out boombox - we love the alternative design and the bass power.	●	●	●	●	●								1	●
Onkyo CS-210	295	09.03/FT	★★★★☆	A step above most micro system, but it can't quite match its main Denon rival.	●			●	●			●					2	●
Panasonic RX-ES27 (portable)	90	07.04/FT	★★★★☆	A good product - offers all you could ask of an entry-level portable boom box.	●			●	●								0	●
Panasonic SCEN9	180	12.04/GT	★★★☆☆	Impressively compact, but sadly the sound is equally as thin and lightweight.	●		●	●	●									●
Pure Digital Legato	350	11.04/FT	★★★☆☆	Does a lot of things well, but in sonic terms it can't compete with the leaders.	●	●	●	●				●					1	●
Russ Andrews RAVE (amp/spkrs)	300	09.04/FT	★★★☆☆	Mini sound system - nice idea, but you can get better performance at this price.													4	●
Sanyo MCD-ZX500F (portable)	45	07.04/FT	★★★☆☆	Competitively priced, but low on features and sonically a little limited.	●			●	●								0	●
Sanyo MCD-ZX710F (portable)	65	07.04/FT	★★★☆☆	Jack of all trades, but master of none - decent but unremarkable portable.	●			●									0	●
Sony CMT-SE1	280	03.04/GT	★★★★☆	Looks great and sounds good, but not a match for the formidable Denon DM-31.	●			●	●			●						●
TEAC MCDX10	180	Awd.04	★★★☆☆	Fantastically svelte looks with lashings of style - the sound is less exciting.	●			●	●								1	●
TEAC Reference 250	300	10.04/FT	★★★★☆	Great-value option for DAB radio fans, but falls just short of a class-leader.	●		●	●	●			●					3	●
Technics SC-HD560	350	09.04/FT	★★☆☆☆	Promises much, but its lacklustre performance means we wouldn't recommend it.	●			●	●			●						●
Thomson CS85	65	03.04/FT	★★★☆☆	Willing system that'll definitely suit kids - but not to be confused with real hi-fi.	●			●	●								0	●
Yamaha PianoCraft CRX/NX-E300	300	10.03/GT	★★★☆☆	Looks good but the performance can't compete with that of Denon's DM-31.	●			●	●			●					3	●

BUDGET £501 and over

B&O Beosound 3000/Blab 4000	2525	09.00/FT	★★★★☆	Looks guaranteed to turn heads and a performance that's pretty impressive.	●			●	●	●		●					2	●
B&O Beosound 3200	1725	07.03/FT	★★★☆☆	Style, quality engineering and a 40GB CD memory, but it is not great hi-fi.	●			●	●			●				●	1
B&O Beosound 9000	2550	01.03/GT	★★★★☆	Guaranteed to turn heads and a performance that is impressive to boot.	●			●	●			●					1
Cyrus Quattro FM	900	01.01/FT	★★★★★	Elegant box containing a CD, preamp and optional FM tuner - add a power amp.	●			●				●					2
Denon 201SA	800	08.02/FT	★★★★★	Stylish, listenable mini system that sounds almost as good as it looks.	●			●	●			●					7	●
Linn Classik Music	995	04.01/ST	★★★★★	With Classik Unik speakers, a flexible system with true separates performance.	●			●	●								3
Nakamichi Soundspace 5	799	04.00/GT	★★★☆☆	Huge style appeal but if you want to use it as your main system add a subwoofer.	●			●									2	●
Nakamichi Soundspace 8	1000	07.99/FT	★★★★☆	Product of the Year in the Awards 1999. Stylish good looks and musical.	●			●	●								3	●
Nakamichi Soundspace 9	3299	06.02/GT	★★☆☆☆	'Wow' designer looks, but the sound quality is a distinct letdown at the price.	●			●	●								3	●
Red Rose Spirit IA1 LS1	1999	12.02/FT	★★★★☆	Minimalist amp and small speakers - good sound for the house-proud muso.													4	●
Sugden Master System	2647	05.02/GT	★★★★★	Best Buy in the Awards 2003. It has it all: looks, build and sonic talent.	●												2
T+A K1	1700	01.03/GT	★★☆☆☆	Eye-catching, but fails to deliver the sort of sound we'd expect for this price.	●			●				●					2
TEAC Reference 300	600	03.98/FT	★★★★★	Best Buy in the Awards 2002. Gorgeous looks, terrific build and great sound.	●			●	●			●					6
TEAC Reference 500	800	09.99/GT	★★★★★	Best Buy in the Awards 1999. Superior build and sound mean it's still a winner.	●			●	●			●					6

Chord Company Carnival Silver Biwire

Cable Product of the Year in our Awards 2004. The Carnival Silver speaker cable has fallen into our laps, straight from upgrade heaven. Not only does it look the part, with its neat styling and excellent finish, but it's also a clear sonic cut-above the competition - no real surprise it's our favourite.

Chord Company Odyssey 2	17	03.04/GT	★★★★☆	For a vibrant and entertaining sound this is a good place for your money.	●			8.0	●	●			40	●
Chord Co Rumour 4 Biwire	20	07.01/GT	★★★★★	Not only does it look good, but it's an impressively dynamic performer, too.	●			9.0	●	●			50	●
Chord Company Signature	115	11.04/GT	★★★★★	One of the most effective upgrades you will ever hear if you own expensive kit.	●			25	●				inc
Cyrus Bi-Wire	25	03.04/GT	★★★★★	Capable of performing extremely well in more than just Cyrus systems.		●	●		●						●
Ecosse CS4.4 Biwire	9	11.03/GT	★★★☆☆	Reasonable, but a long way from being outstanding value for money.	●			10	●				60		●
Ecosse ES2.3/CS2.15 biwire	17	07.01/GT	★★★★★	A combination of two different cables that sound stunning in partnership.	●	●			●				60		●
Ecosse Reference ES-2.3	12	10.01/GT	★★★★☆	Dynamics are vivid and help this cable grab the attention like few others.	●			9.5	●				40
Ecosse Reference ES2.2	8.50	09.04/FT	★★★☆☆	Decent cable but it lacks the polished ability of the best at this price.	●			9.5	●				40	●
Ecosse Reference MS-2.3	23	10.99/GT	★★★★★	Best Buy in Awards 2000. A room-filling sound that few cables manage.	●			8.2	●				40
Kimber 4VS	9	07.98/FT	★★★★☆	Not the best at the price, but great all-round cable which works a treat.	●			7	●				50	●
Kimber 8PR(4.5m terminated)	153	11.03/GT	★★★★★	Slightly oddball 'bundle of wire' looks - sound is direct and impressive.	●			12	●				n/a	●
Kimber KS-3035 (3m termin.)	3735	04.99	★★★★★	Crystalline clarity, superb bass extension and control - does it all and more.	●			26	●	●			n/a	●
Nordost 4 (flat)	12	04.03/GT	★★★★☆	Excellent detail and dynamics - presentation has a pleasing character.		●	●		●					●	●
Nordost Blue Heaven Rev II	68	10.99/GT	★★★★☆	Fantastic cable but the price becomes jaw-dropping when terminated.	●		●		●	●				●	●
Nordost Cinemaflex 14/4	10	10.01/GT	★★★★★	Best Buy in the Awards 2001. Neutral, impeccable precision and dynamics.	●			8	●	●				●	●
Nordost Flatline Gold MkII	12	05.98/GT	★★★★★	Highly Recommended in Awards 1998. For fine clarity and openness.	●		●		●					●
Nordost Solar Wind	33	01.99	★★★★★	Fine separation and airy, open sound. A fantastic cable, but expensive.	●		●		●	●				●
Nordost Superflat MkII Biwire	23	07.01/GT	★★★★☆	Fine cable in many ways - perfect for systems with overbearing bass.	●		●	0.6	●					●	●
QED Genesis	30	08.99	★★★★★	Costly, but the Genesis performs so well it's certainly worth the money.	●			16.6	●	●			45
QED Genesis Sl Spiral Biwire	60	04.02/GT	★★★★☆	Everything simply sounds more real - in the right system it's breathtaking.	●			19.6	●	●			68		●
QED Profile 4x4	10	04.97	★★★★★	Incredibly good value, revealing clarity and depth of image that is stunning.	●		●	21.5x2.2	●				45	●	●
QED Profile Silver 12	15	10.97	★★★★☆	Demonstrates superlative resolution with an airy treble - tad tame for rockers.	●		●	20.2x1.6	●	●			68		●
QED Silver Anniversary Biwire	10	07.01	★★★★★	Delivers open, fast and transparent sound - at the price, it's terrific.	●			17x3.3	●	●			68		●
QED X-Tube XT300	10	09.02/GT	★★★★★	Fast, exciting yet well-balanced cable - makes the most of your system.	●			11.7x5.6	●				45
QED X-Tube XT350	15	10.02/GT	★★★★★	Best Buy in the Awards 2002. Detail resolution is absolutely terrific.	●			12.1x5.9	●	●			45

QED X-Tube XT400	20	04.03/GT	★★★★★	Best speaker cable over £10 per metre in Awards 2004.	●			6	●	●			45
Tara Labs Prism Nexa	9.95	08.99	★★★★★	Great with all types of music- don't use with bright-sounding electronics.	●			7.8dia	●				60	●
TCI Anaconda	12	10.03/GT	★★☆☆☆	Cool design but detail and dynamic contrast isn't up to the class leaders.	●		●	2x2.4	●	●			11.99	●
TCI Python	10	10.00/GT	★★★☆☆	Speedy and dynamic, but ultimately disappoints with a muddled bass.	●			9.5	●	●			9.99	●
van den Hul CS-122	12	10.98	★★★★★	Best Buy in the Awards 2000. Detail, solidity and punch in spades.	●		●	6	●	●	●
van den Hul Goldwater	8	09.04/FT	★★★☆☆	Good level of detail but it is not the most neutral cable.	●			17x5	●	●

Atlas Equator	40	08.02/GT	★★★★★	Best Buy in the Awards 2003. Fabulous insight whatever music you listen to.	●			1.0	8.5	●				●
Atlas Explorer	90	07.02/FT	★★★★★	Excellent debut from a new brand - of particular note is the bass performance.	●			1.0	8.5	●				●
Atlas Questor	60	11.04/GT	★★★★★	Makes your kit sound better - avoids imprinting unwanted character.	●			1.0	8.5	●				●
Atlas Voyager	110	04.03/GT	★★★★★	Excellent. Detail resolution is great for the money and bass is taut and powerful.	●			1.0	8.5	●				●
Atlas Voyager All Cu	170	10.03/GT	★★★★☆	Excellent - its open nature and rhythmic delivery ensures an enjoyable listen.	●			1.0	8.5	●				●
Audio Note AN-C	60	08.01/GT	★★★☆☆	Basic presentation is very musical, but tonal flaws mean they aren't up to rivals.	●			1.0		●				●
Audioquest Copperhead	72.95	08.02/GT	★★★★☆	Produces a seamless presentation that has plenty of punch and speed.	●			0.75	6	●				●		●
Audioquest Diamondback	95	08.01	★★★★☆	Fine interconnect, communicating mid and treble frequencies with musicality.		●		1.0	8	●				●		●
Black Rhodium Illusion	77	11.03/GT	★★★★★	Intriguing - looks thin and weedy, but sounds rich, powerful and direct.		●		1.0	2.8	●	●			●
Black Rhodium Opera	297	11.04/GT	★★★★☆	Almost justifies its hefty cost, but not quite.		●		1.0	5.6	●	●			●
Black Rhodium Polar Melody	95	01.05/GT	★★★☆☆	Solid presentation but bass lacks weight and high frequencies lacks clarity.	●			1.0		●				●
Black Rhodium Symphony	95	10.02/GT	★★★★☆	Impressive - tonal balance is neutral and the bass is solid with good detail levels.	●			1.0	8.4				●	●	●	●
Black Rhodium The First Base	25	08.01	★★★★☆	Fine cable for the money - audition if your budget is tight (was called SonicLink).	●			1.0		●				●
Cambridge Audio SI Spirit 40	70	10.98/FT	★★★★☆	Talented cable that's superb at the price. Take care with system matching.	●			1.0		●				●
Chord Company Calypso	30	10.01/GT	★★★★☆	The fine upper bass punch and fluid midrange make this a solid buy.	●			1.0	0.8	●				●		●
Chord Company Chorus	200	05.00/GT	★★★★★	Best Buy Awards '01. Terrifically deep bass, taut midrange and spacious top-end.	●			1.0	7.5	●	●			●	●	●
Chord Company Chrysalis	40	02.99	★★★☆☆	Highly Recommended, Awards '97. Especially suitable if you're after bigger bass.	●			1.0	4.8	●				●	●	●
Cyrus Interconnect	90	04.03/GT	★★★★★	Great buy. Crisp dynamics and breathtaking transparency considering the price.		●	●	0.5		●				●		●
DNM Reson	40	10.98/FT	★★★★★	Best Buy in the Awards 2001. Combines smoothness with fine transparency.		●	●	1.0		●				●		●
DNM Reson Bullet Plug	80	10.02/GT	★★★★★	Product of the Year, Awards 2002. Most open-sounding we've heard under £100.		●	●	1.0		●				●		●
Ecosse Best Boy	24.95	11.03/GT	★★★★★	No looker, but it's honest and affordable, giving fine performance for the money.	●			1.0		●				●		●
Ecosse Conductor CA-1 Original	59	09.00/GT	★★★★★	Product of the Year Winner 2000. Allows all genres of music to sound their best.	●			0.8		●				●		●
Ecosse Maestro MA2 Original	160	10.99/GT	★★★★★	Best Buy, Awards 2000. Sonically they amaze. High-end system owners take note.	●			0.8		●				●
Ecosse The Baton RCA	85	04.03/GT	★★★★☆	Fine punch and authority - this is a good, but not great, interconnect.	●			0.8		●				●		●
Ecosse The Composer	31	08.01/GT	★★★★★	A stellar interconnect - the signal is so well preserved it's hard to believe the price	●			0.8		●				●
Insert Audio Focus 1.2 (pair)	21.50	10.98/FT	★★★★☆	A step-up from freebie cables - dynamic and fast, it is ideal for hard-hitting music.	●			1.0m	7	●				●	●	●
Insert Audio IC100 Mk II (pair)	29.95	01.99/FT	★★★★☆	Good, affordable interconnect. Produces an exciting, raw and enjoyable sound.	●			1.0m	8	●	●			●	●	●
Insert Audio Image 5.1 (pair)	84.95	03.04/GT	★★★☆☆	Not bad, but there are better stereo interconnects available at this price.	●			1.0	7	●	●			●	●	●
Ixos XHA306-100	20	11.04/GT	★★★★☆	Great for entry-level. Ditch the cable that came with your budget kit and buy these.	●			1.0		●				●
Ixos XHA406-100	30	08.02/GT	★★★☆☆	Fluid-sounding with a refined delivery. Would be useful in an overly bright system.	●			1.0		●				●		●
Ixos XHA606-100	60	08.02/GT	★★★☆☆	Designed to reduce interference, but the resulting sound is lazy and undynamic.	●		●	1.0		●	●			●		●

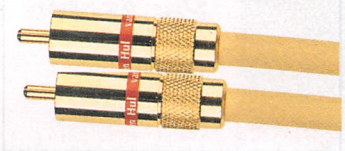
Nordost Black Knight	72	04.97/FT	★★★★★	Clean sounding - enhanced clarity, extended bandwidth and dynamic resolution.		●	●	1.0		●				●	●	●
Nordost Blue Heaven	173	10.99/GT	★★★★☆	Exciting and full of attack and drive but up-front sound won't suit everyone.	●		●	1.0		●	●			●	●	●
Nordost Cinemafl Bassline Sub	303	10.02/GT	★★★★☆	If you have a very good subwoofer in your set-up buy this great sounding cable.	●		●	5.0	flat	●	●			●	●	●
Nordost Red Dawn	347	05.98/FT	★★★★☆	At this price it's one for high-end set-ups, but an exhilarating listen.	●		●	1.0		●	●			●	●	●
Nordost Solar Wind	100	03.98/GT	★★★★★	Technically interesting and fine-sounding - this is one exciting cable.	●		●	1.0		●	●			●	●	●
Profigold PGA-3000	40	04.02/GT	★★★☆☆	Solidly-made cable. Will flatter systems that tend towards thinness or brightness.	●			0.75		●				●		●
Profigold PGA4201	15	08.99	★★★★☆	A safe bet in entry-level set ups but avoid partnering with already-bright kit.	●			1.0		●				●
QED Qunex 4 Silver	60	09.00/GT	★★★★☆	Classy looking cable that will handle whatever you throw at it with ease.	●			1.0	8.1	●	●			●		●
QED Qunex One	20	02.99	★★★★★	Best Buy in the Awards 1999. Staggeringly good value (was called Qnect 1).	●			1.0	6.0	●				●
QED Qunex Silver Spiral	75	10.98/FT	★★★★★	Highly Recommended, Awards 1998. Great value for money (was called Qnect)	●			0.5	8.1	●	●			●
QED Qunex Two	30	03.98	★★★★★	Highly Recommended, Awards 1998. Weighty and involving (was Qnect).	●			1.0	6.1	●				●		●
Roksan HDC-02A	85	09.00/GT	★★★★★	Truly excellent performer, boasting a wide range of sonic talents, at a fair price	●			1.0		●				●		●
Supra EFF-ISL (pair)	90	08.99	★★★☆☆	It's expensive, yet it's an unexciting source-to-amp connection.	●			0.75	7	●	●			●		●
True Colours Industries Cobra	175	11.03/GT	★★★★★	In upmarket set-ups this is an interconnect that will really shine.	●			1.0	6.5	●	●			●	●	●
True Colours Industries Tiger	30	10.03/GT	★★★★☆	Looks cheap but, surprisingly, sound quality is polished for the money.	●			1.0	3	●	●			●
True Colours Industries Viper	70	03.04/GT	★★★★☆	A capable and well-priced interconnect - definitely worth an audition.	●			1.0	6	●				●	●	●
True Colours Industries ViperSix	180	05.04/FT	★★★★☆	Six channel - insightful but perhaps too restrained for some ears.	●			1.0	21	●				●		●
van den Hul D102 III HB	90	05.98	★★★★★	Product of the Year in the Awards 2001. Smooth, natural and detailed. (Was £79)	●			0.8	7.3	●	●	●		●	●	●
van den Hul The Bay C5	50	04.02/GT	★★★★★	A very good all-round performance cable, and excellent value.	●			0.8	5.2	●				●
van den Hul The First Ultimate	225	09.00/GT	★★★★★	Stunning - if your system's good, these interconnects are highly recommended.	●			1.0	7.8			●		●
van den Hul The Name	40	11.04/GT	★★★★★	Best stereo interconnect under £50 in Awards 2004. Cracking choice.	●			0.8m	7.3	●	●			●		●



van den Hul The Name

Don't let The Name confuse you (if it hasn't done already), but this is the interconnect to own at this price. It allows for a rich and full-bodied presentation without losing any vital resolution along the way. You're treated to a beautiful sonic balance with instruments and vocals alike - a worthy best-in-class product.

WHAT HI-FI? SOUND AND VISION AWARDS 2004
BEST STEREO INTERCONNECT UNDER £50
van den Hul The Name

van den Hul The Source	65	05.00/GT	★★★★★	Wonderfully-balanced wire for the money - we recommend it without hesitation.	●			0.8	7.0	●	●	●		●		●
Vivanco Prowire PHC2215	12	Awd.00	★★★★☆	Good value. Allows a weighty and powerful sound. A good step-up from freebies.	●			1.5		●				●		●
Vivanco Prowire SHQ	30	11.03/GT	★★★☆☆	Nicely put together, but it sounds a bit soft and woolly even by budget standards.	●			1.2		●	●			●		●
Wireworld Rainbow 5	150	05.04/FT	★★★★☆	Six-channel cable - musical and punchy, with bags of attack and detail.	●			1.0	5x6/5	●	●			●		●

Mains cables, blocks & conditioners

PRODUCT	£	TESTED	VERDICT	WE SAID...	TYPE: Cable	Block	Conditioner	Length (m)	CONDUCTOR: Copper	Silver	Carbon	Other	Captive lead	No of sockets	Figure of 8 (2pin)	IEC (3pin)
Black Rhodium Pow Manage	300	10.03/FT	★★★☆☆	Boosts top- and bottom-end refinement, but reduces pure sonic punch.		●	●	2.0	●	●			●	8		●
Black Rhodium Super Mains	100	05.04/GT	★★★☆☆	An improvement over a kettle lead, but not a super mains cable - there's better.	●			1.25	●	●
Black Rhodium Super Mains 13	55	12.98/GT	★★★★☆	We noticed better bass extension and a more mellifluous treble.	●			1.25	●	●
DeZorel PowerStation 1	549	08.03/FT	★★★★☆	Can work brilliantly with the right kit - make sure you audition before you buy.			●							2
Ecosse The Big Orange	33	11.04/GT	★★★★☆	Looks pretty unusual but its sonics cut the mustard.	●			1.0	●
Isol-8 Cleanline 2	295	01.05/GT	★★★☆☆	Beats your regular supply from the mains but it's no class leader.			●	-						6
Isotek Elite	80	05.04/GT	★★★☆☆	It sounds miles better than a free cable, but falls well short of full marks.	●			1.5	●
Isotek Gemini 6-way	260	01.05/GT	★★★★★	Stunning performer giving a good overall tonal balance.		●								6
Isotek GII Vision	549	09.04/FT	★★★★★	Best mains filter in Awards 2004. One of the most cost-effective upgrades.			●							6
Isotek Isoplug	30	01.03/FT	★★★★☆	Eliminates mains noise, which could mean a smoother-sounding system.			●
Isotek MiniSub	495	08.03/FT	★★★★★	Best Buy in the Awards 2003. Improves detail and transparency levels.		●	●							6
Merlin Black Widow	125	08.03/FT	★★★★★	A cost-effective way to boost the bass weight and detail levels of your system.		●		2.0	●				●	4		●
Merlin Black Window v2	85	11.04/GT	★★★★☆	Impressive but its delivery isn't quite as clear as we'd like.	●			1.5	●
Merlin Tarantula	50	11.04/GT	★★★★★	Best Buy in the Awards 2002. Offers killer value and sounds simply magical.	●			1.5	●
Monster Power Centre HTS1000	150	01.05/GT	★★★☆☆	This filtered mains block performs better than standard mains blocks.		●	●							8
Nordost Shiva	220	11.04/GT	★★★☆☆	Levels of detail are excellent, but sound is slightly lean and cost slightly steep.	●			2.0	●
One Click Intellig Mains Panel	30	08.02/FT	★★★☆☆	Allows you to switch off all your kit with one button - fine, if that's what you want.		●							●	6		●
Russ Andrews The Silencer	140	10.03/FT	★★★★☆	Gives a smooth and polished sound and extra bass weight to your system.			●

Russ Andrews Classic PowerKord

Believe it! Your whole musical experience will get a welcome boost - especially in the midrange: vocals sound much more solid, with greater presence and focus, while instruments are treated with an extra coat of realism and accuracy. This PowerKord is a Classic in more ways than one - a great addition to any hi-fi.

Partington Super Dreadnought

The industrial design might not suit all tastes, but there's no faulting the performance: every standmount speaker we tested - from £200 Monitor Audios all the way up to £1000 ATCs - sounded better sat on top of a pair of these. Clearer midrange and more bass make these highly effective accessories.

What, How & Where

TO BUY YOUR HI-FI SYSTEM

Get the best system for your money by asking our Top Twenty UK specialist hi-fi dealers.

Isn't it easy to buy a new system? You read the magazine product reviews, you find out who sells the recommendations, five-star favourites or best buys at the cheapest price, you order the system, get a friend who knows his onions to install it - and live happily ever after.

This is a fairly well-trodden path but it leads to dissatisfaction, endless upgrades and a lot of wasted money. It's likely that the system will help you lose interest in music pretty rapidly. The problem is that there are more myths about hi-fi than Aesop's Fables. CD gives you perfect sound. All CD players sound the same. A £50 CD player plays high fidelity music. All magazine reviewers are experts. Big speakers are always better than small ones. More watts per channel is everything. MP3 format gives you high quality. A collection of 'Best Buy' components will be a great system. And so on and so on. All myths.

> Oscar Wilde

Music - the real aim

Our aim must be to buy a hi-fi system that will prove musically satisfying, reliable and deliver true value for money. If the system doesn't excite you musically you've wasted your money. What is even worse is that you may not even realise you've bought a bad egg – you'll just switch the TV on instead and your desire to listen to music will gradually diminish. Have you ever been in a pub or club where you realise it's very difficult to conduct a conversation, even to the extent of being really tiring? A poor quality system continuously distorts but I don't mean it necessarily reaches the point of audibly breaking up. With a top quality system you can play music very loudly and still hold a conversation because it's free of distortion.

A poor system is tiring to listen to even when it's played at low volume. If you want proof, go into a shoe or clothes shop where they play background 'music' and try to enjoy listening. It's odds on you'll fail.

What and Where to buy

So where do you start? Perhaps it's better to say what you don't start with and that is WHAT. It's better to start with WHERE. There is only one way to give yourself the best chance of getting it right first time, and that's through a specialist hi-fi dealer. Now it's likely you have preconceived ideas that may put you off visiting one. Although you would welcome the advice and guidance, you don't know the technical jargon. You don't want to be talked down to. Your friend has said they only sell expensive gear and they're not interested if you don't have a big budget. They're expensive. Again, just myths. Most specialist hi-fi dealers are running their business because, above all, they love music. They spend a large portion of their time listening to music and comparing systems to get the best possible results. They know the component combinations which don't gel together and, conversely, they know the combinations which give the best performance within a given price range. But they all also know the system must suit you.

Buying or being sold to?

Now there's a group of long-established specialist dealers who are totally committed to putting the customer first. Their idea of 'selling' is to discuss your requirements, offer their advice, give you the best options, then play the systems for you and allow you to be the judge.

Listening to your choice of music in a peaceful, well organised demonstration room, you may be surprised and, almost certainly, relieved to discover how easy it is to hear the differences between components and between systems. You'll be able to make a clear and informed decision about what to buy. It comes down to trusting your own judgement rather than the opinion of a reviewer you've never met ...and who won't refund your money if you're not satisfied or be at the end of a phone to sort out any problem you might encounter.

The story doesn't end there. These shops won't abandon you once you've put your hand in your pocket. They won't leave you to set up the system you've selected as best you can. They'll install it in your home, make sure it sounds great, and make sure you're entirely happy with the way it works. Why? Because a high proportion of these dealers' custom comes through people who have bought from them before, either directly or by recommendation. It's vital to them to get it right for you.

Getting the best deal

Oscar Wilde wrote "...too many people today know the price of everything and the value of nothing." Specialist retailers know that not all potential purchasers will seek them out. They tend to attract the more discerning, thoughtful customers. Let's face it, a good deal is about a great deal more than just price. After all, unless you've got money to burn, you'll be living with your new system for years. Most of these dealers offer much longer equipment guarantees than provided by the manufacturer, a very worthwhile benefit, but it also makes it in the dealer's interest to ensure high build quality and reliability. Maybe you could save a few pounds by buying piecemeal but you'll lose out on the overall package. As far as the dealers are concerned, maybe they believe that taking care of their customers properly is a nicer way of doing business than just handing over boxes.

Listed below are 20 of the best hi-fi shops in the country. They have been selected because they are known to do an excellent job in guiding customers towards hi-fi that will give them years of musical enjoyment and total satisfaction.

PRODUCT OF THE YEAR

ScreenPlay 5700 £2200

VERDICT

The 5700 produces a picture that's comfortable in any company. It's also capable of quality performance at a super-competitive price. You'd have to spend a lot more to better it

OF ALL THE ScreenPlay projectors we've given awards to this year, the 5700 deserves the greatest praise. It's the most affordable model in the entry-level Trio, even in much more expensive company – some feat.

Never mind the bland design, beneath the prosaic exterior lies all the essential technological ingredients needed to serve up a picture so tasty you'll be drooling long before the end credits roll. This includes the latest BenQ MantaServer DLP chipset in native SVGA 4:3 resolution, which perfectly fits PAL widescreen signals. Content from UK DVDs and TV broadcasts will fit the chip precisely, with no need for either image scaling or compression. Progressive scan processing, meanwhile, is provided by the DCDi from Faroudja, one of the industry's most well-known video-processing devices. A full set of video connections includes two sets of component inputs and DVI socket, based on the special Mi-DA type of socket. Simple adaptors can connect the socket to accept either DVI-D or HDMI digital video or as you need.

> The 5700 serves up a picture so tasty you'll be drooling long before the movie's end credits roll"

Set-up is a tale of good and bad sides. Three-screen menus are clear, and, using the intuitive remote, far more user-friendly than the slightly clumsy arrangement of supporting

The 5700 cost £3000 when it was launched – the recent price cut makes its value exceptional

but. If you've one gripe, this projector is very awkward for table-top users.

But the compensation is sheer image brilliance. Even with only slight adjustments, the 5700's picture is jaw-droppingly good. Used with a basic budget DVD player, the picture's hugely impressive – and it only improves with every improvement in signal quality.

The ScreenPlay's picture is full of rich colours that appear vibrant, but not artificial. For example, skin tones are natural even when set against computer-generated backdrops. Excellent brightness and contrast levels compete with deep blacks to create an absorbing depth of field that really draws you in. And things reach their zenith when using the DVI (Mi-DA) input, which improves the already impressive detail, and firms up images. Add in the equation the projector's ability to mask all sorts of distracting digital artefacts, and you've got a great value buy.

True, some rivals get close to this performance, but none is this cheap. That's why the 5700 is a winner.

BEST PROJECTOR UNDER £1500

ScreenPlay 4805 £1300

VERDICT

Another stunning success from ScreenPlay. Both the 4805's DLP specification and picture performance suggest a fair pricier projector – there's never been a better time to take the big-screen plunge

FALLING PRICES HAVE made a cinema-style projected screen more accessible than ever. And there isn't a projector that epitomises better value for a big-screen experience than ScreenPlay's 4805.

Outwardly, it might look like a fan heater, but this protective boasts every key feature you'd expect from far more expensive models, yet costs little more than a decent 32in CRT TV. If you're in the market for processing a high quality 16:9 widescreen image that's correct, you can see the appeal.

As with all our projectors in this year's Awards, the 4805's impressive specification includes the use of Texas Instruments' Digital Light Processing (DLP) internals, this time in the shape of the all-new DarkChips. This true widescreen aspect ratio chip provides 854 x 480

> It has the key features of far pricier projectors, yet costs little more than a decent 32in CRT TV"

image resolution, and the ScreenPlay 4805 also features all the requisite technologies needed to support this solid basic ingredient. There's a high quality progressive scan processor, two inputs (SCART and a DVI (Mi-DA) digital video input, which, as we said in our review above, needs an optional adaptor to accept either HDMI or DVI-D signals.

The combination of all of this technology adds up to a projector that can create a truly magical picture. Images are colourful, but not exaggerated, appearing rich and three-dimensional, but without artificiality. Shots of the Dead's contrasting colour balance, which can sometimes appear muddy in less ambient environments, is handled with impressive ease.

While the on-paper resolution isn't amazingly high, you seldom encounter anything other than well-defined detail. Black depth is excellent, lending solidity to the picture that enhances contrast and adds to the realism. And movement across the screen, be it fast action or slow panning, is smooth and consistent. All of these image attributes are improved still more by switching to a digital video signal.

Overall, the 4805 is a ScreenPlay's appeal is clear: it offers terrific quality for an outstandingly affordable price. Pair a 4805 with a decent projection screen (£150-ish) and, ideally, a DVI-D equipped DVD player (available from £150) and you'll be on your way to a home cinema system of your dreams for quite a lot less than £2000. If that's not a bargain, we're not sure what is.

Acoustic Energy Aegis Evo 3B £950

→VERDICT

This is three Awards in a row for this brilliant package, standing the test of time by offering one of the finest home cinema experiences, but without compromising your music

THIS PACKAGE HAS been around for some time and since its inception in 2002 it's scooped an Award every year. So, almost by tradition, it's back again for 2004.

The package blew our minds when we first tested it, and it continues to do so, even in the face of the improving competition. No package comes close to matching the Evo 3Bs for drive, focus and ability at this price point. It's terrific fun with movies, and extremely enjoyable with music – making it an exceptional all-round solution.

This 5.1 configuration is based around a pair of Aegis Evo 3 floor-standing front speakers, which are superb stereo speakers in their own right. Like the other cabinets in the system, they use a 25mm silk dome tweeter and 12cm midrange driver, but they carry a 16cm bass driver for extra authority.

Even more bass clout is provided by the compact yet commanding subwoofer, which despite its diminutive dimensions is blessed with great extension and slam. Surround duties are handled by a pair of Aegis Evo 1 standmounts, and completing the configuration is the dedicated Evo Centre, which contributes to the soundfield commendably, adding depth and character to the dialogue.

After some serious running in you won't be disappointed by the Evo's performance. There's plenty of power and punch to enliven any action movie, and detailed subtleties aren't ignored either. The cohesion across the speakers creates an all-encompassing soundfield that envelopes you completely, getting you totally caught up in the on-screen action.

It's not just with movies that this system excels. The hi-fi quality rears lend themselves to excellent multi-channel music. And with the Evo 3s upfront, the package delivers the sort of stereo performance sub/sat systems can only dream of.

Those who take both their hi-fi and home cinema seriously won't find a better all-round package at this price than the Evo 3B.

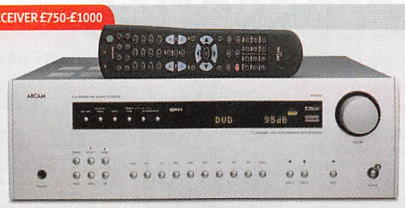
Arcam AVR250 £1000

VERDICT

Flying the flag for dear old Blighty, Arcam's AVR250 receiver is a master of movies and music alike. It's a great one-box solution, and can compete head-on with its Japanese rivals



Multichannel movie sound is superb, as are both surround and stereo music delivery

IN A MARKET dominated by big-name Japanese brands such as Denon and Yamaha – you only need to look at our Awards for proof of that – British manufacturers are few and far between. And one that's capable of winning an Award is almost unheard of, but Arcam's AVR250 is an exception to the rule.

The AVR250 has been designed with a smaller room in mind, as a slightly lower-specified variant of the excellent £1300 AVR300. There's seven-channel capability, and compatibility with the latest surround processing modes, as well as basic multi-room functionality, and video upconversion from S-Video to component, but sadly, no auto-set-up.

In a market dominated by features the AVR250 trails behind some of its rivals, but its sublime sound carries it above the others in its class.

> "The AVR250 lacks some of the features of its rivals but its sublime sound puts it above the rest"

Sonically, it oozes class and ability from every pore. Every genre of film is handled with equal aplomb, delivering a sound with detail, depth and energy. There's no discrimination between treating sonic subtleties, in ambient films such as Eternal Sunshine of the Spotless Mind, or the room-shaking special effects seen in The Day After Tomorrow. Superb steering builds up an open and expansive atmosphere, whipping the action up into an audible frenzy. It might not be the most powerful receiver in its class, but the confident and composed delivery is utterly realistic.

Another area where the AVR250 excels is with music playback, in both multichannel and, remarkably, stereo. Considering movies are its priority, the Arcam offers striking detail and dynamics. It's another compelling reason why this fine receiver richly deserves its Award.

PRODUCT OF THE YEAR

Atacama Equinox from £140

→VERDICT
The difference that this modular range of racks can make to your equipment has to be heard to be believed: it's a superb, cost-effective upgrade that won't break the bank

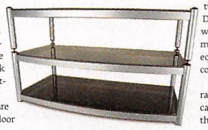
THERE ARE STILL individuals out there who think it's perfectly acceptable to pile expensive hi-fi and home cinema equipment on the nearest flat surface, even if that surface turns out to be the floor.

Well, we're professionals and, inevitably, we know better. This is an order! Get your equipment off that coffee table and on to a dedicated rack – ideally, something from Atacama's superb Equinox range.

A basic two-shelf hi-fi unit costs just £140, with extra modules £70 a piece. The double-width AV unit mirrors the hi-fi racks' professional look and excellent build quality, costing from £400 for two units.

In each case, shelf modules are effectively isolated from the floor and each other by heavy-duty spikes, while the shelves are decoupled from the frame to prevent any unsettling vibrations. This all benefits sound and picture qualities to an almost startling degree.

The difference that the Equinox can make to budget-to-midrange systems has to be heard (or seen) to be believed. Bass notes come bounding to life, gaining superior definition, and any hardness in your system's treble is softened.



Voices become far more articulate and eloquent – in fact, the whole midrange is noticeably more natural and open. Rhythms are appreciably tighter, too, with more snap and twang to their timing. Similarly, any DVD player sited on the Atacama will deliver stronger, richer and much more natural colours, with equally marked improvements in contrast and detail.

The impact the Atacama Equinox range could make on your system can't be overstated. As upgrades go, this could be the most cost-effective.

CYRUS CD8x

Awards 2004 | CD PLAYERS

Cyrus CD8x £1000

→VERDICT

An outstanding all-rounder, with a rhythmic, emotional delivery and sensational levels of detail retrieval; it's also upgradable to give even better levels of performance

FOR THE PAST year, Cyrus's CD8 has dominated this heavyweight category of CD players with all the authority and confidence of Mike Tyson in the ring in his prime. Now, believe it or not, it's managed to push the performance to new extremes with the addition of the 'x' factor and the introduction of the CD8x.

The way it brings music to life is worringly addictive – you can't wait to swap from one favourite track to the next. Bass is taut, well-defined and musical, while treble is smoother and more refined compared to that of the CD8, let alone other lesser players. Vocals and instruments ooze emotion: you can't help but be impressed by the Beverly Knight track Come As You Are, for example.

There's also a real sense of attack on display: nothing is held back, but at the same time there's no rushed delivery. This is supplemented by excellent timing: the music stops and starts with unerring accuracy. Then there's the sensational soundstage: with The Hives' track, Walk Idiot Walk, prepare to be taken aback by the broadness of the presentation.

As is mentioned in the CD6 Award on the facing page, CD6 and CD8 owners can upgrade to this new model for the single price (the same new printed circuit board is added) of £450. And like the CD6, the CD8x can accommodate a PSX-R power supply. With these two working in tandem, you have one heck of a player, which will take some beating.

> "There's a real sense of attack on display – nothing is being held back from the musical assault"

These sonic improvements are a result of a new, multi-layer printed circuit board and PSX-R-like power

CYRUS CD8x

Just when you thought the CD8 was as good as it gets, the CD8x smashes through the performance sound barrier layout. There's also been an overhaul of the CD8x's base-plate. The old aluminium item has been replaced with a one-piece, non-metallic unit, constructed so the silver/copper outer skin shields internal components from outside interference.

All these tweaks have redefined what you can expect at this price point. This CD player is magnificent!

GLOSSARY

AAD Seen on CD cases, this means the music has been recorded and mastered in analogue form – the first two 'A's – but stored digitally on the disc.
ADD Music recorded in analogue form ('A'), which has been mastered or remastered digitally ('D'), and then stored digitally on the CD (the third 'D').
AMPLIFIER Boosts signals to drive speakers. Can be one-box (integrated) or have separate pre and power sections.
ANALOGUE LPs/cassette tapes store audio in non-digital form directly related to the signal.
ANAMORPHIC Anamorphically enhanced DVD discs have been coded to offer improved picture quality on widescreen TV sets and banish most, if not all, of the letterbox effect, too.

B

BASS Low frequencies, often hard to reproduce. A review that says bass is slow means it goes 'whoompa-whoompa' and can dominate the music. The ideal is good bass extension allied to speed and rhythm.
BASS REFLEX A speaker design using air-flow from a port in the cabinet to help deliver extended bass reproduction.

BIAMPING Each drive unit of a speaker is driven by a separate amp channel, so a pair of two-way speakers needs two stereo amps and two runs of cable to each speaker. See biwiring.
BINDING POST Speaker terminal that has a threaded collar for gripping bare wires and sometimes a socket that'll take banana plugs, too.
BIT A single piece of digital information, basically an 'on/off' signal. Digital-to-analogue converters turn strings of bits into audio signals.
BITSTREAM A method of turning digital CD data into analogue signals. Bitstream digital-to-analogue converters process single bits of digital data much faster than multibit DACs, which work on chunks of digital data.
BIWIRING Some of the benefits of biamping, but at lower cost. You need suitable speakers (with two sets of inputs and a split crossover), then send twin runs of cable from the amp (again if suitable) to each speaker.
BRIDGING Increasing power by connecting a stereo power amp for use in mono, then adding a second bridged stereo amp for the other channel. Power typically triples, but the amps must be designed to be bridged.

C

CARTRIDGE The device that plays a record. It converts the wobbles in the record's groove into electrical signals for your amp. See moving magnet and moving coil cartridge types.
CD-R CD-Recordable. Uses a special blank disc in a recording CD player. Once recorded it can't be erased, but plays in standard CD players when 'fixed up'.
CD-RW Rewritable discs that can be erased and recorded on again and again. Work in all CD-R recorders, but not on all CD players or in-car units.
CLASS A Amp in which positive and negative half cycles are amplified together. Runs hot, because the transistors in the power amp are on all the time, but has high-quality sound.
CLASS B Positive and negative halves of the signal dealt with by different parts of the circuit, the output devices switching continually. Amp runs cooler, though the sound is not as pure.
COLORATION This is a shift away from the natural rendition of music. Coloration is undesirable 'boomy' bass, a 'nasal' midband or 'splashy' treble.
COMPRESSION Used by radio stations to reduce level differences between loud and soft parts of music. Helps in-car and transistor sound, but can be awful heard through a hi-fi tuner.
CROSSOVER The circuit inside loudspeakers which splits the incoming signal, sending the high frequencies to the tweeter and the low ones to the woofer.
CRT Cathode Ray Tube. The technology behind conventional televisions and large, high-end video projectors. Three colour tubes – one red, one green and one blue – are 'converged' to create an image on the screen.

D

DAB Digital Audio Broadcasting: digital radio on both BBC and independent stations. Can offer better, hiss-free sound.
DAC Digital-to-analogue converter, turning on/off pulses into analogue sound. CD players have DACs built-in. Separate DACs can upgrade a CD player or other digital player/recorder, or can be used with CD transports.
DATA COMPRESSION Lowers the amount of data needed to store music. Sony's MiniDisc uses a system called ATRAC (Adaptive Transform Acoustic Coding), removing signals its designers think you can't hear.
DDD On CD cases – music recorded and mastered digitally and stored digitally on CD.
DECIBEL (dB) Measures sound pressure. A change of 1dB is just about audible, while +10dB sounds like the level has been doubled.
DIGITAL OUTPUT Allows the digital signal to be recorded or processed by an offboard DAC. Electrical or optical (fibre-optic) outputs allow this.
DISTORTION Signals that are unwanted or signal changes added by the equipment itself.
DOLBY B, C + S Noise-reduction systems to boost quiet signals when recording and reduce them on playback, cutting hiss.
DOLBY DIGITAL A home cinema sound system from Dolby, using five discrete channels of digital sound plus a separate channel for a subwoofer. Formerly known as AC-3.
DOLBY DIGITAL SURROUND EX Development of Dolby Digital 5.1 surround audio that includes a 'matrixed' centre-rear signal for greater surround envelopment. Needs suitable decoder, with amplification, and one or two additional centre-rear speakers.
DOLBY HX PRO A means of recording more high-frequency information without distortion.
DOLBY SURROUND Encodes the sound for rear effects channels into the stereo tracks. Needs to be replayed through a suitable decoder to produce surround sound, though.
DOLBY PRO-LOGIC Uses an extra centre speaker at the front for dialogue, and mono rear channels for surround effects.
DTS Discrete 5.1 channel home cinema digital sound system.
DTS ES MATRIX 6.1 Variation on the Dolby Digital Surround EX theme; similar results.
DTS ES DISCRETE 6.1 The only 'true' 6.1 system, with an entirely discrete digital channel providing centre-rear channel effects.
DUAL-MONO Some amps are designed to keep left and right signals separate to minimise interference between them.
DVD-AUDIO High-resolution audio format that offers multi-channel surround-sound music and 24-bit/96KHz stereo.
DVD-VIDEO Video format on CD-sized disc – huge capacity for movies, with widescreen and multichannel surround sound.
DVD-R/-RW The recordable DVD format supported by Pioneer. DVD-R recordings can't be erased, but DVD-RW discs are able to be re-used.
DVD+RW Developed by Philips, this alternative rewritable format can record up to four hours of DVD video on a 4.7GB disc.

DVD-RAM Panasonic's take on recordable DVD, which includes a 'time slip' function allowing you to watch the start of a programme recording the rest.
DVI-D A high-quality digital connection for DVD players and displays, which carries audio and video without ever converting it to analogue.
DYNAMIC RANGE The range, in decibels, between the largest and smallest audio signals reproduced by hi-fi.

E

ELECTROSTATIC Speakers that use the force of high voltages to push and pull a thin, light diaphragm, which can produce exceptionally clean sound.

F

FREQUENCY High-pitched sounds have a high frequency, whereas low-pitched ones have a low frequency. Audible sounds range from about 16Hz to 20kHz.

H

HDCD High Definition Compatible Digital – a coding system for compact disc that aims to get better sound. Needs a CD player fitted with a suitable decoder to be heard.
HDMI A high-quality digital connection going from DVD players to displays – competing with – and slightly superior to – DVI-D connections.
HERTZ (Hz) Unit of frequency. One Hz means a signal has one cycle per second.
HORN LOADING Improves a drive unit's efficiency, using a structure within the speaker that's shaped like a horn.

I

IMPEDANCE A low impedance draws a high current flow from the source, while a high impedance draws a little. Speakers with a low impedance are more difficult for an amplifier to drive.

L

LINE LEVEL Describes inputs that don't need amplifying before the amp can use them.
LCD Liquid Crystal Display. Found in both compact projectors and, increasingly, flatscreen televisions.

M

MIDBAND The frequency range where most of the instruments

AAC
The Advanced Audio Coding format was developed by a number of companies including Dolby, Sony and Nokia and brought to prominence by the Apple iPod. Improved coding techniques mean better performance than MP3, offering a fuller, richer sound at the same bit-rate. It's not CD-quality, but it's currently the best available for downloading manageable files at standard bit-rates. It's a shame it's mainly only for Apple hardware, though some alternatives are now available.

APPLE LOSSLESS
Using a 'less-compressed compression' means bigger files, but better sounds. Files take up more space on your hard disk – but when burning files to CD and then into iTunes, it's as close to the original quality as you can get. Sonically, it's the best – it's just a shame they're so large, and that it's a format that's Apple-only... for now.

ATRAC 3
Adaptive Transform Acoustic Coding, no less. Originally developed for MiniDisc, this is a Sony-only format. It compresses to around one fifth of the original CD audio file size – less than MP3 – and sound quality is impressive. However, even Sony has finally recognised MP3 is a far more popular format.

MP3 (MPEG1 , Layer3)
The original compressed format, and the buzzword around which digital music players were built. Due to ease of use and availability, MP3 remains the most popular format, but it has been overtaken in terms of quality. The common bit-rate of 128kbps produces a rather thin sound .

WMA
Microsoft's format, developed for use with the Windows Media Player, and now compatible with many hardware players. Popular with PC-based downloaders and now common on many legal download sites. It sounds better than MP3 at comparable bit-rates.

and voices are heard. It must be of a high quality if singers, guitars, trumpets, and so on, are to sound natural.
MINIDISC Sony's 64mm magneto-optical disc format. Re-recordable and easy to edit. The Hi-MD format has seen 1GB discs made available and the ability to link players directly to a PC.
MONOBLOC An independent mono power amplifier – so two monoblocs are required to run in a stereo system.
MOVING COIL Cartridge design in which a stylus is connected to coils that move in relation to fixed magnets, therefore creating electrical signals. Has lower output than moving-magnet cartridge design.
MOVING MAGNET Cartridge design in which a very small magnet connected to the stylus moves relative to a fixed coil in the body, therefore generating the signal.
MP3 MPEG 1 Layer 3. The compression system used for downloading music files from the internet to a PC or MP3 recording device. It reduces file sizes by a factor of 12 to enable much faster downloads.

N

NICAM CD-quality digital stereo sound transmitted alongside the picture during terrestrial TV broadcasts. Your TV needs to be Nicam to receive a stereo signal.

O

OHM Unit of resistance to current. Impedance of a speaker is measured in ohms – the lower the figure the harder it is to drive.

P

PHONO STAGE Cartridges output signals at much lower levels than CD players. Many amps have the extra amplification built-in, but increasing numbers don't, and require an add-on phono amp.
PLASMA Currently the dominant type of large, flat TV. Plasmas use neon/xenon gas sandwiched between two thin plates of glass. Electrical impulses are passed through the gas at specific points as required. This causes the gas to react, which creates a 'pixel'. There are more than a million pixels in the average plasma TV.
PMPO Stands for peak music power, quoted for gear like mini systems and ghetto-blasters to make them look more powerful.
POWER AMPLIFIER Supplies audio signals from the source component to the loudspeakers.
POWER-HANDLING The highest safe power for speakers. But it's easier to damage speakers with an amp of too low power driven hard, than with too much power.
PREAMPLIFIER The control part of an amp. Built into integrated amps, but can be separate and used with a power amp or active loudspeakers.
PRO-LOGIC see Dolby.
PROGRESSIVE SCAN Technology that creates DVD pictures in one hit. Gives clearer, flicker-free images than the conventional system, which uses interlaced, rapidly refreshed horizontal lines. Now available for both US and UK DVDs.

R

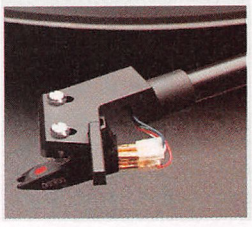
RDS Radio Data System. Data piggybacked on FM radio allowing RDS tuners to display the names of stations, and perform a range of functions.

S

SAMPLING RATE How fast a digital recorder or player samples a signal. CD and MiniDisc use a rate of 44.1KHz – ie 44,100 samples per second – while DAT recorders offer a choice of 48KHz or 44.1KHz, and Digital Audio Broadcasting works on 32KHz.
SIGNAL-TO-NOISE RATIO The difference between the level of the audio signal and the level of unwanted noise present in that signal. The larger the figure, which is measured in dB, the lower the noise in the signal.
SIX-CHANNEL INPUT Many DVD players now have built-in Dolby Digital decoders. To take advantage of these they need to be connected to a home cinema amp with a six-channel input.
SUBWOOFER A separate woofer box to produce the deep lows.
SUPER AUDIO CD (SACD) Developed by Sony and Philips, SACD uses one-bit Direct Stream Digital (DSD) technology. Most discs are dual layer, with a CD layer that will play on a normal CD player and an SACD layer for better performance when replayed on an SACD machine.
SURROUND EX Decoding system for Dolby Digital Surround EX software. Mode can also be applied to DTS-ES software.

T

TAPE LOOP Two sockets on an amplifier that let the signal out for tape-deck recording; there's another pair that let the signal back in for replay. So you can record and check recordings.
TONEARM The device on a turntable that holds the cartridge in place.



THROW RATIO Never buy a projector without making sure it'll fit in your room. First decide what size screen you want. Then measure the distance your new projector will be from the screen. Finally, use the throw ratio to work out if the projector is suitable. You'll find more details in your projector's manual.
THX Developed by LucasFilm, a set of standards for Dolby Pro-Logic gear that should ensure a certain quality of home cinema sound. Needs kit made to exacting specifications.
TOROIDAL TRANSFORMER Transformers bring mains voltages down to the levels required. Toroidal transformers (doughnut-shaped) get better stability and less flux leakage (magnetic radiation that can interfere with other circuits).
TRANSIENTS Short and sudden events in music such as a cymbal crash or the crack of a stick on a snare drum. Transients are difficult to reproduce.
TREBLE High frequencies. When we say treble is splashy, it means that cymbals, for example, sound like they're going 'tizzshsh', rather than having a sting and a crispness to them.
TWEETER The small speaker driver that handles treble frequencies.

VALVE Amplifying device: electrodes in a glass vacuum enclosure. Produces a warm, seductive sound.

WATT Unit of power. More watts mean more power, but how loud a system sounds also depends on speaker sensitivity and room size. See PMPO.
WIDESCREEN More and more TV programmes, and nearly all DVD discs, are produced in widescreen format. This can vary from 14:9 (a compromise ratio used by TV broadcasters) to 16:9, which is the ratio used on widescreen television sets and by most DVDs. Many films shown at the cinema are in 21:9, so you'll still get black bars on a widescreen television. Old-fashioned 'square' televisions use a 4:3 aspect ratio.
WOOFER The large drive unit in a speaker that produces the bass frequencies.

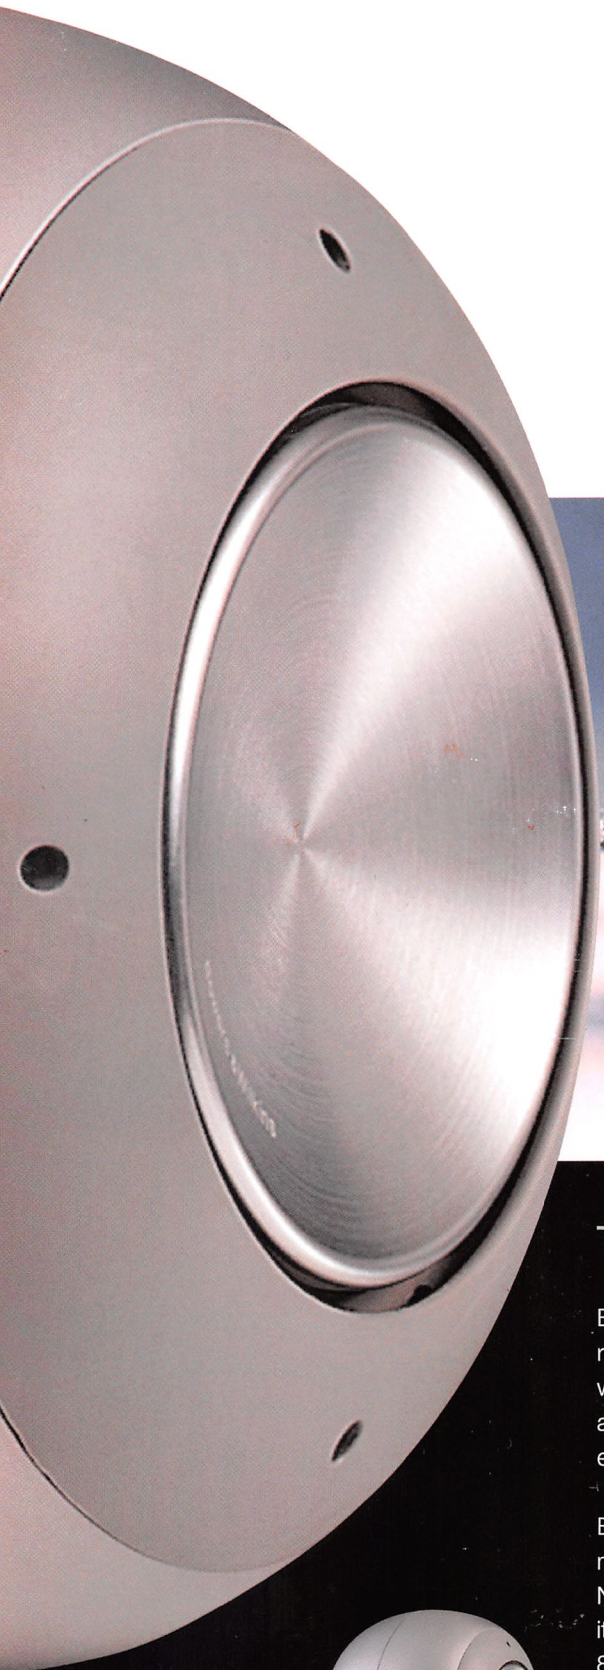
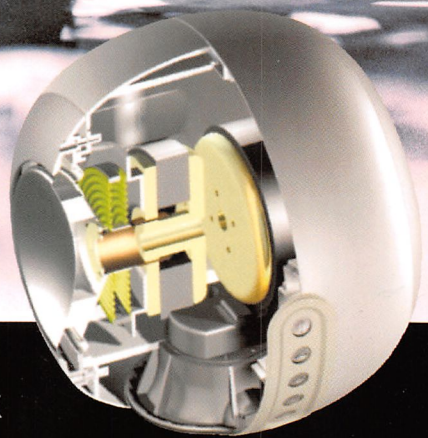
THE NEW B&W PV1 SUBWOOFER





Thinking outside the box

Ever seen a square bubble? No, can't say we have, either. And there's a good reason. Flat sides and corners can't cope with air that's under pressure. If bubbles were box-shaped, they'd burst. That's why pounding air pressures trapped inside the average compact subwoofer produce so much extra, unwanted vibration. Instead of equilibrium, you get rattle and hum.

B&W's revolutionary new PV1 compact subwoofer gets around all that by simply mirroring nature. It's a sphere, which means it can make a big sound in a small space. No 'box effects' or standing waves. Pressure and resonances are smoothed around its rigid aluminium shell. Which is just as well, given its 500W amplifier, back-to-back 8-inch drive units and surprising internal volume. (A sphere can accommodate more space than any other form with the same surface area, don't you know).

It looks good, it sounds amazing, and it's as solid as a rock. You could even rest your coffee on it if it wasn't so round.
